Australian update

The Fires have died down, the rains came to Victoria, Lake Ayr in South Australia has water in it for the first time in 2 decades (enough to sail across). Lake Ayr is a salt bed that becomes a lake when the rainy season in the North of Australia is a true tropical rainy season, where the rivers flood out across the country and the Darling river fills to overflowing and runs its full course from the north to join the Murray river in the south and flow on to the ocean in the Great Australian Bight. It is this flooding and filling of the water ways of inland Australia that keeps the land alive. The flooding soaks into the land and feeds not only the rivers and creeks and lakes but also adds to the water in the Great Artesian Bore... The underground water believed to have been a great inland sea when Australia was part of the ancient continent of Gondwana land. The changes to our country are amazing, with the water comes the life... The towns destroyed by fire in Victoria are slowly coming back to life, but it will take a long time to renew all that was lost. The Australian spirit is strong and they will rebuild and renew and use the experience to build a safer better environment for all.

Part 7 Land Animal Totems

Sources: <http://www.whats-your-sign.com/animal-totems.html>

Each totem carries messages and information for us. This is known as their medicine.

COYOTE

The coyote is the epitome of cunning, resourcefulness, intelligence and skill. It also brings the qualities of playfulness and transformation.

In Native American tradition the coyote is the archetypal trickster and shape-shifter. The Navajo will never kill a coyote who they believe accompanied man and woman into this world, bringing with it the seeds of life. By contrast, the Shoshoni believe it to be a bringer of death and a harbinger of disaster which is viewed positively as a fresh start, a time of new beginnings as with the death card in the tarot. In this it carries the power of transformation.

If the coyote comes to us it is to warn us to be careful in our actions, to consider consequences and to be wary of playing tricks on others and to watch for tricks aimed at you. It teaches cunning and the skill of being resourceful, of calling on inner potential. It shows us that there is a solution to any problem given time and thought. It teaches us to learn by our mistakes and so free ourselves from the errors of the past, transforming ourselves and growing in the process.

It also carries the very important message, the lesson of finding joy and of laughing – something sadly missing from our lives.

Ancient Trees for Toilet Paper

Posted on Care2-Causes on the 17th Mar 09 by: Angel Flinn, who is a volunteer for Gentle World, a non-profit educational organization dedicated to enhancing the quality of life for humans and animals, by promoting the benefits of a sustainable lifestyle.

A recent AlterNet article revealed an alarming situation surrounding the popularity of 'ultra-soft' toilet paper. In order to obtain the soft, fluffy, quilted texture that has become preferable to many consumers, manufacturers use fiber from standing trees, rather than recycled material. The facts are quite disturbing: toilet paper is made from ancient forests, old growth forests, virgin forests, second growth forests, natural forests, high conservation value forests, temperate forests, tropical and sub-tropical forests and boreal forests.

The New York Times reports: "Although toilet tissue can be made at similar cost from recycled material, it is the fiber taken from standing trees that help give it that plush feel, and most large manufacturers rely on them... Although brands differ, 25 percent to 50 percent of the pulp used to make toilet paper in this country comes from tree farms in South America and the United States. The rest, environmental groups say, comes mostly from old, second-growth forests that serve as important absorbers of carbon dioxide, the main heat-trapping gas linked to global warming. In addition, some of the pulp comes from the last virgin North American forests... Greenpeace, the international conservation organization, contends that Kimberly Clark, the maker of two popular brands, Cottonelle and Scott, has gotten as much as 22 percent of its pulp from producers who cut trees in Canadian boreal forests where some trees are 200 years old."

Personally, I am quite happy to use recycled toilet paper, which I find to be perfectly soft and not at all objectionable. In fact, the recycled paper is so similar to regular paper that I don't understand why any toilet paper is still made of new fiber at all. There are vast stacks of post-consumer paper sitting in warehouses waiting to be recycled, due to the fact that the market for all recyclables has dropped dramatically since the economic downturn. It seems to me that a worthy government program would be to put resources towards turning all of that into useable paper, including toilet paper.

Sure, I've been in homes where they have the luxurious, soft, colored, fluffy toilet paper, and I'll readily admit that using it does make you feel like a member of wealthy society. But frankly, knowing what it requires to make the paper feel that way makes it clear to me that it simply isn't worth it.

In the 1990s, I was a part of an environmental campaign in New Zealand which succeeded in putting an end to government-sponsored logging of ancient, virgin Beech forests. At the time, New Zealanders already opposed the logging of native forests, but the logging company had hired a PR firm to lobby government on their behalf. Many regular New Zealanders didn't even know that the logging was going on, let alone the extent of the damage it was doing to the last remaining forests in a country that was once over 80% covered in forest.

What made this forest massacre even worse in my eyes, was that there wasn't even a market for the timber that came from these trees, which were often 400-600 years old. They weren't using it for furniture or building (not that I would have condoned that either, since these forests are so old they are known by British botanist David Bellamy as 'The Dinosaur Forests'.) No, these beautiful, ancient trees were being milled and sold as woodchips and sawdust, and frequently being turned into toilet paper for the overseas market.

I remember thinking at the time that this was completely obscene, and was such a striking offence against the magnificence of Nature, that created these majestic trees, who were not only a great joy to behold and walk amongst, but they also provided homes to such an extraordinary collection of remarkable creatures, many of whom are threatened or endangered due to the devastation of their habitat.

Destruction of virgin forests for any reason is a great crime against the planet. But to cut down these ancient trees to turn them into toilet paper...? It's really quite difficult to express just how obscene that is. I wonder how the manufacturers of these products defend such a harmful practice. I imagine they don't give it too much thought, as long as people are buying the fluffy TP. But they'll certainly give it some thought if we stop buying it, and especially if people start voicing their complaints.

I believe that this only goes on because the majority of people don't know about it. If people knew that ancient trees were being turned into toilet paper, I hope that we would all reject it in favor of more sustainable options. I am sure that with the technology we have available to us today, we are quite capable of making soft toilet paper out of any one of a number of sustainable materials.

What we, as consumers, need to do, is to generate demand for ethically produced goods, by buying only recycled toilet paper and encouraging others to do the same. Greenpeace has a guide for ethical toilet paper options. If you feel incensed or passionate about this issue, then consider channeling your anger into a phone call, e-mail or letter to the companies that are carrying out this massacre of ancient trees. When business realizes that consumers are showing an increased degree of responsibility about their purchases, they will respond with products that are aligned with our values of sustainability.

As a good friend of mine remarked when he heard these facts: "If they can put a man on the moon, they can create soft toilet paper without cutting down trees."

Otter- Woman Medicine and Feminine Energy

Otter medicine honors
Our right to be
Who we are,
Unconditionally.

Honor the Universal
Flow of waters
And you will discover
Woman's powers.

In defining your
Feminine role
Set some boundaries
In your home.

No fear, no anger
Only freeness of love
Friendly, joyful, playful,
All of the above.

Always on the go
Always so curious
Exploring all things
Always so adventurous.

In keeping the inner child alive,
Stop being so serious.
Be not afraid to have some fun,
Find the time to play and run.

For your mind and soul
To be free, you must
Unclutter your sacred space
From materialistic things,
Because these things
Will always weigh you down.

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at

May You Blessed Be

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: www@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,

The Order of Web Weavers
