Celtic Otherworlds

Welsh Otherworld

The Welsh called their Otherworld – Annwn Annwfn or Annwyn. Arawn ruled this Otherworld kingdom. The hero Pwyll of Dyved was allowed to rule Annwfn (Annwvyn) for one year, before he returned to his own world.

According to the early Welsh poem, titled Spoils of Annwfn (Preiddiau Annwfn), Arthur and his followers went to a number of otherworlds, seeking to steal the a magic cauldron.

The journey probably ended in disaster, since only seven had survived and it wasn't clear if they had gained the cauldron or not.

Another popular name for Welsh Otherworld, was the Caer Wydyr or Caer Wydr – the "Fortress of Glass". Caer Wydyr is similar to Tower of Glass in the Arthurian Legend, but located in Glastonbury Tor, England. Glastonbury Tor was supposed to be the location of the "Isle of Avalon" or "Isle of Apples", the finally resting place of King Arthur.

In Welsh myths, however, the Arthurian Avalon was derived from the name Ynys Afallon.

Arthurian Otherworld

Also in British and Welsh, particularly those concerning King Arthur, such as the Isle of Avalon, the domain of the Lady of the Lake and the Grail Castle, can all be considered to be Celtic Otherworld.

Avalon was like the "Isles of the Blessed", has been called "Isle of Apples". Avalon was derived from the name, Ynys Afallon, in the Welsh myth.

When King Arthur was mortally wounded, his half-sister, Morgan le Fay, writers say that she brought the king to Avalon, to be healed. Geoffrey of Monmouth, mentioned Morgan le Fay as one of nine sisters who were also great sorceresses and they lived in Avalon, but Geoffrey does not connect her being Arthur's sister. See Battle of Camlann (Early Traditions) and Twilight of the Kingdom, for a few different variations about the episode of death of Arthur and Avalon.

Layamon wrote that the Avalon was ruled by elf-queen named Argante, who could be another name for Morgan, since later authors had often called her the ruler of Avalon. In Erec and Enide (c. 1165), Chretien de Troyes wrote that one of the wedding guests was Guingamar. Guingamar was the lord of Avalon and a friend of Morgan le Fay.

In the early thirteenth century, some believed that Avalon was situated in Glastonbury. The monks or priests in Glastonbury wrote their own version of the Grail legend, called Le Haut Livre du Graal or Perlesvaus. They even claimed that Arthur and Guinevere were buried in Glastonbury.

Gerald of Wales, who wrote his Tour of Wales in the late 12th century, had visited the site and also believed that Glastonbury was the burial sites of Arthur. Glastonbury was situated on the island in the middle of a marshland. Most contemporaries and modern scholars were sceptical about these claims of the Avalon/Glastonbury connection.

Glastonbury Tor was also sometimes called the "Isle of Glass" or "Tower of Glass". The name is similar to the Welsh Caer Wydyr or "Fortress of Glass".

Another famous Arthurian Otherworld was the domain of the Lady of the Lake. Some say her home was an underwater palace, while others say that the lake was only a powerful illusion to hide her home from intruders.

The heroes and cousins, Lancelot and Bors were brought up in her home. Lancelot gained the name Lancelot of the Lake, because of his association with the Lady of the Lake. (See Lady of the Lake in Lancelot du Lac.)

It was the Lady of the Lake who gave Arthur the Otherworldly sword, Excalibur. (see Legend of Excalibur)

The magical forest and spring of the Lady of the Fountain could also be considered to be an Otherworld. The water in the spring looked like it was boiling as it bubbles, yet the water was actually cold. Pouring the water from a golden bowl on to huge marble stone would cause an immediate storm to lash the forest and the Lady's castle.

Some Otherworld may look like paradise, but was actually some elaborate prison. As in the case of the Valley of No Return (Le Val Sans Retour). Here, no knight could leave the land, if he had ever been unfaithful to his true love. The entire valley was like paradise, where valley was green and there was always plenty of water, even though it never rain. There was always feasting and dancing. Lancelot broke the spell, because he had always been true to love - his love for Guinevere.

A rare glimpse of the cave of crystals

Mexico's Cave of Crystals stunned geologists when it was first discovered in 2000. The underground chamber contains some of the largest natural crystals ever found - some of the selenite structures have grown to more than 10m long. Professor Iain Stewart got a rare glimpse of the subterranean spectacle while filming for the new BBC series How the Earth Made Us.

We kept on being told how difficult it was going to be to film in the Naica Cave, but nothing really prepares you for the extremes of that cavern.

It's about 50C in there, but it's the virtually 100% humidity added on top that makes it a potential killer.

That combination means that when you breathe air into your body, the surface of your lungs is actually the coolest surface the air encounters. That means the fluid starts to condense inside your lungs - and that's really not good news.

When the cave was first discovered it was just an accident.

Miners working in the Naica silver mine broke through the walls of the cavern and were astounded to discover these enormous crystals - the biggest anywhere on Earth.

But when the first people went in to explore, they were almost overcome by the conditions - and there's some pretty hairy video footage of them coming out of the cave on the verge of losing consciousness. So we knew the dangers were real.

When you first look at the kit your first thought is: "Is that it?"

There's a special cooling suit - which is basically like a suit of chain mail but filled with ice cubes.

Then there's a breathing system which feeds cool, dry air into your mask.

It's OK to take the mask off for a short while, but do without it for more than about 10 minutes, and it's likely that you're going to start keeling over.

I was lucky of course. All I had to do was stand there and talk, but the cameraman and all the others helping set out the lights were having to work in these conditions, wearing these cumbersome suits, and they really struggled.

We had a doctor outside the cave to monitor our vital signs, and we were coming out of the cavern with our heart rates up at 180.

The biggest danger was falling over; rescuing someone inside would have been very tricky. Despite all the dangers, my overwhelming memory is the sheer beauty of the place. Whenever people around me were faffing around with equipment, I'd just stop and look around at the crystals.

It's such a glorious place, it's like being in a modern art exhibit.

I kept reminding myself: "You're in the Naica Cave", because there's only a handful of geologists that have ever been in there, and so I was aware of how incredibly privileged I was. Yet remarkably, for the people who own and run the Naica mine, the crystal cave is a side-show, a distraction.

They don't make any money out of it and sooner or later, when the economics of the mine change, it will close.

The pumps will be taken out, the mine and the cave will flood, and the crystals will once more be out of our reach.

But perhaps we should console ourselves with the thought that there are certainly lots more crystal caves waiting to be discovered.

For starters, the geology of the area around the cave suggests that there could be more crystal caves in the area around Naica.

But more broadly, the Earth's crust must be riddled with wonders like this.

We know more about the outer edges of the Solar System than we do about the first kilometre of the Earth's crust.

As we learn more about the crust, we can be sure that there will be discoveries even more spectacular than Naica. I just hope I'm around to see them.

Quote & Thought of the Day

Quote of the Day:

Cut not the wings of your dreams, for they are the heartbeat and the freedom of your soul.

Flavia

Source: <http://www.sapphyr.net/>

Thought of the day:

Do it well

In whatever you do, do it well. When you make the effort, give your best to it.

You cannot cheat life, so don't bother trying. If you compromise your integrity, it will quickly drain away and you'll always regret the loss.

When you do what you do, do what is right. Even though you think no one will ever know, you will always know.

You will know, and that makes all the difference. For real confidence comes from a job well done, and confidence is worth more than gold.

It doesn't have to be perfect, though the closer you can get, the better. What you must always do, in whatever you do, is your best.

The quality of what you experience in life depends on the quality of what you give to life. Make it good, make it right, make it honest, and add real, lasting value to your world.

The real-life tragedy of a deer called Bambi: Doe shot by police after wandering into a garden

A young deer named Bambi has been shot by police after it wandered into a garden. The doe was killed over fears it could endanger motorists if it ran on to a nearby main road.

But officers were criticised by the woman who hand-reared the animal and named it after the Disney deer.

Owner Tracey Stentiford pictured with Bambi and the family dog at their farm before police shot the deer

Tracey Stentiford said a tranquiliser dart should have been used or the road blockaded while attempts were made to restrain the two-year-old red deer.

Miss Stentiford found the animal when it was a baby and bottle-fed milk till it was old enough to fend for itself.

But Bambi refused to leave and became a permanent fixture around their farm in Shirwell, North Devon.

Earlier this month she trotted into the garden of a property in Pilton raising concerns she might run out on to a dual carriageway.

A member of North Devon Animal Ambulance charity was called who then called the police and a vet.

After a five-hour operation to try to restrain Bambi, a decision was eventually made to shoot her.

Mother-of-two Miss Stentiford said: 'We are devastated at what happened to Bambi and just feel that the easy option was taken when more should have been done to save her.'

'I appreciate there were concerns about her getting on to the dual carriageway but why wasn't she tranquilised with a dart, or surely the police could have blockaded the road for a little while as it was a Sunday and there wouldn't have been too much traffic?'

The tragic tale bears more than a passing resemblance to Disney's 1942 film Bambi, after which the doe was named

Diana Lewis from the NDAA said: 'Sadly and with much regret it was decided on the grounds of public safety that the deer had to be put down as a tranquiliser dart could have taken up to six minutes to take effect and in that time she could have caused carnage if she had got on the main road.'

A Devon and Cornwall Police spokesman said the doe was shot as a last resort.

A spokesman said: 'Having weighed up the potential dangers of what could have happened should the deer have got on the dual carriageway, this was seen as the only option.'

'Destroying an animal in this way is done as humanely as possible and is very rare.'

Last month a bullock was shot dead after it escaped from an abattoir on to busy streets in Balsall Heath in Birmingham.

Roads were closed as the animal charged around the streets and a vet was called out, along with firearms police officers.

A West Midlands police spokesman said at the time: 'The vet's assessment was it would be too dangerous to tranquillize, due to the animal being unpredictable and it being a busy built-up area, so the decision was made to destroy the animal to ensure public safety.'

The bullock died instantly and the roads were reopened, she said.

The Secret to Understanding Zen Meditation

Anmol Mehta

The key to understanding Zen Buddhism is to understand the phrase "I don't know." In this phrase is hidden the secrets of Zen and Zen Meditation. At first glance this may seem counter intuitive or just a play on words, but I assure you that is not the case. This is really the essence of Zen and once you grasp what is being implied here, all the Zen teachings will start to make sense.

The problem, according to Zen is not "not-knowing", it is in fact knowing too much. What needs to be qualified here is the type of knowledge that is being referred to. There is knowledge that is factual, such as the distance to the moon or the elemental makeup of water, but the knowledge that is being indicated here, is the knowledge having to do with our security and happiness. In other words, all that we know about what we ought to be doing to get out of life maximum happiness, is the knowledge that we need to purge ourselves of.

For ease of communication I will call this knowledge "Emotional Knowledge", as it relates to how we need to go about increasing pleasure/happiness and decreasing pain/sorrow. This Emotional Knowledge, Zen is saying, is what drives us to endlessly seek and endlessly be restless. In other words, having accepted innumerable theories on how we need our life to be in order to be happy, we are caught in a cycle of endless desire chasing these goals. Zen says, drop Emotional Knowledge or at least don't emphasize it and instead just be open to the moment and meet the challenge of life which is right under your nose.

It is very hard to really say "I Don't Know." All kinds of theories, beliefs, ideologies, philosophies have been forced into us since we were impressionable children, which now dominate our mind and lives. We feel we need to do this or that in order to get this or that, which at the end will make us happy. Unfortunately, this approach has failed. Human beings always get used to what they have and then inevitably start to demand more. It just does not matter what it is or how much you have. You will eventually get used to having it and then will want more. The only way out of this endless cycle of desire is to surrender to the state of "I Don't Know."

When you can really say "I Don't Know", then there is little for the mind to chase and pursue. Then you just look at life and do what is necessary and as you continue on in this way of living in the moment, desire starts to lose its grip on you. In Zen this is called mindful living. Real freedom then makes its welcome appearance as awareness, free now from outward seeking, moves inward and reveals the secrets hidden deep within us.

To work towards this state of "I Don't Know", you need to question all your desires. Too often, in this atmosphere of commercialism, we have been seduced by clever advertisement and social propaganda. Corporations and those in power need you to buy into the happy, pleasurable future they are promising, else they will either lose their sale or your vote. So you need to see if you can remain untouched by this atmosphere of endless consumption. Once you buy in, then you are in the rat race, because now you think you know what you need to get to be happy and so you are off and running, if you don't buy in you stand apart and are free.

So next time someone asks you, What is it that you want in life? Look at them and just smile. Welcome to the wonderful world of Zen.

A Tale of Project Sanctuary

Knee deep in a slimy marsh, I pondered the wisdom of my actions, but there was a soul in need somewhere in this land and I was determined to help. I was accompanied by my friends, the gnome twins, who were currently keeping themselves dry and mud free by sitting on my shoulders and clinging to my hoop earrings. They were shouting “helpful” suggestions that only seemed to lead me into deeper mud.

Finally, the land became firmer, and I struggled with enormous relief out of the slime. Ahead of me was a large lake with a small island in the centre, and huddled in the centre of the island was a pair of orang utan babies. The lake itself was very shallow, with a sandy base. I set off, wading across it, since it offered a useful way of removing the mud, and on reaching the island, climbed up the small beach towards the two primates.

I sent the gnome twins ahead of me, for they were likely to be less frightening to these babies, and they soon had the little ones distracted by a variety of tricks and games. I moved closer, exuding an aura of calm and safety and reached out to touch the babies. They accepted my touch and crept into my arms desperately needing the comfort. As I cradled them I wondered what to do next.

Holding the babies to connect to their energy, I created a picture screen in the air and watched scenes from their past. I saw them living happily with their mother and the rest of the troop, playing with the other little ones, and being embraced in the mother’s arms at night. Until the day the loggers appeared. I watched in horror as trees were felled, as the adult oranges were killed and the babies taken for sale. I saw these two babies huddled in the undergrowth and then, as the men approached, they slipped through a worm-hole in the substance of the world and emerged on this island.

Calling up a flying ship, I transported all of us to their home-lands to find a safe place for these babies. The destruction I had first seen in the viewing screen was even worse in reality, and I began to despair of finding the perfect home for the little ones. But then I spotted a sanctuary, a place where homeless orang’s were cared for and where they could live in safety. Landing the ship, I carried the babies into the Sanctuary and placed them in the middle of a nursery group of similar age. Their appearance might give the babysitters a surprise, but at least they were safe. It was then that I noticed the human carers leading an adult female orang past the nursery troop. She broke away from them, heading for the twins I had brought, and clasped hold of them. From the conversation of the carers I learned that her baby had been captured just that morning, but she, and a few other adults had been saved. She had obviously taken to the twins and was already feeding them, and I was relieved to see that the carers allowed them to remain together, gently moving them to a different troop of adult females and their offspring. At least there was a kernel of happiness within all the sadness and I left them together with a lighter heart.

Feline Fun

This week in Feline Fun – Not so fun... one of the earlier stories I found were about Casper the joyrider cat from Plymouth. Sadly, Casper was hit by a car and died from the injuries he sustained.

A cat which became a celebrity by travelling around Plymouth on the bus has died after reportedly being struck by a car.

Casper, a 12-year-old black and white cat, used to wait with commuters at the bus stop and then hop on to the number 3 to find a seat to curl up on.

The cat was so well-known on the First Devon and Cornwall service, drivers knew which stop to let him off at.

His death was announced on a notice put up at Casper's bus stop by his owner.

'Free spirit'

It said: "Many local people knew Casper, who loved everyone - he also enjoyed the bus journeys."

Sadly a motorist hit him and did not stop.

"Casper died from his injuries. He will be greatly missed...he was a much loved pet who had so much character. Thank you to all those who befriended him."

Casper, a 12-year-old black and white cat, used to wait with commuters at the bus stop and then hop on to the number 3 to find a seat to curl up on.

The cat was so well-known on the First Devon and Cornwall service, drivers knew which stop to let him off at.

His death was announced on a notice put up at Casper's bus stop by his owner.

First Devon and Cornwall said it was "devastated" by the cat's death.

Casper's owner, 55-year-old Susan Finden, who re-homed him from a rescue centre in 2002, said he had always been a free spirit.

He was named after the cartoon character Casper the Friendly Ghost, because of his habit of wandering off.

'Exploring heaven'

Mrs Finden posted a tribute to Casper on the local Herald newspaper website and thanked First's bus drivers for looking after her pet so well.

The website has also received tributes to Casper from around the world, including the US and Australia.

The bus company said many of its drivers had expressed sympathy for Casper to Mrs Finden.

In a statement, a company spokeswoman said: "Casper touched many people's lives and clearly had a very exciting life - travelling around Plymouth and who knows where else.

"I suspect he's now exploring heaven and is telling all the other cats up there about the many adventures he had."

A picture of the cat will continue to be used on one of the company's buses.

To read this article, and see a clip of Casper's bus journey, go to:

<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/england/devon/8467255.stm>

The story about Casper's bus rides is below.

A cat has become a well-known commuter on a bus service and regularly amuses passengers during their journey, a travel company said.

For several months Casper has queued with other passengers to get the number 3 service from his home in Plymouth, Devon.

Bus company First said the adventurous animal sits in the queue and then quietly trots on board and curls up on a seat for the ride.

He is now so well known the bus drivers are aware which stop it is to let him off when Casper wants to go home.

Owner Susan Finden has only just found out about his antics - but a spokesman for First said they have been bussing Casper around for months.

Mrs Finden, who picked the cat out of a rescue home in 2002, said he had always been a free spirit and she named him after the cartoon ghost as he had a habit of walking off.

The 55-year-old care worker said: "He'd always go off and have a wander. Once I had to walk a mile-and-a-half with a cat basket to bring him back from a car park.

"He does love people, and I don't know what the attraction is but he loves big vehicles like lorries and buses."

A notice has been put up in the bus drivers' rest room in Plymouth asking them to look after the rogue passenger if they spot him sneaking on.

Driver Rob Stonehouse told the Plymouth Herald: "He usually just curls up at the back of the bus. Sometimes he nips between people's legs but he never causes any trouble."

How To Do An Effective Yet Powerful Chakra Healing and Cleansing

The word Chakra is a Sanskrit word that means circle or wheel, and it is used to describe certain points of energy in our bodies. These points of energy range from our groin, which is red, up to the top of our heads, rising through the colors of the rainbow as they go. There are a total of 7 chakras, which represent the points of high energy concentration or energy ports in our bodies.

By cleansing, healing, or opening our chakras, we can help get rid of some of the accumulated junk that builds up in our bodies or in our auras. This spiritual waste matter can clog these ports, affecting our health, our emotions, and our well being.

1) What are Chakra Blocks

Chakra blocks can come from emotional issues, traumas, and more. Clearing our chakras can involve dealing with these issues, but is mostly a meditative process that involved moving and dealing with energy.

If you are inexperienced in chakra work, it can be beneficial to have someone else help you with your first cleansing, guiding you through the process or even doing the cleansing themselves while you observe your energy flows to determine how what they are doing works with your energy.

With practice, it is wonderful to be able to do your own chakra cleansings and to take care of the blocked energy pathways on your own.

2) How to do Chakra Healing

If you want to do a chakra cleansing yourself, you can begin with simple visualization and energy work. Begin by imagining a root growing from between your legs down into the ground. You can feel the energy of the earth coming up through this root, and you can send your excess energy back down again to keep yourself in balance. Make sure that you are comfortable, then begin breathing deeply.

With each inhale, imagine the energy filling you until you feel completely full of light and energy. Picture your lowest chakra at the base of your spine as a closed flower bud.

Imagine it opening to the feel of the light energy inside you, and blossoming. Take a moment to enjoy the red flower, then move to your next chakra.

The chakra, in order, are red at the base of your spine, orange at your pelvis, yellow at your solar-plexus (where your rib cage meets), green at your heart, blue at your throat, indigo in the center of your head, and violet at the crown of your head.

3) Exercising Each Chakra

The following are some exercises to help you if you feel that you have a blockage in any of your seven chakra. You can perform the exercises quickly and easily, and they will help you to keep your chakra open and functional.

For your Red chakra, stomp around the house, do squats, or march. You want to get really physical, particularly with the legs. If you have exercise equipment, try leg presses.

For your Orange chakra, move your pelvis. You can do pelvic thrusts or just swivel your hips around. Dancing is good for this, but make sure to focus on your pelvis.

For your Yellow chakra, dance around the house. Movement is good, so do the twist and open up your chest.

For your Green chakra, do push ups, hug yourself, or do other exercises that involve your chest muscles (like a breast stroke).

For your Blue chakra, sing, scream, howl, and make some noise. You can also try cleansing it with a salt water gargle.

For your Indigo chakra, try a mental exercise like remote viewing, lucid dreaming or simple visualizations. This can take practice to work effectively.

For your Violet chakra, try prayer or meditation to get the crown of your head to really open up. The key is to feel a connection with the divine.

You can also try vibration exercises. Make an intoning sound (also called vibrating); many people use Om. Adjust the sound until it resonates with the chakra that you are trying to open (you will feel it with that part of your body). You can also do this multiple times to clear each of the seven chakras.

One last exercise is to try physical stimulation. Gently pat the part of the body that houses each chakra (do not be shy as shame in your body can block your chakras right up).

You can also try other stimulation, like a vibrating massager, or put some of your favorite music on a pair of headphones, crank the music up all the way, and press the headphones to each chakra (not on your ears!)

ANCIENT WAYS

Our Souls shall talk of Ancient Times,
And seasons that did part,
And our Powers shall mingle with whisper-speak,
As we worship in the dark

The times I spend with Dearest friends,
Are now what I most cherish,
So with Hearts and Minds and Souls we'll bind
That our friendships never parish.

And, learn we will,
This Craft so old,
As we travel through this land,
But shield it from the Masses,
For they cannot understand.

So Merry Meet and Merry Greet,
And Merry we shall part...
On those special eves,
When we shall gather,
And revel in the Art.

SILENT AUCTION

Greetings All,

As you may recall, we implemented the Silent Auction at last September's Lustration that turned out to be very successful for raising funds to support the Correllian Nativist Tradition. Last September's Auction raised over $700.00, all from items handmade and otherwise donated by our fellow Correllians.

Well it is time again to prepare for this April, so I am asking for donated items in support of this fundraising project. Please consider supporting this project with your handmade items - art, pottery, woodwork, fabric, jewelry, a whole wide spectrum of media that so many of our members create. Or, not so artistic! consider other special items that were once on your altar or in your home that you no longer need. This is a wonderful way to transfer energy amongst our members.

As we did previously, all donated items will be featured on the Correllian.com webpage with a brief description, along with the person, and / or Temple / Shrine / or Group who donated the item.

This is a wonderful way to share your talents and support of CNT. If you enjoy what you do and want to let others see - this is a great venue to do so.

The Silent Auction will be conducted starting April 1st.thru April 21st., therefore any items will need to be received by March 20th. All items will then be put on display at Lustration being held at Watertown WI, starting April 23rd.

If you wish to participate in this project, please contact me at cntfundraisingoffice@earthlink.net

Thank You in advance for your generosity to help raise money for CNT.

Blessings, Mike

Correllian Clergy Degree Program

A new membership has been created called the Correllian Clergy Degree Program. This is a 3-year program that can help you earn your Wiccan Degrees and Legal Clergy Status. Of course every lifetime and supporting member has access to this main program.

The purpose of this level is for those individuals who are interested in gaining their clergy status, and this offers an opportunity for members to do so affordably.

This program is only $49.99. To find out more:
<http://www.Witchschool.com/clergydegree.asp>

Witchschool Referral Program

Witch School, our long-time educational partner, has made an offer to the Tradition and its member Temples and groups.

Witch School has created a new Referral Program. The Tradition itself has enrolled in this program – as you can see from the button in the left-hand menu on correllian.com. You are encourage to consider enrolling your Temple or group as well, as a means of generating potential passive income.

The program works like this: members receive their own button which they can put on their website, in their email signature, etc... offering Witch School memberships. If anyone purchases a membership through your button, you will receive (approximately) 25% of the payment –that is $4 of a $19.99 yearly membership, or $25 of a $99.99 Lifetime Membership.

Each button has its own unique code which tracks payments made through it. If someone buys a membership through your button, then you get the abovementioned 25%.

If you are interested in finding out more about this program, or in signing up for it, go to www.witchschool.biz.

Witch School are offering a discount on supplies to Correllian Temples and groups in good standing: for example the Witch School books at 40% off cover price, and other discounts on the various items the school produces. If you would like to learn more about this, contact Lady Virginia at Virginia@witchschool.com and she will be happy to explain further.

These offers are being extended to all of our Correllian Temples, Proto-Temples, Witan Shrines, Formal Shrines, Personal Shrines, Orders, and Study Groups who might wish to sign up.

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: www@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,
The Order of Web Weavers

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at krystelneuman@yahoo.com

May You Blessed Be Krystel

Faces of Correllianism: <http://www.correllian.com/faces.htm>

“Faces of Correllianism” is a place where Correllians can send photos of themselves, their altars, their pets, as well as artwork, autobiographies, descriptions of events and projects, essays and poetry to share with all Correllians.

Through “Faces of Correllianism” we hope to show what a strong, diverse, and positive community we are.

If you would like to have your photo, writing, or artwork included, please email it to me at DonLewisHP@aol.com together with your authorization to use it at www.correllian.com You will of course retain any copyright. Please do not send us anything that is copyrighted to anyone other than yourself, unless you include their permission.
