Multi-faith Calendar

Multifaith Calendar – Coming up:

18th January – Week of Prayer for Christian Unity (start)

First celebrated in 1908. The days of 18-25 January (regardless of the days of the week involved) were originally chosen because they covered the days between the feast of St Peter and the feast of St Paul. Some churches and regions use a different week.

20th January – Vasant Panchami (Hindu)

Dedicated to Saraswati, the goddess of learning and Brahma's wife. The festival marks the beginning of Spring.

Head Voodoo Priest Protests Haiti's Mass Burials, Fear of Zombies

The head Voodoo priest of Haiti is sickened by the desecration of dead bodies, as they are unceremoniously collected off of the city streets and hurled into mass graves. In a nation where many people practice Voodoo, the supernatural prospect of Zombies rising from the mass graves to prey on the living, is a real fear. Since a powerful earthquake flattened the poor Caribbean nation of Haiti into mounds of rubble on Tuesday, the shocked survivors have roamed the streets littered with rotting corpses and the overwhelming stench of death. In a nation without an infrastructure during the best of times, the earthquake has not only destroyed most of the buildings in the capital city, and killed tens of thousands of people; it also wiped out what little government existed. Haitian President Rene Preval is homeless and has taken up residence at the police station.

To deal with the tens of thousands of dead bodies littering the streets, Haitian authorities and UN officials are loading the stiff corpses into dusty dump truck hearses and dumping them in mass graves on the outskirts of Port-au-Prince.

The grim sight of twisted human bodies being unloaded from the back of a municipal dump truck into a gaping hole leaves a lasting impression, on anyone who witnesses it. MezenDieu Juste, an elderly Haitian man watching the mass burial was devastated by the horror before him. "We have lost any dignity in death," he said.

The Red Cross has estimated the death toll at about 50,000, but Haitian officials have predicted the final tally could reach 200,000. However, the final number will never be known, because the nameless dead filling up the mass graves have not been counted.

Because of the fears of the spread of an epidemic from the bloated dead bodies, authorities are working quickly to clear the city streets of the dead. And the sheer number of dead bodies has left few options for burial, other than mass graves.

But it's heartbreaking. Haitian survivors may never learn of the true fate and resting place of their loved ones. The Pan American Health Organization (PAHO) says that such mass burials "add to the burden of suffering already experienced by survivors."

"The worst part of this is that these actions are taken without respecting the processes of identifying and preserving bodies, something that not only goes against cultural norms and religious beliefs but also has social, psychological, emotional, economic and legal consequences that add to the suffering directly caused by the disaster," said PAHO.

And the nation's chief Voodoo priest, Max Beauvoir is strongly objecting to the horrific mass burials on religious grounds. He met with President Rene Preval over the weekend to officially lodge his protest on behalf of the many Voodoo worshipers in Haiti. "It is not in our culture to bury people in such a fashion," Beauvoir said.

Before the country was decimated by the earthquake, about half of the 9 million residents of Haiti practiced Voodoo, which is a mix of Christianity and elements of West African paganism and animism. Although, about 80 percent of Haitians are also Catholic, they somehow blend Voodooism into their worship of God, without finding a conflict between the two practices.

Max Beauvoir who was educated at City College in New York and the Sorbonne in Paris, was recently chosen as the Voodoo Supreme Master. Beauvoir believes that Voodooism has a role to play in Haiti's revival. In his Voodoo temple in Port-au-Prince before the earthquake's destruction, Beauvoir and his followers held frequent ceremonies to summon the spirits. They would light blazing bonfires and dance around a giant totem poll. And ceremonies would end with animal sacrifices and the draining of their blood.

"The conditions in which bodies are being buried is not respecting the dignity of these people," the Voodoo Supreme Leader told President Preval. Many Haitians believe that the desecration of their loved ones could lead to the dead roaming the earth again as Zombies.

In a 2008 New York Times piece profiling Max Beauvoir, soon after he was chosen as the Supreme Voodoo Master, he ridiculed Hollywood's treatment of Zombies as scary monsters. Beauvoir believes Zombies to be a very real element of Voodoo science.

Whatever beliefs one holds, the mass burials are a grim consequence of the earthquake's devastation of the country and the destruction of the Haitian people's dignity.

Celtic Myths & Legends

Celtic otherworld 1

The "Otherworld" was a domain of Celtic deities or supernatural beings such as the "Fairy People". The Otherworld was considered to be the Celtic version of heaven (or even hell to most Christian writers).

They were hidden from mortal eyes by strong Otherworld magic. They were situated in all sort of places. Some of these Otherworlds were located on the islands, the dunes, dun-hills, forests, rivers, and lakes. A grand castle or even humble cottage could be the Otherworld, which would, appeared at night for mortals, but would probably vanish in the morning.

Normal rule does not apply in the Otherworld. A year may seem to pass in the Otherworld, but in the real world centuries may have passed. Time seemed to have stand still. Nor does the people who live there, aged like mortals. They seemed to remain forever young.

The Otherworld also seemed to be able to move from one location to another. Or there may be only one Otherworld but it exist everywhere. In another word, the Otherworld is a paradox. Entering the enchanted place, may be close by or it could be a place far away.

Irish Otherworld

Originally, the Otherworld, particularly the Irish myths, was sometimes situated on some remote islands in the west. Later the Otherworld was located on Ireland itself, but mostly hidden from mortal eyes by strong otherworldly magic.

There were several strange, mythical places of where this Otherworld was located. There was the "Land of Youth", called Tír na nÓg in Irish Gaelic. It was the home of Danu and the other Irish deities known as the Tuatha Dé Danann, which means the "People of the Goddess Danu". It was said to be situated in some distant land, possibly an island or group of islands.

Tír na nÓg has four magical cities: Falias, Gorias, Finias and Murias. In each city, was a magical treasure or talisman, which the Tuatha Dé Danann received when they settled in Ireland. (See Treasures of Tuatha Dé Danann in the Book of Invasion.) Also residing in each city was a druid. These four druids taught the Tuatha Dé Danann knowledge and skills. They were named (See the Druids of Danu in the new Druids page.)

Below is the table with the name of cities in Tír na nÓg, together with the druids and treasures they possessed.

| | | | | |
|------------------|--|---|----------------------|---|
| Cities | Falias | Gorias | Murias | Findias |
| Druids | Morfesa | Estras | Semias | Uiscias |
| Treasures | Lia Fail ("Stone of Destiny") | Gáe Assail (Spear of Lugh) | Cauldron of Dagda | Freagarthach ("Answerer" – sword of Nuada) |

The Otherworld located on several areas in Ireland was hidden by magic, in a subterranean fortress called Sid, Sidh or Sidhe. The word Sidhe (sid or sidh) means "Fairy Rath" or "Fairy Fort". The Tuatha Dé Danann were sometimes called áes sídhe, which is the "People of the Sídh". The Tuatha Dé Danann retreated here after they were vanquished by the Milesians.

The Irish Otherworld was also called Tech Duinn – "House of Donn" or "House of the Dead". Donn was the Irish god of the dead. For some reason, the location of Tech Duinn is often linked to the province of Munster.

There was also the Tir Tairngire – "Land of Promise", said to be home and realm of the sea-god Manannn Mac Lir. Here was where Lugh was brought up. Tir Tairngire is often translated into Emain Ablach.

There is said to be underwater Otherworld, known as Tir fo Thuinn.

The "Land of the Dead" became associated with Spain, where the Milesians come from. While the "Land of the Living" (or the "Land of the Happy Dead") was said to be situated somewhere west of Ireland. It was said to be on some island in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, and it was originally the home of the Partholarians.

Quote & Thought of the Day

Quote of the Day:

*What you see
is evidence of what you believe.
Believe it and you'll see it.*

Dr Wayne W Dyer

Source: <http://www.sapphyr.net/>

Thought of the day:

Turn around

When you discover that you're feeling negative, you have two choices. You can feel even more negative about the fact that you're feeling negative, or you can choose to turn your thoughts around.

When you've suffered a defeat, you can make it even worse by beating yourself up about it. Or, you can use it as a positive inspiration to turn yourself around and move forward in a more effective way.

The moment you realize you've strayed from the path, use that realization as a clear and compelling signal. Use it as a signal that it's time to re-commit to the original goal and get yourself back on track.

Sure, it's unfortunate that you've temporarily lost your way. But there's no reason to add to that misfortune.

In this moment, you can choose any direction, no matter what has just happened. So choose a positive, empowering direction that will bring out the best in you.

This is your opportunity to act with renewed determination and purpose. Turn around, and get yourself going forward again.

A Tale of Project Sanctuary

Pilot 5

I was happily exploring the Serona Market in the energy lands when a pixie appeared before me with the message that there was a soul in need of urgent help. Pausing only to purchase a healing blanket from one of the stalls, and with the pixie now sat upon my shoulder, I set off in search of this soul.

We travelled through a green and verdant land filled with huge trees and plants. The air was hot and very damp like a tropical rain forest. The trees were filled with brightly coloured birds, and I could hear the rustling of animals in the undergrowth and overhead. We came to a wide fast flowing river and paused, for the call seemed to come from under the river-bed itself.

“There must be a way through” I mumbled, half to myself and half to my pixie friend. I walked along the bank of the river until I came to a hollow log stuck into the bank. It looked an unlikely entrance but this was where the call was strongest. Poking the hollow log to see if I could squeeze through it, I brushed a release mechanism and the log rolled back to reveal a flight of stone steps heading downward.

We started down the stairs, and behind us I heard the log roll back into place. The tunnel was lit by a phosphorescent glow and the walls were a polished grey stone. Reaching level ground we continued onwards until we came to a mirror of polished stone. Through this I could see a woman, lying curled in a foetal position and sobbing. I touched the mirror and realised that it was not solid, and I stepped through and hurried towards the woman. I knelt beside her and laid the healing rug over her. Touching her shoulder I told her that I was here to help and asked her to tell me about herself. Through hysterical hiccups, she told me that she had been in a car on the motorway when a lorry crossed the central reservation and came towards them. She had been travelling with her son and daughter and she didn't know where they were or what had happened to them. She heard a crash and found herself here in this cave. She told me that her name was Mary, and she asked me to find her children. I helped her to her feet and told her I would take her somewhere where she could rest while I searched for her children.

Creating an energy door, I passed through it and emerged in a pretty valley by a wooden summer house. I led Mary inside, settled her in a chair and made her some tea and a soup with herbs that would relax her and calm her. Introducing her to my pixie friend who was, by this time, becoming decidedly irritated at being ignored, I left them together, and set off in search of the children.

I suspected that, while Mary had perished in the accident, her children were still alive, and so I headed for the fringes of this land and the hospital nearest the scene of the accident. Sure enough, I found the son and daughter in different wards where they were being treated for broken limbs and other injuries. Neither was in intensive care and it was certain that both would recover. The distraught father was rushing between them and it was clear that he had not yet broken the news about their mother.

Taking three amulets from my robes I placed one in each bed, and the third into the father's pocket. Although not visible through physical eyes, these amulets would exert a healing and soothing effect, helping this family to come to terms with the tragedy and to become stronger as a result. Even as I watched, the tense expression on the father's face relaxed a little.

Taking my leave, I headed back to the summer house and Mary. She was looking a little better and was being entertained by the pixie who enjoying himself spinning tales. Sitting down beside her I told her that her children had been injured but were recovering well, and that her husband was safe. Gently, I explained that she had departed the physical realm, but that she would meet her family again one day. She asked if she could see them once more, so I fetched a bowl of water to act as a viewing screen, and allowed her to glimpse them one last time.

I led her outside and along a path that took us up the hill. As we reached the top and looked across the valley, a mist descended and then coalesced to form a translucent bridge heading up into the sky. Holding her hand, I guided her onto the bridge and upwards towards the clouds. The bridge ended in a golden land of sun, and flowers and green fields, a land of warmth, love and happiness. As she stepped off the bridge I could see the land working its magic for she already looked calmer and more at peace. A group of people moved towards her, and it was clear that she recognised them. This was my cue to leave, and I transported myself back to the market, leaving Mary in the care of those who loved her.

Stonehenge Bones may be Evidence of Winter Solstice Feasts

Sheffield University archaeologists believe enigmatic prehistoric monument was used for ritual banquets on special occasions.

Some 4,500 years ago, as the solstice sun rose on Stonehenge, it is very likely that a midwinter feast would already have been roasting on the cooking fires.

Experts believe that huge midwinter feasts were held in that period at the site and a startling picture is now emerging of just how far cattle were moved for the banquet. Recent analysis of the cattle and pig bones from the era found in the area suggests the cattle used were walked hundreds of miles to be slaughtered for the solstice celebrations – from the west country or west Wales.

Professor Mike Parker Pearson of the University of Sheffield and his team have just won a grant of £800,000 from the Arts and Humanities Research Council, to answer some of the riddles about the enigmatic prehistoric monument.

The grant is to fund Feeding Stonehenge, his follow-up research on the wealth of material, including animal bones, pottery and plant remains, which they found in recent excavations at Durrington Walls, a few miles from the stone circle – a site which Parker Pearson believes key to understanding why Stonehenge was built and how it was used.

His team fully excavated some huts but located the foundations of scores more, the largest neolithic settlement in Britain. To his joy it was a prehistoric tip, "the filthiest site known in Britain", as he dubbed it.

"I've always thought when we admire monuments like Stonehenge, not enough attention has been given to who made the sandwiches and the cups of tea for the builders," said Parker Pearson.

"The logistics of the operation were extraordinary. Not just food for hundreds of people but antler picks, hide ropes, all the infrastructure needed to supply the materials and supplies needed. Where did they get all this food from? This is what we hope to discover."

Stonehenge was begun almost 5,000 years ago with a ditch and earth bank, and developed over 1,000 years, with the circle of bluestones brought from the Preseli hills in west Wales, and the double decker bus sized sarsen stones.

It was too early for the Phoenicians, the Romans or the largely mythical Celtic druids. The Anglo Saxons believed Stonehenge was the work of a race of lost giants, and a 12th-century historian explained that Merlin flew the huge stones from Ireland.

It has been explained as a place of druidic sacrifice, a stone computer, a place of witchcraft and magic, a tomb, a temple or a solar calendar. It is aligned on both the summer and winter solstice, crucial dates which told prehistoric farmers that the time of harvest was coming, or the shortest day of winter past.

Although not all archaeologists agree – Geoff Wainwright and Tim Darvill have dubbed Stonehenge the stone age Lourdes, a place of healing by the magic bluestones – Parker Pearson believes it was a place of the dead, while Durrington Walls, with its wooden henge, was the place of its living builders, and the generations who came to feast, and carry out rituals for their dead, moving from Durrington to the nearby river and on by the great processional avenue to Stonehenge.

He found no evidence that Durrington was permanently inhabited or farmed, and the first tests on the pig and cattle bones support his theory that it was a place where people gathered for short periods on special occasions.

The pigs were evidently slaughtered at mid-winter, and he expects the cattle bones to back this. What the sample already tested shows is that they were slaughtered immediately after arrival, after travelling immense distances.

"We are going to know so much about the lives of the people who built Stonehenge," Parker Pearson said, "how they lived, what they ate, where they came from."

Poets Retreat

Like a Butterfly

Like a butterfly
I want to fly
I want to flap and spread my wings
From branch to branch
From flower to flower

Like a butterfly
I am tender and fragile
I am the promise of the future
Whose life is now bleak

In the streets of the city
Children vanish
In the homes
Children are abused and killed
In the schools
Children are beaten and molested
By those they trust

Like a butterfly
With wings cut
I cannot fly
I cannot not flap and spread my wings
From flower to flower

Instead...
I stand chained
My dreams and aspirations
Long lost
My future
Uncertain

Like a butterfly
Wings without
I cry for freedom
Freedom from child labour
Freedom from sexual exploitation
Freedom from discrimination

Like a butterfly
A beautiful butterfly
With wings outstretched
With wings flapping
I will fly away
Displaying my beautiful colours

To all and sundry
I know I will
I am the hope of the child
I am the butterfly
The beautiful butterfly
With beautiful colours.

Announcement

Healing Ritual for Haiti

Merry Meet All,

I feel the ritual went very well. Many thanks to all who assisted in spreading the word and / or participated. The energy was amazing and awe-inspiring.

I also have been thinking about another go in a week. I believe that more time to prepare and get the word out will also add people and energy to the ritual.

I will speak with Lord Don about scheduling the ritual again for 23 Jan 10. Was the time of day okay for most people? Do we need to make any adjustments?

Also, I have been contacted by a reporter who is asking about the areas where people participated. I honestly have no idea.. If you know of people that participated in a certain country, or state, or province, etc... please YIM me at wizardsapothecary and let me know.

Thanks again to who assisted. Look for another announcement very soon.

Blessings,

Terry

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: www@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,
The Order of Web Weavers

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at krystelneuman@yahoo.com

May You Blessed Be
Krystel
