Animal Totems

Rev. Mehitabel

Part 14 Land Animal Totems

Sources: <http://www.whats-your-sign.com/animal-totems.html>

Each totem carries messages and information for us. This is known as their medicine.

Hedgehog

Heralded as a symbol of triumph over death by the Native American Tribes because of its resistance to snake venom, this small creature carries much medicine for us. The hedgehog teaches us the joy of life and shows us how to be self sufficient, protecting ourselves with sharp spines but warns us against erecting high defensive spiritual and emotional barriers to keep out everyone and everything. The hedgehog helps us to stay in control and to do so in a cool and calm manner. Hedgehog reminds us to listen to that inner voice of intuition and to follow its guidance.

The hedgehog is regarded as a fertility syndrome as it moves in close contact with the earth, and its curled posture is considered a reminder of the foetal position. In many eastern cultures it is revered as a solar power animal with the curled spines resembling the rays of the sun itself.

Like many nocturnal creatures, the hedgehog brings skills of the dark such as intuition, dreams and psychic powers. It shows us how to work within the dark of our lives, how to find our way back to the light.

Meditate with hedgehog and accept the many gifts that it brings. In hedgehog you will find a staunch friend and guide.

TAROT

Rev. Leona

The Tarot card for today is Ten of Wands

Key terms for this card are 'Carrying a Burden', 'Learning to Let Go', 'Oppression'

Message of Ten of Wands

The Ten of Wands makes you feel as though you carry the world in the palm of your hands. You feel responsible for the choices and the actions of those around you. You are spending time trying to figure out how to save the world and solve all of the troubles of the people and the land. This is a time of great trial for you. You know that you should not feel responsible for all of these things but yet you continue to do so. You want everyone to be happy and you want to do all that you can to make this happen. For today you will be preoccupied with the troubles of the world. You will spend time contemplating the decisions, the government, the legal system and many other different problems and organizations.

The Ten of Wands brings you to the point where you will want to scream out with frustration. This is the time when others continue to come to you with their problems hoping that you will be able to solve the problems for them. Today will seem as though you cannot handle all of the responsibilities that others place upon you. With the Ten of Wands come the great burden of being responsible and feeling guilty for the actions of others. You are taking on too many responsibilities. The Ten of Wands is telling you that now is the time to see the situation and learn to let go. There are many around you who are capable and willing to take care of the troubles that you are trying to solve alone. Do not be afraid to let things go and to ask for help.

The Ten of Wands makes you feel as though you have been caught in a trap. You want to help and that seems to be what causes so many problems. The desire to help will cause you to pick up the troubles of others. This then frees others from their own responsibilities and they are free to make mistakes while you remain and try to correct them. This is the time for you to break out of the trap. Do not allow others to manipulate you into taking on their chores and their responsibilities. Allow them to make their own decisions and to make their own mistakes. This is a learning path and you do not help anyone by taking the freedom of choice away. What you do is cause problems for yourself as you become responsible for their choices and actions. This responsibility then will wear down your own mental and physical resources leaving you vulnerable to sickness and fatigue.

When you allow others to take control of your life then you become submissive and easily controlled. Some people in your life are looking for a way to control you. They want to know where you are and what you are doing. By making you responsible and accountable to them they are able to keep better tabs on you. You need to find a way to break the ties that are keeping you from realizing your true potential. This is the time for you to cut the strings and fly freely. Do not allow yourself to be tamed by those with less than perfect intent. This is the time for you to realize that others are taking advantage of you and now you have the ability to reclaim your own life.

Meditation for Ten of Wands

Meditations for this month will require one candle and a journal.

Find a quiet place where you will not be disturbed.

Take in a deep breath and feel your lungs and expand.

When you exhale allow your body to relax and to release all of the stress from the day.

Allow your mind to clear and forget the troubles of the day.

With each breath feel your body grow limp and loose.

Allow all the stress and anxiety to flow away. When you are ready light your candle and close your eyes.

Focus on the following questions:

What causes you stress in your life?

Is this something you need to be stressed over?

What can you do to ease the stress?

Write your response in your journal and focus on the following questions:

Is there something in your life that you feel responsibility or guilt for?

Is this something that you need to feel this way about?

Who is trying to gain control of your life?

How can you take back your own power?

Write your response in your journal.

Open your eyes and extinguish the candle.

Now is the time to begin to let go of the burdens of others.

Runes

Vitki Freyatron

Waes Hael!

In last week's article I went through the ethics of a Heathen and how they are quite independent of the rede. This week I would like to put this into runic terms, since this column is really supposed to be about runes.

The first ethic we come across in the runes is Fehu, the first rune. So what ethic is Fehu teaching us? Really this is a work ethic, working with wyrd it says that we must work for what we want to achieve in life and not just wait for it to fall into our laps.

Uruz the second rune teaches us that if we want to get on in life we need to come at life's challenges head on and that our own personal development is worth fighting for.

Thurisaz teaches us that our shadow soul is as much a part of us as the light, Happy, positive side. We ignore the power held in the deepest parts of our souls at our own peril. We cannot hide from it, we have to face it and accept it. That way we become balanced individuals.

Ansuz teaches that not everything we need is within us. We do need the contact and communication with the other people around us and indeed with our Gods. Bear in mind that Heathenry is polytheistic and many Heathens have very direct relationships with very specific Gods and Goddesses. There is no generic God or Goddess.

Raido teaches us that we are travelling a life journey and that if we want to arrive at our destination we need to take the right path. Very simple, very obvious, but sometimes so simple and obvious that people forget it.

Kenaz teaches us that there is a period of darkness where we can't see that path. Kenaz representing thought and intellect illuminates this path. So Heathenry does not leave it all up to deity to sort things for us. We need to be thinking up our own solutions.

Regrettably time has defeated me this week, but I will continue this next week.

Waes Hael all!

A Response to the Bishops' Statement on Reiki

William Lee Rand ©

On March 25, 2009, U.S. Catholic bishops issued a statement advising Catholic hospitals, health care facilities, and Catholic chaplains not to support the use of Reiki sessions. The statement was issued by The Committee on Doctrine, United States Conference of Catholic Bishops and titled: "Guidelines for Evaluating Reiki as Alternative Therapy."

The statement was based on research the committee had done over a period of several months involving information found on the Internet and in Reiki books. Based on these sources, they concluded that Reiki came from Buddhist texts and has a religious basis; that Reiki healing energy is directed by human thought and will; that Reiki is not validated by scientific studies and has no scientific explanation, and that Reiki is not accepted by the medical community.

When considering the value of the bishops' statement, it's important to note the sources they accessed. Much of their research came from information published on Internet Web sites. Overall, the Internet isn't a good source of factual information because there is no requirement that information published there be checked or approved for accuracy. Anyone can set up a Web site and publish anything they wish. What often happens is that authors of sites copy from each other, so if inaccurate information is published on one site, it can easily spread to many sites across the Internet. If one makes use of the Internet for research, one must use a developed set of selection criteria that limits one to only the most respected and reputable Web sites. Otherwise, one runs the risk of accepting rumor and misinformation as fact.

This is especially true for Reiki Web sites. Reiki information has been riddled with inaccurate ideas from the beginning of its practice in the West. Many Reiki practitioners, teachers and authors fail to check the accuracy of the information they base their teaching and writing on, and this has had a detrimental effect on the quality of information published both on the Internet and in Reiki books.

The best information on Reiki comes from those who have researched the history and practice of Reiki professionally by conducting research in Japan, reading original documents, and interviewing members of the founding Reiki organization in Japan. If the bishops who wrote the statement on Reiki had interviewed several of these experts, they would have realized that much of the published information on Reiki is inaccurate, and they would have had accurate, verifiable information on which to base their conclusions.

Origin of Reiki

One of the stories told by Mrs. Takata about the origin of Reiki indicates that the founder, Mikao Usui discovered the secret of Reiki in Buddhist texts. This story has been repeated over and over in Reiki classes, on Internet Web sites and in many Reiki books. Yet we know this isn't true. For many years, Mrs. Takata was the only source of information about Reiki for those in the West, and most practitioners accepted her statements without question. Language, cultural, and organizational barriers in Japan made research difficult for those who wanted to learn more about the origins and practice of Reiki. It wasn't until the end of the 90's that a few researchers were able to make breakthroughs.

Researchers, including Toshitaka Mochizuki, Hiroshi Doi and Frank Arjava Petter, made contact with the original Reiki organization, discovered Mikao Usui's grave, translated the story of Reiki inscribed on his memorial stone, and uncovered an original document written by Mikao Usui about the nature of Reiki. These sources indicate that Mikao Usui wasn't seeking to discover a method of healing, but that the ability to heal came to him spontaneously during a spiritual experience on a sacred mountain. Furthermore, in his Reiki Ryoho Hikkei (Reiki Healing Art Handbook), Mikao Usui states: "My Usui Reiki Ryoho (healing art) is original, never before explored, and incomparable in the world." These facts indicate that Reiki couldn't have come from Buddhist texts, nor could it be connected to any religion or belief system. In addition, Japanese Reiki Masters who have knowledge of Buddhism have indicated that they can find nothing from Buddhism in the practice of Reiki and that Reiki is religiously neutral.

The Nature of Reiki Healing

One of the first things I noticed after I took my first Reiki class and began to practice Reiki is that Reiki healing energy directs itself. I was unable to direct it with my mind or will and realized this wasn't necessary as Reiki had its own form of guidance that was superior to my own. This experience has been verified by other professional Reiki practitioners and forms the basis of one of the important keys to using Reiki: If you want Reiki to provide the best healing experience, it's necessary for the practitioner to set their own desire, will and ego aside, and allow the Reiki energy to guide itself.

Scientific Explanation for Reiki

There is a scientific explanation for Reiki that is based on scientific studies and factual information. This explanation has been presented as a testable hypothesis by James Oschman, Ph.D.

Dr. Oschman is a scientist with a conventional background who became interested in the practice of energy medicine. Through research, he discovered a number of important scientific studies that point to a scientific basis for energy medicine based on the laws of physics and biology. These findings are discussed in an interview, "Science and the Human Energy Field," published in the Winter 2002 issue of Reiki News Magazine.

The electrical currents that run through every part of the human body provide the basis for Dr. Oschman's hypothesis. These currents are present in the nervous system, organs, and cells of the body. For instance, the electrical signals that trigger the heartbeat travel throughout all the tissues of the body and can be detected anywhere on the body.

Ampere's law indicates that when an electrical current flows through a conductor, an electromagnetic field is produced that reflects the nature of the current that created it. Tests with scientific instruments indicate that electromagnetic fields exist around the body and around each of the organs of the body, including the brain, heart, kidneys, liver, stomach, etc. The heart has the strongest field, which has been measured at a distance of 15 feet from the body.

The fields around each of the organs pulse at different frequencies and stay within a specific frequency range when they are healthy, but move out of this range when they are unhealthy. The hands of healers produce pulsing electromagnetic fields when they are in the process of healing, whereas the hands of non-healer do not produce these fields. When a healer places his or her hands on or near a person in need of healing, the electromagnetic field of the healer's hands sweeps through a range of frequencies based on the needs of the part of the body being treated. Faraday's law indicates that one electromagnetic field can induce currents into a nearby conductor and through this process, induce a similar field around it. In this way, a healer induces a healthy electromagnetic field around an unhealthy organ, thus inducing a healthy state in the organ. A detailed explanation of this hypothesis, including descriptions of the scientific studies, diagrams, and references is presented in the interview mentioned above.

Acceptance by the Medical Community

Although Reiki is not universally accepted within the medical community, many medical professionals, hospitals, and healthcare facilities recognize its benefits and accept it as an adjunct therapy. In Holistic Nursing, A Handbook for Practice, Chapter 2 "Scope and Standards of Practice," the American Holistic Nursing Association (AHNA) lists Reiki as an accepted form of treatment. In addition, according to the American Hospital Association, in 2007 Reiki was offered as a standard part of patient care in 15% or over 800 hospitals across the US. Doctors have recommended Reiki to their patients for amelioration of various health-related conditions. Surgeons make use of Reiki practitioners prior to, during, and following surgery. As an example, Dr. Mehmet Oz, one of the most respected cardiovascular surgeons in the US, uses Reiki during open-heart surgeries and heart transplants. According to Dr. Oz, "Reiki has become a sought-after healing art among patients and mainstream medical professionals."

Ethical Implications

To refuse Reiki treatment to patients that request it creates an ethical issue. According to the AHNA statement in response to the bishops' statement, the practice of holistic nursing is not subject to regulation by the Catholic church and it would be an ethical violation for a member of the AHNA to withhold Reiki treatment from a patient who requests it; this includes those working in Catholic hospitals.

Scientific Studies

There are a number of reputable scientific studies that provide evidence that Reiki is therapeutic. These studies can be found by using one of the professional medical databases such as PubMed or Cochrane Collection. Studies meeting medical and scientific standards are usually published in peer-reviewed journals. There are over 20 such studies on the therapeutic value of Reiki. A review of some of these studies, "An Integrative Review of Reiki Touch Therapy Research" by Anne Vitale, Ph. D., can be found at <http://www.nursingcenter.com/pdf.asp?AID=732068>. While the Reiki studies conducted to date are preliminary in nature, they do provide support for additional studies.

One well-designed Reiki study is "Autonomic Nervous-System-Changes During Reiki Treatment: A Preliminary Study." Forty-five subjects were assigned randomly to three groups. One group received no treatment, another received Reiki treatment by experienced Reiki practitioners, and the third group received sham treatment by a person with no Reiki training who used the same hand positions as those receiving real Reiki.

Measurements were made of heart rate, cardiac vagal tone, blood pressure, cardiac sensitivity to baroreflex, and breathing. Heart rate and diastolic blood pressure decreased significantly for those receiving Reiki, but not for those receiving sham Reiki, or no treatment. This study indicates that the body does respond to Reiki energy and that this response isn't purely psychological. It also indicates a potential therapeutic effect for Reiki.

“Reiki Improves Heart Rate Homeostasis in Laboratory Rats” is another valuable study. The value of using animals in this type of study is that they are not affected by belief or skepticism regarding Reiki. In addition, highly accurate telemetric implants were used to transmit the biometric data. White noise was used to increase the heart rate of three implanted laboratory rats. The rats were treated by a Reiki practitioner and by a sham Reiki practitioner prior to being exposed to white noise and after exposure. The procedure involved the practitioner directing their hands toward the caged rat at a distance of four feet. The rats that received Reiki experienced a significant reduction in heart rate, both before having their heart rates elevated by white noise and after, whereas those treated with sham Reiki did not. This is one of the most rigorous Reiki studies to date and demonstrates that Reiki reduces the heart rate in both stressed and unstressed animals and promotes homeostasis, both of which promote healthy heart function.

Reiki is practiced by followers of many religious traditions. Although some practitioners integrate Reiki into their existing religious beliefs, Reiki is not a religion, doctrine, or dogma. Reiki is grounded in the principle of compassionate action, which is common to all religious traditions. While each religion has the right to create its own rules, it's within the nature of human dignity and free will for each person to decide which path to follow and what activities are appropriate for them.

The Capricorn Told Me True

The Capricorn told me true,
He knows the path...
The owls' secrets told in the midnight blue,
Revealed to you.
Under the great oak my tears are shed,
For lost worlds...
For memories put to bed.
And the Capricorn smiles
Down on me. He knows...
Through howling wind
I walk the path...
And the trees, they line the way
Whispering to me.
They hold the key.
Ancient knowledge deep in my bones.
And the Capricorn waits for me,
Under the singing stones.
He knows...
Enfolded in his arms under the midnight skies,
He gently places kisses upon my weary eyes.
The truth is in my bones.
Revealed beneath the singing stones.
And the wind plays with my hair
Beneath the owls wise stare.
The Capricorn told me true

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystal High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at

May You Blessed Be

Krystal

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: wwwcw@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,
The Order of Web Weavers
