Today's Featured Shrine

The Personal Shrine of The Circle of Sacred Feather Keeper, Rev. Robin Roe Griffith

Shrine Sigil

Circle of the Sacred Feathers is a free form Wiccan-Pagan-Earth based, Spiritual Circle - like a family. - we have occasional participants and regular inner circle participants.

We reside mainly in the California Central Coast - Hollister, Monterey, Salinas, Aromas, Santa Cruz - South SF Bay Area, but we also hail from all corners of the world. We also try to have active networking connections into other parts of our "Communities" around us.

This group aims to be NON-judgmental, NON-controlling, and we believe in nurturing and teaching each other and ourselves. You Teach Me, I Teach You. Very simple!

Today's Date in the Wheel of the Year

29 October

Iroquois Feast of the Dead

A Native American festival akin to All Soul's Day (November 2) of the Christian tradition. Traditionally held every 12 years in honour of departed loved ones, the dead are reinterred and revered, with a huge grave dug and lined with beaver skins.

Rebirth: Scarlet macaw, Mayan calendar

Mayan: This day begins the Uinal of Rebirth, the eleventh of the 20-day Uinals in the current cycle of the Tzolkin, or 260-day calendar (6 Imix, Tzolkin 201). The symbolic bird for this uinal is the Scarlet Macaw, the energy principle that of flowering.

The Isia, for Isis, ancient Egypt, second day (Oct 28 - Nov 3). The second day is called the Zetesis and Heuresis. Professional singers, musicians, and dancers, mostly female, performed at the temple during the Isia.

This and much more can be found in our new group

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/DeitiesCelebrations/>

We will be posting information here in the Correllian Herald on Mondays and Thursdays for that date. For daily and monthly information on Gods, Goddesses and Celebrations the World over, please feel free to join the group. If you have anything to add to the files they are welcome, too! We look forward to seeing you there!

Veterinary Notes – F is for fireworks

The firework season is upon us again and unfortunately many animals, both pets and wildlife are very frightened by the lights and noise. There are a number of things that you can do to protect your pets and to help those with firework phobias.

- Keep your pets indoors. Bring any outdoor animals, rabbits etc. close to the house and cover the front of the hutch with an old bit of carpet or sacking to block out the lights. Take your dog for a walk before dusk and make sure the cats are safe inside.
- Draw the curtains and put on the television or music to mask some of the noise.
- If your animal shows fear don't comfort him, hard though that is. By comforting him you are telling him that it is right to be scared. So carry on as normal and the animal will feel more secure
- Make sure the animal does have a (sensible) place to hide if it wants to, ideally somewhere accessible for you.
- If you know your animal has a firework phobia, invite another dog who is totally blasé about fireworks along to "play". The phobic one will often pick up on the cues from the other and lose its fear.
- Keep your dog occupied with activities to distract it.
- Use a DAP vapouriser. These are available from veterinary practices and work like plug-in air fresheners. They release Dog Appeasing Pheromone, a calming pheromone secreted by dogs that is useful in any unsettling situation be it fireworks, arrival in a new home, new puppy just away from Mum etc. As with any plug-in device, make sure it is clear of potentially flammable objects.
- Use homoeopathic and similar remedies – ideally begin before dusk and repeat every half hour through the evening, increasing the frequency of dosing if the animal shows extreme fear. A list of remedies is given below
- Sedatives may be obtained from your vet. Unfortunately, with the now extended firework season sedatives are of less value because it is not advisable to keep an animal sedated for days on end.

Natural Remedies:

Bach Rescue Remedy

Homoeopathic Aconite 30C

Homoeopathic Argentum Nitrum 30C (if suffers from diarrhoea)

Homoeopathic Pulsatilla 30C (if clingy)

Homoeopathic phosphorus 30C (if hyper-energetic)

Homoeopathic Gelsemium 30C (if shaking and trembling)

Homoeopathic remedies are available as tablets or drops. If you cannot find them locally contact Ainsworths, the large homoeopathic pharmacy in London that also has internet sales.

A good mix would be rescue remedy plus aconite plus the most appropriate one from the other 4 remedies above. They are safe and overdose is not possible. Some trial and error may be needed to find the best mix for any individual. Don't give with strong tasting foods as they inactivate the medicine.

By Rev. Mehitabel. [Mehitabel is a qualified vet with many years experience]

Samhain is the winter season of the ancient Celts. The Celts divided the year into four quarters: Samhain (winter), Imbolc (spring), Beltane (summer), and Lughnasadh (autumn). The Celtic year began in November, with Samhain.

The Celts were influenced principally by the lunar and stellar cycles which governed the agricultural year - beginning and ending in autumn when the crops have been harvested and the soil is prepared for the winter. Pronunciation differs radically between different groups of Celtic language speakers. The word Samhain is probably derived from the Irish Gaelic word "samhraidhreach", or "summer's end". Samhain is also known as Calan Gaeaf to the Welsh. Bealtaine, Lúnasa and Samhain are still today the names of the months of May, August and November in the Irish language.

Samhain Eve, in Irish, Oidhche Shamhna, is one of the principal festivals of the Celtic calendar, and is thought to fall on or around the 31st of October. It represents the final harvest. In modern Ireland, the name by which Halloween is known in the Irish language is still "Oíche Shamhna".

Bonfires played a large part in the festivities. Villagers cast the bones of the slaughtered cattle upon the flames. (the word bonfire is thought to derive from these "bone fires.") With the bonfire ablaze, the villagers extinguished all other fires. Each family then solemnly lit their hearth from the common flame, thus bonding the families of the village together.

Like most Celtic festivals, it was celebrated on a number of levels. Materially speaking it was the time of gathering food for the long winter months ahead, bringing people and their livestock in to their winter quarters. To be alone and missing at this dangerous time was to expose yourself and your spirit to the perils of imminent winter. In present times the importance of this part of the festival has diminished for most people. From the point of view of a tribal people for whom a bad season meant facing a long winter of famine in which many would not survive to the spring, it was paramount.

Samhain was also a time for contemplation. Death was never very far away, yet to die was not the tragedy it is in modern times. Of signal importance to the Celts people was to die with honour and to live in the memory of the tribe and be honoured at the great feast (in Ireland this would have been the Fleadh nan Mairbh (Feast of the Dead)) which took place on Samhain Eve.

This was the most magical time of the year; Samhain was the day which did not exist. During the night the great shield of Skathach was lowered, allowing the barriers between the worlds to fade and the forces of chaos to invade the realms of order, the material world conjoining with the world of the dead. At this time the spirits of the dead and those yet to be born walked amongst the living. The dead could return to the places where they had lived and food and entertainment were provided in their honour. In this way the tribes were at one with its past, present and future. This aspect of the festival was never totally subdued by Christianity.

On the level of cosmic event, the rising of Pleiades, the winter stars, heralds the supremacy of night over day, the dark half ruled by the realms of the moon.

In the three days preceding the Samhain month the Sun God, Lugh, maimed at Lughnassadh, dies by the hand of his Tanist (his other self), the Lord of Misrule. Lugh traverses the boundaries of the worlds on the first day of Samhain. His Tanist is a miser and though he shines brightly in the winter skies he gives no warmth, and does not temper the breath of the Crone, Cailleach Bheare, the north wind. In this may be discerned the ageless battle between the light and dark and the cyclic nature of life and the seasons. In parts of western Brittany Samhain is still heralded by the baking of kornigou. Kornigou are cakes baked in the shape of antlers to commemorate the god of winter shedding his "cuckold" horns as he returns to his kingdom in the Otherworld.

When the Romans made contact with the Celts, they added their feast of the dead to Samhain. The Christians subverted the recognition of Samhain to honor the saints, as All Saint's Day on November 1st and named October 31 as All Hallows' Eve. This latter became a secular holiday by the name of Hallowe'en. Although using different nomenclatures, all of these festivals and feasts are celebrating the accessibility, veneration, awe, and respect of the dead.

The Order of Web Weavers Crystal Web Mapping Project

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalog your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: www@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly cataloged we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,
The Order of Web Weavers
