Veterinary Notes U is for Urolithiasis

Uroliths are “stones” found in the lower urinary tract and are the result of minerals in the urine precipitating into solid form. The stones usually fall into three main categories, phosphate (frequent in dogs); oxalate and struvite. More rarely they may occur in the kidney itself resulting in tremendous pain until they are passed. Factors contributing to stone formation may include inadequate fluid intake, diets that are particularly high in minerals, infection or cancer of the lower urinary tract and genetic predisposition.

In cats, a condition or, more accurately, a group of conditions known as feline lower urinary tract disease (FLUTD) predispose to the formation of struvite or oxalate stones. This is a common condition and the pain may cause the cat to urinate around the house instead of using the litter tray which it comes to associate with the pain. It is therefore very important not to treat such inappropriate urination as a behaviour problem, and instead exclude any medical condition first. FLUTD is exquisitely painful as it associated with the loss of the “gag” layer that coats the inside of the bladder, leaving the surface exposed and raw. This is similar to the condition in women known as interstitial cystitis.

Signs of urolithiasis are varied. They may present with signs of cystitis (inflammation of the bladder). Here the animal needs to pass urine frequently, usually in small amounts, and the urine may be blood tinged. They may be seen straining without passing any urine at all. Uroliths often have sharp edges and blood in the urine (haematuria) is very common when they are present. Left untreated, the uroliths continue to grow and increase in number, and on palpation of the lower abdomen may give the feel of a bag of gravel

The most serious complication of uroliths is obstruction of the urethra (the tube leading from the bladder). It is most commonly seen in male cats and dogs because of the narrowing of the urethra as it passes through the penis. Such a blockage has serious consequences, and results in back pressure up the urinary tract damaging the kidney, and accumulation of urea in the blood (uraemia). The condition is rapidly fatal if untreated, and it is very important to obtain surgical treatment without delay. Although catheterisation may be used in the short term, in most cases, a procedure known as urethrostomy (literally opening the urethra) is performed. In the dog, a permanent or temporary opening is created where the urethra curves forward into the narrow part of the penis. In the cat the penis is removed and a new opening is created for the discharge of urine. These operations are highly successful although a few animals may be more prone to cystitis.

Returning to treatment of urolithiasis in all animals, including those that have needed surgery, there are a number of measures that are indicated. The first step is to treat any infection that is present, for the trauma from the stones will predispose to this. A urine sample will be collected, and the sediment examined for the presence of minute crystals, which can then be identified as phosphate, oxalate or struvite. An x ray of the abdomen may also be indicated if uroliths cannot be detected by palpation. Any uroliths present that are too large to dissolve or be passed, will need to be removed surgically. Laser destruction of uroliths is rarely available for animals outside specialist centres. Effective treatment needs to block the formation of the uroliths. An adequate fluid intake is essential and may be achieved by mixing water with the dog’s food, or even by giving a cat water by a syringe into its mouth several times a day (barley water – the old fashioned type made by boiling barley as described by Mrs Beeton, being particularly effective). Dietary changes are also required since the acidity of the urine affects the formation of uroliths. For example, struvite crystallises in alkaline urine, so a diet that creates an acid urine will block their formation and dissolve any existing crystals. Oxalate stone prevention needs an alkaline urine but unfortunately these stones cannot dissolve in animal urine. Phosphate stone formation is reduced by using a diet that is low in phosphate. Such dietary measures are needed indefinitely. In cats glucosamine supplementation helps to reform the GAG layer and so decrease pain and associated problems.

A-Z of Religions - Taoism

Taoism is an ancient tradition of philosophy and religious belief that is deeply rooted in Chinese customs and worldview.

Taoism is also referred to as Daoism, which is a more accurate way of representing in English the sound of the Chinese word.

Taoism is about the Tao. This is usually translated as the Way. But it's hard to say exactly what this means. The Tao is the ultimate creative principle of the universe. All things are unified and connected in the Tao.

* Taoism originated in China 2000 years ago

* It is a religion of unity and opposites; Yin and Yang. The principle of Yin Yang sees the world as filled with complementary forces - action and non-action, light and dark, hot and cold, and so on

* The Tao is not God and is not worshipped. Taoism includes many deities, that are worshipped in Taoist temples, they are part of the universe and depend, like everything, on the Tao

* Taoism promotes:

- achieving harmony or union with nature
- the pursuit of spiritual immortality
- being 'virtuous' (but not ostentatiously so)
- self-development

* Taoist practices include:

- meditation
- feng shui
- fortune telling
- reading and chanting of scriptures

Before the Communist revolution fifty years ago, Taoism was one of the strongest religions in China. After a campaign to destroy non-Communist religion, however, the numbers significantly reduced, and it has become difficult to assess the statistical popularity of Taoism in the world.

Taoism recognises that physical actions have a spiritual effect and regards activities such as yoga, meditation and martial arts as important.

Taoist ethics are concerned less with doing good acts than becoming a good person who lives in harmony with all things and people. Taoist ethics are inseparable from Taoist spirituality - both contain the same ideas. If a Taoist wants to live well they should take all their decisions in the context of the Tao, trying to see what will fit best with the natural order of things.

Taoists thus always do what is required by events and their context, but they only do what is required, no more.

The 2001 census recorded 3,500 Taoists in England and Wales

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at krystelneuman@yahoo.com

Flash Fiction Challenge

Greetings Dearest Readers!

Have you ever dreamed of being a writer? The Correllian Times wants to help make that dream come true with our flash fiction contest!

The flash fiction story must contain exactly 250 words, excluding the title. Not 249 - not 251. 250 words. There should be a beginning, middle, and an end. It should not just be 250 words of whatever comes to your mind. The goal here is to have some kind of twist at the end.

Our challenge to you is this:

Write your own flash fiction before January 01, 2009. The prize for the top Flash Fiction submission will be a free subscription to the Correllian Times for one year. Please, only 1 entry per person.

Contest begins March 1, 2008 and ends January 01, 2009. Entries become the property of The Correllian Times. We assume no responsibility for illegible, lost, late, misdirected, incomplete, or stolen entries.

ENTRY: Submit an original, flash fiction story of exactly 250 words. Include your name and e-mail address and send to either: Jessamina at Jessamina@OurLadyRhiannon.com or Azriel at azrielmoon@hotmail.com. Please include the words "FLASH FICTION CHALLENGE" in the subject detail. Entries must be original, unpublished and may not have won any prize or award.

LIMIT: Only one entry from an individual will be accepted - no group entries.

ELIGIBILITY: Everyone is eligible to enter!

Voting on flash fiction:

If you appreciate the storytelling in a flash fiction piece, please grant the writer the honor of your vote.

The great part for voters is that each entry shouldn't take much more than a minute. You can read dozens of them in a short period of time. Please support the writers in this challenge by reading as many as you can!

Now... get flashing!

The Order of Web Weavers Crystal Web Mapping Project

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: wwcw@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,
