Witch School "Pagans in Global Action" Conference

Greetings all,

The Witch School Conference "Pagans in Global Action" is almost upon us -and we can hardly wait! This conference will be unlike any other, and was created in direct response to the issues facing the Pagan community today.

The conference will be in Salem, Mass. -"Witch City"- the weekend of April 17 - 19!

This Conference is envisioned very much as a teaching conference, and has been put together with an eye to many of the things our people feel passionately about -all of which can be summed up as taking legitimate place in the real-life world of global religion. Each of the speakers deals with one aspect of this.

Rev. Angie Buchanon -Rev. Angie Buchanon of Gaia's Womb and Covenant of the Goddess is a member of the Executive Council for the Parliament of the World's Religions. She is one of only two Western Pagan members of the PWR Executive Council. People love to talk about standards, legitimacy, respectability -well, in the world of global religion you cant get more respectable than the Executive Council of the PWR. Angie is a person who can speak from direct personal experience to issues of interfaith and intrafaith networking, world religious standards, and what other religions really want to see from Wicca and other Western Pagan paths as opposed to what we might think they want to see. How can we be better accepted by other religions? How can we interface with them and involve ourselves in multi-faith projects around the world -this is one of the relatively few people in our community who really has those answers.

Dagonet Dewr -Dagonet Dewr is the founder and Executive Direction of what may be the largest and most successful grassroots event in the history of the Pagan community: Pagan Pride Day. Every year PPD's across the country promote our community in positive public events that involve people from widely diverse Pagan backgrounds. How can we bring our community together in positive, peaceful ways? How can we raise our visibility in the wider society in a way that helps them to see us in a positive light? How can we have large, widespread, inclusive events that involve many different Traditions, Temples, and groups without all of the political infighting that sometimes accompanies multi-group efforts? Here a person who can answer those questions because he and his organization have accomplished it.

Christian Day -Christian Day is one of the most controversial people in the Pagan community and also one of its most successful businessmen. Organizer of Salem's Festival of the Dead, an October-long event that draws thousands of people and features psychic fairs, classes and workshops, and parties including the famous Official Salem Witches' Ball, Christian day knows the in and outs of running a successful business and successful public events like few others in the Pagan community. How can our community overcome its so-called "poverty consciousness"? How can more Pagans become successful in business and financially prosperous? How can our community learn to capitalize itself and create the events and services we dream of? Few people can better answer these questions than Christian Day.

Rev. Jeanene Hammers -A prominent member of the American Legion, Rev. Jeanene will discuss her experiences in the Legion, notably her time as an American Legion Chaplain. Our people want to be more accepted in the military. We want chaplains. We want to alleviate the prejudices that caused the Pentacle Campaign to drag on for a decade. Here is a person with a prominent position in the American Legion -a former American Legion Chaplain who has been involved in efforts to create more inclusive materials for American Legion Chaplains. A person who has faced and positively dealt with issues of prejudice and gone on to serve the Legion with distinction. She can address through direct personal experience what is needed in these spheres, what sorts of reactions our people can expect to receive, and how best to deal with them.

Rev. Green Owl -Mother of the Witch School Mentoring system and a prominent educator in private life, Rev. Green Owl will address the issues we face in providing distance education to large numbers of people around the world, and how real-time educational techniques can be applied to benefit this process. Witch School was a pioneer in the concept of online distance education, but it is the trend of the future world-wide. Rev. Green Owl will discuss how real-time schools are using the same techniques, and how online education can be used to augment and improve the real-time educational experience. A former military officer, Rev. Green Owl can also speak to her experiences in the military and the issues facing Pagans there -as well as how best to deal with those issues.

Rev. Stephanie Neal -Rev. Stephanie Neal runs the Witch School Volunteer Guild which co-ordinates volunteer groups around the country and the world that strive to improve their local communities. Rev. Stephanie will discuss the role of volunteerism in the modern Pagan community, and how the efforts of volunteer groups can be instrumental in changing the way the wider society views Pagans.

Pagans in the international Interfaith movement, grassroots organizing, Pagans in the military, military Chaplaincy, financial self-sufficiency, improving education standards, the role of volunteerism, these are among the main issues facing our community at this time and among the best people in the nation to address them! Many Pagan events feature fascinating authors -but how many feature the people actually on the front lines of the events that shape our world?

But of course the event is not only about serious discussion. There will be ritual, socializing, and food! There will also be Salem itself with its many Wicca and Witchcraft related attractions and shops. The conference is being held in Salem's historic Hawthorne Hotel -a gracious venue which among many other claims to fame was the site for the "Witches' Convention" in the famous "Bewitched" Salem episodes more than thirty years ago. The hotel has agreed to recreate the famous "Bewitched Menu" used at the time, for an added bit of history.

And of course, concurrent with the conference is the Correllian Lustration of the Ancestors. Lustration is the most important ceremony of the Correllian Tradition, and many of the Traditions leadership are expected to attend.

Nothing quite like this weekend is ever likely to happen again. So join us and be one of the people to say "I was there".

For those who can't make it to the conference, a video is being compiled featuring many of the conference events. The video can be pre-ordered for $9.99 at <http://www.witchschoolstore.com/videos.html>.

General admission to the conference is just $60, and VIP admission is $125. Learn more about the Witch School "Pagans in Global Action" conference at <http://www.witchschool.com/salem.asp>.

Blessings

Waes Hael!

I can't guarantee that you will get an article at all next week. However I will do my best. I am off to the Lustration in Salem and have a few days each side to do a bit of tourist type stuff too. I attended the last Spring Lustration as well. That was in Suffolk England, so why am I dragging myself all the way across the pond to The States?

Partly it's a good opportunity to see Salem and see if it really is the witch city. Bear in mind I have experience of Glastonbury and the museum of witchcraft is Boscastle to compare it with. I am expecting blatant over-commercialism, but I am willing to let myself be pleasantly surprised too.

The main theme of this year's combined Witch School seminar is Pagans in the community and how we can take a more active role in society. No more hiding in the broom closet, but instead getting out there being noticed and having our voice heard. I see it as also starting to take on some of the more traditional pastoral duties that priests of the more established religions perform. It was this reason that made me want to become clergy. The seminar that is of particular personal interest to me is the one on handfasting. In England the only religious ceremony that also counts as a legal marriage is one performed by a Church of England priest. This is a historical thing going back to Henry VIII and is due to the Church being 'established' or part of the official organisations of this country. There is even an entire code of laws (Cannon Law) that are still legally binding and which you could be prosecuted in the courts for. In reality however, it is many years since anyone has been charged with anything. Across the border in Scotland however there exists a different set of laws and church and state are not so tightly bound together. Recently there was a change in the law that allows a friend or family member to conduct a religious marriage for you. There are various conditions and provisos. You have to send in a copy of the order of service, you have to provide proof you are a member of the clergy or equivalent in whatever religion it is. There needs to be 2 witnesses to the ceremony and the people to be married have to say that they want to be married to each other. The licence allowing you to perform a legal marriage is specific to that marriage only.

So why am I bothering to find all this out? Well, last year two of my friend decided to tie the knot. A phrase which actually comes from hand-fasting and not marriage, as it refers to the part of the ritual where the couple have one of their hands tied together. However they decided they did not want to have 2 ceremonies: one religious and one civil. So they asked me to officiate for them.

And that is why I am off to Salem. I know that self initiation is accepted, and I have my clergy certificate filed away ready to send off to the Registrar General of Scotland for my license to the perform marriage. But I feel that I want an actual live initiation which is interactive with other people. I want that physical link with the other members of the Correllian family.

I also see this as just the start. Once I got thinking about it I could see a much wider need in the Pagan community for pastoral care. I know that in general we pagans tend to be a rather independent bunch who largely do our own thing and follow our own paths. But I wonder how much of that is through necessity and not through choice. There are a great many solitary practitioners out there. Far more than actually belong to an organised group. Then the groups and covers tend to be quite small in size. The local hearth I belong to has just seven members.

Anyway... enough of my rambling I am taking my laptop with me, so you might get an article next week, if not I will let you know how it all went the week after.

Well readers,

I am still waiting to hear from you I take it none of you have anything to say about the articles enshrined on these pages and no causes you would like to bring to our attention. No worries, I won't stop trying to elicit your opinions and ideas. One day my patience will bear fruit (hopefully the editors patience will last as long as it takes ☺).

And so to the Article (again supplied by Care2 causes):

Global Warming Endangers New Animal

posted by: Sharon S.

Some scientists would like to add a new animal to the endangered species list because of climate changes. The adorable hamster-like animal is called the American pika. It is a distant cousin to the rabbit and has existed in time for the past 40,000 years – until now. Pikas live on the slopes of mountains in rock piles. They are familiar creatures to hikers in many national parks. Their habitats are documented in 10 states throughout the western part of the U.S., but most of the problems are being seen in Nevada and Utah in the Great Basin area. The little furry animals don't like temperatures above 78 degrees and as the western states get warmer, they have been trying to protect themselves by moving higher up on their mountain homes. Pikas normally live at an elevation of 5,700 feet, but now scientists have found them migrating to 8,000 feet above sea level. The biggest challenge that could lead to their extinction comes from the fact that the little guys have moved up the slopes as far as they can.

They are living on the peaks of mountains and have literally run out of room. And because they have very short legs, pikas are not inclined to travel long distances, so the possibility of moving to a completely new area is very slim.

Greg Loarie, an Earthjustice attorney involved in lawsuits to get the pika protections said, “It’s feeling an exaggerated brunt of global warming. Unlike others, it can’t move north. It’s stuck.” A study completed in 2003 found pika populations living in only six of the 25 known habitats in the Great Basin. Erik Beever, an ecologist said, “Climate seems to be the single strongest driver but it’s interacting with other factors such as grazing, habitat loss, roads and human disturbance.”

Researchers have continued to study the 25 sites since 2003, but have not yet published the results. Other scientists are looking at what steps could be taken to protect the pika – maybe even a recovery plan. In 2008 the polar bear was the first animal added to the endangered species because of global warming. If the pika is added, it will be the first animal in the lower 48 states of the U.S. to be listed because of impact from the climate. Greg Loarie warns, “The pika is the tip of the iceberg. Scientists are saying if global warming continues on this track, there are more extinctions coming. I don’t think that most people are willing to accept that.”

Julie Ingham says: Apr 7, 2009 5:45 AM Yes, someone should at least try to colonise them in suitable areas. I fear for these poor little creatures future if they are left to their own devices as they do tend to stay put in one area. I found this on the WWF website, I guess if you want to help the Pika then a donation to the WWF is a very good starting point.

American Pika Research

According to recent research by USGS ecologist Dr. Erik Beever, global warming appears to have contributed to local extinctions of pika populations in the Great Basin area - the area between the Sierra Nevada and Rocky Mountains - during the last part of the 20th century. American pikas disappeared from seven of twenty-five studied areas. WWF is funding the re-sampling of these pika populations to find out how they vary across shorter time scales. If the global warming trend is not reversed soon through a significant reduction in emissions of CO2 and other heat-trapping gases, population losses of the American pika may lead to the animal's disappearance. Many thanks to WWF.

Karen J. says Apr 7, 2009 6:05 AM In the long haul, I doubt moving them will matter. We've already killed ourselves off.

Glenna Jones-kachtik says Apr 7, 2009 6:49 AM They are cute. The only problem is where would you move them to? Where would you introduce them and put them? The only thing I could see is that when they are moved - some of the population could be moved to a controlled environment (such as a Zoo or nature habitat). That way, at least there would be some breeding pairs and they could be reintroduced to the wild when/if we solve the global warming problem. I know most of you are probably against Zoos; but they have been doing some good endangered species work.

Ben Wise says Apr 7, 2009 7:13 AM Build pika towers on the tops of the highest mountains, and keep adding floors as temp. increase warrants. There's always a technological solution to our technologically produced problems. Keeps the economy humming along. It's what makes the world go round, and heat up.

Suzybell H. says Apr 7, 2009 7:52 AM They should be added to the endangered species list, as far as moving them that will have to be thought out very carefully. This will take time and has to be the perfect place.

Carol P. says Apr 7, 2009 8:02 AM I agree with Suzybell - moving animals to a different habitat may upset the balance of Mother Nature in the chosen area. I have been an activist in conservation and environmental areas for 40 years & trained as a biologist, so I fell qualified to give an informed comment!! csichick

Jerilyn C. says Apr 7, 2009 11:46 AM I agree that they should be added to the endangered species list but any animal that is moved from its original habitat I would think could end up dying.

There needs to be more research on this before moving them but as I said, they definitely need to be on the endangered specie's list!!! JC

Gillian V. says Apr 8, 2009 7:39 AM I am leaning Yes to the vote but feel that we often interfere prematurely. As Humans we think we can fix everything. A move would have to be very carefully researched and the possible complications investigated thoroughly or more difficulties may arise. I do hope these little creatures are able to survive.

Kimberly C. says Apr 8, 2009 1:17 PM I agree with Terry G. (Apr 7 5:37AM). We are the ones that are causing Global Warming and so we should be the ones to fix the problems caused by this. These Pika's should not have to suffer because of people. Why doesn't everyone see this. Move these guys to a happy and safe place!!!

So, readers, do you have something to say about this subject?

Perhaps you have another cause close to your heart that you would like to bring to our readers attention...

Poets Retreat

Poetry supplied by member of the Order of Bards

Rat- Survival and Success With Endeavors

A dirty, disgusting Rat is how others see you but you know better than that.

You're one of God's creatures with a special purpose and you should take pride in that.

A unique ability to reason and your intelligence
are two of the many reasons
why you are still here.

Your ability to live unseen
is definitely in your favor
each day that you are still alive is greatly to be savored.

Seeing into the future
with your farsightedness
and acute perception
gives you cleverness.

Pursuing your goals aggressively,
socially, and cooperatively
in your teamwork
is necessary for your survival.

Although a symbol of fertility
with abundant reproduction, sometimes you may have to live defensively to keep you and your family surviving.

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at krystelneuman@yahoo.com

May You Blessed Be

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: www@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,

The Order of Web Weavers
