Smoothie's Story

It's true that we feel for every animal that comes through our front doors. We try not to anthropomorphise them but occasionally an animal may have a problem that doesn't bother it but that we, as humans, truly feel.

One such case with us at the moment is "Smoothie" a very proud and, as usual, irascible squirrel. His problem? He is completely bald. Not a hair on his head, legs or body and just a smattering on that normally wonderfully bushy tail. But he doesn't seem to bother and still tucks into his pecan nuts and tries to bite the hand that feeds him.

John Lewis the vet had ideas of what caused the baldness but he took a skin biopsy that we could send to a specialised animal pathologist to try for a more specific diagnosis.

Needless to say "Smoothie" did not co-operate in having his photograph taken both for the Pathologist and for our records and Newsletter. But I did manage to get a couple before he sped off to hide in all the stones.

We have now set him up a special pen, on his own, until we can encourage his fine fur coat to grow back.

We'll keep you up to date with progress as he eats us "out of house and home" of pecan nut

FireStorms Mystical Emporium specialises in Wiccan items

From www.mlive.com

Owners Dawn Rose, left, and Tanya Tice at FireStorms Mystical Emporium, 197 W. Clay. The business opened in September 2008.

FireStorms Mystical Emporium is perhaps the most unusual shop in this area. It is one of a group of small businesses lined up in a row on Clay Avenue in downtown Muskegon.

FireStorms is easily recognized by the glittering, colored glass pieces hanging in the window and by the geodes studded with clusters of brilliant purple amethysts on the window sill.

Inside there is a vast selection of "gifts for the mind, body and spirit," their business card claims.

There are baskets of polished stones, crystals, shelves of incense, handmade soaps with names such as earth spirit, dragon protector and green man. Here are fragrant candles, "lotions and potions" to treat the body's ills, jars of dried herbs and flowers, oils, bags of runes and tarot cards useful for transmitting messages or looking into the future.

Here is a case of jewelry, necklaces created from semi-precious stones embellished with pendants. Select your favorite stone from the assortment and it can be wrapped in gold, silver or copper wire to create a special piece of jewelry.

Books are arranged on another shelf -- books with titles related to magic and witchcraft. Native American icons are here. A ruffled green feather on a quill pen is surrounded by a choice of inks -- dragon, bat or dove blood.

"I assure you, there's no blood in any of the inks," said co-owner Dawn Rose, 36.

Rose and Tanya Tice, 37, opened their shop last September, sensing the local interest they had noted in response to their Web site, Magical Market. They have been pleased with the interest expressed by visitors to the shop.

What: FireStorms Mystical Emporium.

Where: 197 W. Clay.

Hours: 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.,
Tuesday through Saturday.

Information: (231) 728-1306.

The two women are Wiccans. Rose is a traditional Wiccan, Tice an eclectic Wiccan, a slight variation in what Rose said is "a modern reconstruction of an ancient faith" that is said to trace its roots to western Europe.

They are followers of what is described as a Goddess-oriented, "neo-pagan" religion, sometimes worshipping a God as well as a Goddess.

Wicca ascribes to the laws of nature, observance of the seasons and is symbolized by the pentagram or pentacle, the five-pointed star enclosed in a circle. This symbol represents Wicca's basic elements of earth, fire, air, water and spirit; the circle represents infinity.

"The basic tenets are a belief in and strong connection to nature. Following the cycle of seasons is part of our spirituality," Rose said. "The Wiccan 'rede' is to harm none and do what you will." Wicca emphasizes self-study and self-improvement.

They point out that Wicca is in many ways similar to many of the world's religions.

Inside FireStorms is a selection of "gifts for the mind, body and spirit."

The women have a history in common, both arriving at their present beliefs through a period of seeking answers to the questions they had about their former, conservative religions. "I would prefer to go out in the woods and read a book rather than attend church," Tice said.

They recognize that opening FireStorms Mystical Emporium in this area was a big risk, but there are "more than 1,000 people" who find support here with others who have similar beliefs," Tice said.

Kaija, a young woman who frequents the store, said "I'm a pagan. I find books and other stuff and support here." Others have come and said they need a place like this, Rose said.

Most Wiccans are women: probably because of the Goddess," Tice said.

"We never recruit," she said. "Wicca is for the most part a one-on-one religion." Both women welcome questions from curious people who stop in. They are always open in their response. "But I don't like close-mindedness and people pushing their faith on you," Rose said. She recalls the day a woman entered the store, took one look at the "witch's calendar," screamed and ran out.

"I put the calendar away for awhile, but then I took it out again," she said. The "witch" label that is sometimes associated with Wicca is because of its closeness to the forest and nature.

Tice also is a nurse's aide at Hillcrest Nursing Home, where she discusses her beliefs with the residents there. She is a former teacher.

Nature-based faiths celebrate arrival of Spring

From ldnews.com

ERIE, Pa.—Rich Konkol Jr. lay on the sanctuary floor, covered by a black cloak, practicing his religion.

He snored.

His loud nasal grunts were exaggerated, as befitted someone playing the role of a gatekeeper put to sleep by a Holly King who didn't want to make way for the Oak King's new season.

The mythological battle between kings took place March 18 at the Open Circle for Ostara held by the Covenant of Brighid's Haven. Konkol is a member of the local eclectic Wiccan coven, a part of the pagan religious family. His group held the ritual to celebrate the vernal equinox and the arrival of spring.

"It's nature-based," Konkol said about his pagan religion. "We follow the cycle of seasons, the ebb and flow of how our own world works, especially our region, where you have your growing season, your season where it's cold and you're reflecting on yourself.

"There's no one right way or one concrete path to take," he said. "It's whatever is in each person's heart and soul."

Konkol, 33, was raised Catholic but left home at age 20 because of issues over his new religion.

Since the age of 7 or 8, he'd been attracted to the outdoors, the woods, where he felt the magic, the spirits of nature.

"It just clicked," he said, "like a priest called into priesthood or a minister to serve. It just resonates."

At 16, he discovered, through books, that what he was feeling was an Earth-based religion.

Pagan and neo-pagan are umbrella terms often used interchangeably to describe a collection of religious groups that includes Wicca, which is the largest, as well as Druids, goddess worshippers and others, according to professors of religion and sociology who have studied the various groups. Neo-pagan or contemporary pagan is often used to distinguish practitioners of new religious movements that have ancient roots.

Konkol is part of the United NeoPagan Council of Lake Erie and a Wiccan coven, but he just describes himself as pagan.

And people know it.

Konkol's vehicles and his body reflect his religion.

The owner of Konkol Welding drives a pickup and a care with bumper stickers declaring "Pagan and proud," "Child of the Goddess" and "Protected by witchcraft." Tattooed on his chest is Thor's hammer. Each forearm has a flaming arrow, symbol of Brighid. All are signs of his devotion.

"The goddess I worship is from the Celtic mythology, is Lady Brighid," he said.

She's the goddess of blacksmiths, and Konkol, who also practices that trade, takes a statue of her to his forge.

"I worship under the Norse God Thor, the god of the common man, slayer of giants," Konkol said.

He compared taking on a big work project with slaying a dragon and said he has a small statue of Thor in his welding truck.

The god and goddess keep him on track, living a right life.

"I stay honest with anyone who I charge," Konkol said.

And he'll throw in little extras that a client needs.

At home in Greene Township, he's not the man of the house. He and his fiancée have equal voices.

They don't just practice their religion at rituals.

"We live it," Konkol said.

Neo-pagans don't all have the same beliefs, but their practices tend to center around nature.

Helen Berger, professor of sociology at West Chester University of Pennsylvania, said there's a notion among pagans that "anything you do in the world comes back to you threefold," so you need to live ethically.

Sarah Pike, professor of religious studies at California State University at Chico, said the ethical system includes "the rule of not harming anyone."

She said it's also important to note that neo-pagans are not Satanists.

"Some worship a pantheon of deities, usually based on Celtic, Egyptian, Greek, Norse mythology, et cetera, depending on the tradition of their choice," Pike said.

Konkol said that's true of the Covenant of Brigid's Haven.

Like Konkol, many pagans participate in regular rituals, either in groups or alone.

"They may have altars or shrines in their homes or communities dedicated to gods, goddesses or nature," Pike said.

Many neo-pagans are self-instructed and practice as "solitaries" who don't belong to a group, said Leigh Shaffer, also a professor of sociology at West Chester. They shape their views after reading books, neo-pagan publications and Web sites.

No one really knows how many pagans or neo-pagans there are.

"Neo-pagans are considered a 'hidden population' because of the persecution that identified practitioners have faced over the years," Shaffer said. "Practitioners are ordinarily very careful about identifying themselves publicly."

Pike cited estimates of 250,000 to 800,000 in the U.S.; Berger has seen estimates of 150,000 to 1 million.

"I think a reasonable guess is about 400,000," Berger said.

Konkol estimated about 1,000 pagans are in the Erie area.

Although he said there's more knowledge about pagans today, thanks mostly to the Internet, some still fear persecution. News photography wasn't permitted at the ritual because some participants worried their presence could adversely affect their jobs.

Konkol said his religion hasn't hindered his work, which has included jobs for churches and the Catholic Diocese of Erie. He's done projects for the Unitarian Universalist Congregation of Erie, and his group rents the congregation's building for events like the Ostara ritual.

Around Erie, Konkol said, people are more concerned with getting a good job done and work ethic than his religious beliefs.

But he's certain people have followed his vehicles, intending to confront him over the bumper stickers. Until he gets out. He's only about 5-foot-11, but weighs 260 pounds.

Despite his own willingness to discuss his religion, Konkol said pagan stereotypes remain.

Among the misconceptions are that all pagans are poor or crazy, Konkol said. He agrees there are some of what he calls "extremist pagans" and "wing nuts" out there, but said Judeo-Christianity has them too.

"I go shopping just like everyone else. I go to the movies," Konkol said. "I just worship differently."

Berger said neo-pagans are "mostly middle class, well-educated people."

Konkol said his religion is different from Judaism and Christianity in that pagans "don't have the dogma, we don't have doctrines."

"We're very, very open-minded," he said.

Till next time, brightest and warmest blessings.

Horny Toad- Skills and Resources

An arid place is your domain where there is very little rain.

You exude poisons from your rough and warty skin to ward off predators from your den.

Your personal advantage in endeavors and conflicts promises you success and recognition of your achievements.

Hesitate not, to use your talents they will help to keep you balanced.

Forget not your past from whence you came remembering your roots where you began.

Start paying attention from day to day miss not the opportunities coming your way.

With strength of character you are blessed with solutions to problems to do your best.

Stronger than others may realize rely on your skills to help keep you alive.

You are an omen of healing an omen of money an omen of prophecy.

Especially designed for the children growing up around the Correllian lifestyle!

Merry Meet little guys! Apologies for not being able to get to you in time for an article last week, but I was stuck at work - I've found some great bits today to make up for it though. :-)
There's lots 'squeezed' into today's edition - and both the craft idea and recipe for today are in two parts. . . so make sure you definitely check out the second parts on Thursday!
Enjoy!

Thoughts And Ideas / Crafts:

Egg-ceptional Crafts

From <http://oakdancer.com/parenting/eggceptional.htm>

Part 1 of 2

I've started this column with eggs, because they are so common to most households and because they are so versatile.

Eggs are an ancient symbol of fertility, new life, and the cycle of birth, death and rebirth of the Universe. As such, they make terrific charms for fertility, pregnancy, new endeavours, and similar types of magick.

Besides all of that, eggs are just plain fun! They are easy accessible, relatively inexpensive, and can serve a multitude of purposes.

Here are several of my favourite egg-related magickal crafts.

Magickal Egg Garden:

This craft does take a little bit of forethought ~ not the easiest thing for me at 6 am. since I'm not a morning person grin.

To start, when you crack open your eggs to cook, try to crack them as close to the narrow end as possible. By doing so, you can leave most of the eggshell intact, forming a little cup.

Empty and rinse out the egg with hot water, setting it to dry in a place where the kids (and the cats!) won't be able to knock them off. I usually keep mine eggshells in the original cardboard containers.

When you have at least a dozen or so, you have the start of your magickal garden! These eggshells make great miniature planters for starting seeds in. The eggshell symbols new birth and growth, and when the seedlings are large enough, they can be planted in the ground, eggshell and all. Roll the shell gently between your palms to crack it, so the roots will be able to work their way through, and plant.

By starting the seeds in their own little "egg pots," you can charge them in groups for specific purposes, or just provide them with general blessings.

Eggshell Chalk:

This was an idea that Oak came up with, but I admit I had to search for a recipe. Here is one that I found:

Take 6 Eggshells; wash them thoroughly so they do not have any egg left in them. Dry them well.

Take them outside and grind them with a rock on the sidewalk, or some other concrete surface. Make sure the grinding rock is clean, so there will be no dirt ground into the mixture. Grind the shells to a fine powder.

Alternately, this is a good rainy day project, if you trust your children with your mortar and pestle. When you (or they) are sick of grinding and have enough powder, pick out any little bits of eggshell that remain unground, and toss them into the compost pile. Scoop the eggshell powder into a paper towel or container, and you're ready for the next step.

Measure out 1 teaspoon flour and 1 teaspoon very hot water from the tap; mix them together in a small bowl into a paste. Pour in 1 soup spoonful of the eggshell powder and mix well. You might try mashing the paste with the back of a spoon to help blend.

Shape this mixture into a chalk stick (these quantities make 1 chalk stick). Roll up in a strip of paper towel and let dry. This will take about 3 days, so keep the chalk sticks somewhere safe. After 3 days, the chalk should be ready to use. Simply peel off the paper from 1 end.
NOTE: This recipe is suitable for sidewalk chalk only; do not use on the blackboard.

Here is another recipe that I found, that offers the option of making coloured chalk. Now, I have not tried either of these recipes yet, so if you have any suggestions, please email me.

Materials needed to make one stick:

- 6 large, white eggshells
- mortar and pestle or a rolling pin and waxed paper
- 3 small bowls
- 1/2 teaspoon of cornstarch
- hot and cold tap water
- 1 teaspoon of high-gluten or pastry flour
- 5-8 drops of food colouring
- 3 x 5 card
- 2 rubber bands

After removing the membranes on the inside, wash the eggshells and allow them to air dry. Grind the eggshells into a fine powder with a mortar and pestle or by placing them on waxed paper and crushing them with a rolling pin. Put the powder in a small bowl. In another bowl, mix the cornstarch with a half teaspoon of cold water. In the third bowl, mix together the flour and food colouring and then add hot tap water until the dough reaches the consistency of mashed potatoes. Mix the eggshell powder and cornstarch mixture into the dough. Knead the mixture between your hands. In a few minutes the blend should reach the firmness of play dough. If it seems too wet, knead in a few extra pinches of flour; if it's too dry, add a few drops of hot water.

Roll the mixture into a stick, wrap a 3 x 5 card width wise around it, and secure the card with rubber bands. Allow chalk stick to dry for two days, remove the card, and let it dry for two more days.

Tips: If you want to make white chalk, don't add any food colouring. Only use this chalk on sidewalks because it is abrasive and may leave marks on wood, ceramics, and walls.

Eggshell Mosaics:

This is a great idea for those leftover Ostara eggs. Search your yard carefully, before the dogs or the birds get to the dyed eggs ~ this is usually the hardest part of the project! LOL
When you've collected the eggs, peel them, sort by colour, and then turn the shells over to the kids. Hand them a rolling pin and some paper towelling or newspaper, and let them crush the shells into small pieces.
These eggshell bits make great mosaics, and can be created for either magickal or mundane purposes. Maybe this would be a good project for your child's first pentacle, or perhaps for some windowsill magickal decorations.

Ideas For The Kitchen:

Some Quick and Easy Favourites for Kids

Part 1 of 3

Go Fishing

1/3 cup Goldfish crackers
10-12 pretzel sticks (fishing poles)
1-2 Tbs. peanut butter

Put the peanut butter and pretzels on a plate, goldfish in a bowl or glass (paper is OK).
The kids dip a fishing pole in the peanut butter and "catch" a fish with it.

Apple Smiles

Apples
Miniature Marshmallows
Peanut Butter

Cut apple into wedges. Take two wedges and spread peanut butter on one side. Stick mini marshmallows on the peanut butter on one of the apples. Put the other apple wedge, on top (peanut butter sticking to the marshmallows! (apples are lips and marshmallows are teeth!))

Sailboats

Celery
Peanut Butter
Toothpick
White Paper

Children spread peanut butter on celery, cut out a small triangle from white paper and attach to a toothpick. Stick the toothpick in the celery and you have a sailboat.

Aquarium Snack

Clear Plastic Cups
Cookies
Blue Jello
Gummy Fish

Get some clear plastic cups, put some Oreo crumbs or "sandy" coloured cookie crumbs on the bottom. Get some blue jello and pour over the crumbs, add some gummy fish and when set this makes a great snack!

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at

May You Blessed Be

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: www@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,

The Order of Web Weavers
