Animal Totems

Each totem carries messages and information for us. This is known as their medicine.

Beaver

The beaver is a master craftsman who teaches us the values of patience, planning and determination, who shows us that all things are possible if we are prepared to work. In this, beaver speaks not just of physical matters but of the spiritual, of building our lives, our psyche. In this beaver reminds us to think of emotions, intuition and the power of the sub-conscious. Beaver is a dream animal, who reminds us to pay attention to dreams, to learn to make wishes and dreams reality and to explore the power of dream work.

Through beaver it is possible to learn balance and strength, to learn how to harness our inner resources and to make things happen as we wish. Let beaver help when the going is hard, when the dream starts to falter.

If beaver appears in your life, take time to review your dreams, your goals, your hopes and allow beaver to show you the way by meeting him in meditation and lucid dreams.

Tarot

Rev. Leona

The Tao Oracle for today is The Gentle

Key terms for today are: Penetrating, A Soft Approach, Faith, Moderation, A subtle but Deep Influence, Understanding, Nonviolence

Message of The Gentle

The Gentle comes into your life today to show you how patience and faith can be as powerful as immediate action. By being able to focus all of your power and attention on your own faith you are able to see how patience and perseverance can come in many forms. The Gentle may appear to have no power and to accomplish very little. When looking back over a lifetime the Gentle has an ability to shape and change a life in ways that could not have been done without this constant and unintrusive attitude. The Gentle is the voice in your mind that tells you that through prayer and faith you will be able to accomplish much change. You will be able to see how the silent and constant vigil will be rewarded with the knowledge that you are able to accomplish change. Even if it cannot be seen instantly even the wind is able to eventually level a mountain and the sea is able to eat away at the ground.

There are many elements of life that follow the teaching of the Gentle. Watching the gentle waves as they come to shore may be relaxing and may on the surface appear to have no effect but all of those thousands of particles of sand come for the constant to and fro of the waves. You have the ability to move with the appearance of gently drifting while at the same time sowing the seeds that will eventually root and grow into a wonderful plant full of healthy and vibrant fruit. The Gentle is the force in the background that helps and nurtures those in the spotlight. By following the path that the Gentle has opened for you, you will be able to see where you have been taking the light away from others. There is much that can be said and done but you do not always have to be the one who does everything. There is much to say for the kind and gentleness of those who watch and coax others. Mothers are the ones who will sit in the shadows and allow their children to grow and bloom while they are content to stay in the shadows and kiss the boo boos and hunt the monsters under the bed.

The Gentle wants you to take a path of patience and gentleness. Now is the time to avoid violence and confrontation. This is the time when you will want to stay in the shadows and watch the play unfold before you. There is much that can be gained by watching and documenting the actions of others. By remaining calm and distanced you will be able to see the situation with clear eyes and mind. You will be able to see what all the players are contributing as well as what they are hiding and avoiding. You will be able to see who is using their power to hurt and cause upset and turmoil. The Gentle wants you to remain quiet and introspective. Gandhi was one of the best messages ever sent by the Gentle. This is the example that is set by the Gentle and one that all of us must strive to achieve to the best of our own ability.

Meditation for The Gentle

Find a quiet place where you will be able to sit or lie down comfortably without being disturbed. You may wish to play some soft instrumental music or have water flowing softly in the background. When you are ready close your eyes and breathe in deeply. Feel your whole body filling with the breath of life. See your body as a large balloon and as you fill your lungs full of air see your body expand and fill also. When you exhale feel your body shrink back to normal. Continue to breathe and with every breath feel the balloon stretch your skin and your muscles. When you exhale feel all the stress and tension flow out of your body as you decompress. Feel your body grow loose and relaxed with every breath. Continue to breathe until all the stress and anxiety of your day has been stretched away. After 10 breath cycles open your eyes and look at the card in front of you.

Look at the Gentle. See all of the shades and hues that make up the card. See her face and her body. See how she is there but hidden at the same time. See the shapes and the symbols that make and hide her form. Memorize all the details. When you have them clear in your mind close your eyes. Feel yourself float up and out of your body. When you are free of your body float through the darkness of time until you reach the place of no time. Here see The Gentle before you bigger than life. Feel yourself being pulled into the card. Once inside the card feel the winds and hear the distant sound of the water. What do you notice? What draws you? You will find yourself being pulled down into the card until you are face to face with The Gentle. Look at her face and posture. What is she doing? What does she look like now? Is there anything that is different here than in your memory of the card? Are the colours different? Is her pose or facial expression different? When you are ready she will begin to speak. You must listen as her voice is soft and is carried on the winds. You must be very quiet and focused to hear her message. When you have heard her message she will fade away. The flowers and leaves will fall down into a pattern. The pattern left behind will indicate to you where in your life you must exert gentleness. Look at the pattern and memorize all the colours, lines and markings that have been left. When you have memorized the features it will be time to leave.

When you are ready feel yourself being pulled back out of the card. Feel your body drifting again through space and back through time to yourself. With every breath you take feel yourself settle back into your body. Hear the music around you and feel the energy of your skin tingling with your return. Smell the room around you and when you are ready take a deep breath and open your eyes.

Mayan Ancient Culture

Background Beliefs Overview Traditions

Part 5

Itzamcab (Itzam Cab, Kumara) was a Mayan Mesoamerican Chthonic earth god of creation, fire, knowledge, healing, hearthstones, and vegetation. Hearthstones are called "Head of Cab" in his honor, and he has also been depicted with corn leaves sprouting from his head. He showed the Maya how to use the calendrical system and to be shamanic storytellers using pictorial glyphic script.

Ixchel (Ix Chel, Ix Chebel Yax) was a Mayan Mesoamerican moon goddess of childbirth, medicine, and weaving. As the Yucatec and Quiche Indian Fertility goddess of Healing Rainbows and Guardian against disease, there were shrines in her honor in Cozumel and small figurines of her were placed beside women in labor. Ixchel brought weaving to the Maya and carried her loom sticks across the sky to protect herself and others from the jaguars

Yumcaax (Yum Caax, Yum Kaax, Kumara) was a classical Mesoamerican and Mayan vegetation god revered as an agricultural and maize Lord of the Woods who was concerned about all aspects of growing crops, harvesting, and husbandry.

Yumcaax was depicted as a beautiful youth who embodied the perfect blend of masculine and feminine qualities. He wore an ear of corn in his headdress.

There are Environment, Galactic, Global, Proactive, Restoration, Safeguard, and Virtue Omniangels Groups in Mayan Natural World Landscapes in Mexico and Guatemala.

Although each of the different kinds of Omniangels groups has some special roles, unique tasks, distinctive functional responsibilities, special operating procedures, and purposeful frames of reference, in general, the Omniangels groups are empowered and sanctified to act and operate within eleven distinctive ways or Spheres of Influence with the evolutionary life spirals living on this planet and in the overlapping dimensions.

The general headings for these spheres are Blessings, Knowledge, Harmony, Healing, Illumination, Inspiration, Preservation, Protection, Renewal, Transformation, and Warding. Each word has many descriptive, functional, and symbolic meanings for the Omniangels.

*Palenque Palace Ruins, Mexico

Since they are divine triage teams and special operations forces, they have been provided with extensive discretionary powers which include emergency intervention, search and rescue, and destiny remapping. They also have been given a wide latitude in interpreting how they will use them, as long as they ensure that their actions are always aligned with divine will, divine harmony, and divine authority.

Palenque, which is located at the beginning of the Tumbalá mountains in the vicinity of the Usumacinta River about one hundred thirty kilometers south of Ciudad del Carmen in Chiapas, Mexico is a Sacred Site focal point for several Omniangels Groups.

Smaller than either Tíkal or Copán, the medium sized Mayan archaeological site, was abandoned long before the Spanish came to the area. Once known as Lakam Ha, Big Wide Waters, because of the many cascading waters and springs situated there, Palenque overlooks a great expanse of verdant jungle.

Even though pottery remains dating from 300 BCE have been found, most of the building ruins were constructed sometime between the seventh and tenth centuries ACE. Thirty-four of the approximately five hundred structures at the Palenque site have been excavated and/or reconstructed.

Many of the other ruins resemble small hilly mounds blanketed with lush jungle foliage, Archaeologists have called an extensive complex of artificial terraces, courtyards, sculptures, bas-relief carvings, and buildings that might have been an administrative center and housing complex for the aristocracy and the high priests, "The Palace".

There was also a four story astronomical tower from which the Mayans observed the winter solstice sun set directly over the Temple of Inscriptions. The Temple of the Cross, Temple of the Sun, and Temple of the Foliated Cross were named by early explorers. The cross type patterns they discovered on two of the stone bas-reliefs in the intricately carved inner chambers were actually Mayan depictions of the World Tree mentioned in Maya Creation Myths.

Once the capital of the B'aakal Mayan city state, the city achieved notoriety between the fifth to ninth centuries ACE. The Maya Ajaw Pacal, who ruled from 615-683 ACE, built a step pyramid and a temple with carved hieroglyphs which became known as the Temple of Inscriptions atop a Celtic style Mayan Benefactor Sacred Mound.

A passageway was dug from the temple floor into the heart of the Sacred Mound. and the Sacred Mound was turned into a burial chamber for Pacal. There was stone over his tomb depicting the Popul Vuh Hero Twins achieving immortality. His successor was Chan Bahlum II. Like other Mayan cities, Palenque was mysteriously abandoned to be reclaimed by the Natural World landscape greenery. The powerfully serene landscape of large trees and travertine cascades was once graced with numerous Sacred Mounds.

A Natural World sacred landscape site Misol-Ha Waterfall is located on the eastern edge of the Rio Usumacinta Basin around twelve miles from Palenque in Chiapas, Mexico. Surrounded by verdant foliage, the Misol-Ha River (which is Mayan for streaming water or waterfall) cascades over a cliff situated in the Sierra Oriental de Chiapas foothills at an elevation of around three thousand meters.

The approximately one hundred twenty feet (thirty-five meters) high, majestic Misol-Ha cascade falls into a wonderfully refreshing pond below that is around forty-five feet deep. Behind the glistening water curtain of the falls, there is a small walkway and some caves. Scuba divers have reported that there is an opening about six feet in diameter in the middle of the cone-shaped pond that might connect with a subterranean waterway flowing downstream. The climate in the area is warm and humid for the most part with showers throughout the year.

Another Natural World sacred landscape site is the Agua Azul Cascades which are located in a national park about thirty-nine miles south of Palenque in Chiapas, Mexico. Consisting of around five hundred cascading waterfalls that extend into the hills, the Agua Azul or "blue waters" of the cascades are most common throughout the spring months prior to the rainy summer season.

*Cataratas de Agua Azul Waterfalls of Blue Water in Mexico

A place of ethereal beauty and mystical magic, blue waters flow over ancient layered travertine limestone that resemble frozen waterfalls. For thousands of years, the heavy seasonal rains surged through nearby limestone mountain caves, carrying calcium deposits downstream where it covered everything in shaped layers of travertine. A popular national park, especially on sunny weekends, Agua Azul is easily accessible from the highway.

The Sun and Moon Pyramids of Teotihuacán, which are located in the center of the Teotihuacán Valley in the northeast Mexico Basin, were built on prior Sacred Mounds.

A tunnel beneath the Pyramid of the Sun runs to caves that were used for sacred rites. Even though the Pyramid of the Moon is smaller than the Pyramid of the Sun, it rises to about the same height because it was built on higher ground. Climbing to the tops of the pyramids offers memorable views.

Chichén Itzá is located in the Yucatán in southeastern Mesoamerica. The name of the city means, "In the Mouth at the Itzá's Well"; and, ample water resources from various caves and Cenotes enabled it to become a political and religious power center that reached its pinnacle between 800-1,200 ACE.

After waves of invasions and different tribes of inhabitants, Chichén Itzá was inexplicably, permanently abandoned in 1,400 ACE. The abandonment of Chichén Itzá correlated to the Maya Creation Legend of the Third Maya World.

The Tikal Temple Complex Ruins, which is located in the jungles of Tíkal in Guatemala, Central America, were also built over Sacred Mounds. The temple complex was built sometime in the eighth century ACE.

Like most of what are called the Mayan Pyramids, the Tikal pyramids were built over Celtic style, sacred hill mounds left behind by the Lemurian Pleiadian Shamans who were the benefactors and teachers of the Mayan until they relocated to the Pleiades

A look at some of the news articles across the globe since the last edition!

Who's A Pagan? New Spirituality Site Has Surprising Nuggets

From <http://content.usatoday.com>

Naturalist, conservationist, and possibly pagan John Muir is shown with a California Condor and Yosemite National Park on the California quarter designed by Los Angeles artist Garrett Burke.

If you're in the hunt for yet another site where you can debate religious perspectives, there's a new entry on line, a potential rival to Beliefnet.com but with a more academic slant.

Patheos launched this summer with a packed agenda of creating conversation, fostering knowledge and, being a business, monetizing the comparative religion interest crowd. Some highlights from my own tour of the site:

-- A lengthy academic essay Money for Nothing examines "traditional Western conceptions (and warnings) about the use and abuse of money" from a Buddhist perspective. David Loy, professor of Ethics/Religion and Society at Xavier University in Cincinnati, concludes:

... money is not a thing but a process. Perhaps it's best understood as an energy that is not really yours or mine. Those who understand that it is an empty, formless symbol can use it wisely and compassionately to reduce the world's suffering. Those who use it to become more "real" end up being used by it, their alienated sense of self clutching a blank check -- a promissory note that can never be cashed.

There's also an essay by a consultant, Peter Collins, who muses on the ethics of firing people in a Christian fashion:

By creating a more profitable business I will be able to bless my current and future employees along with their families, and all of the customers we serve. If I do not fire them, these blessings are less likely to come to pass, and the company could suffer.

Some Seek A Crystal Ball In A Murky Market

From www.chron.com

Cheryl Lucas, left, recently went to Kim O'Neill's house in Spring for a reading on her finances. O'Neill says she's been busy over the past year.

Cheryl Lucas' questions could stump even the sharpest financial adviser. The 63-year-old Houston woman, who lost three-quarters of her retirement savings in the economic downturn, wants to know whether she'll ever get that money back — and if so, when. Should she go back to work, and doing what? Will she have to move, and where?

They're the kind of questions it would take a crystal ball to answer. And that, in essence, is what she sought.

On a recent afternoon, Lucas sat in Kim O'Neill's Spring dining room drinking lemonade and reading the questions off a list she had typed up for the appointment. O'Neill, a 53-year-old self-described soccer mom, sat at the head of the table scribbling on sticky notes as she closed her eyes and nodded.

“This is a time to make truly different decisions from what you would do in a strong economy,” she counseled. “This is a time to buy. If you've got any pennies lying around, you can get $80 or $90 stocks for $10. ”

O'Neill says she doesn't come up with the advice herself — she channels it from Lucas' guardian angels.

Psychics, mediums and channelers like O'Neill say they've attracted significantly more clients since the recession began — many of them searching for clarity on career choices and certainty in investment decisions.

As recently as a year ago, relationship issues were Elaine Palmer's bread and butter. Palmer, who specializes in tarot readings at her Galleria-area office, says financial questions now trump the love-based variety, although those haven't disappeared.

And while there are no organized statistics on the business of fortunetelling, Dawn Carr of the American Association of Psychics and Mediums says most members are reporting a boom.

“We've all seen an increase in traffic, except in rural areas,” the Boston-area psychic said.

Manitou Goddess Becomes Omnipresent

From www.gazette.com

A statue of the goddess Hebe, is one of 15 Hebe's that will be placed around Manitou Springs.

MANITOU SPRINGS • Check out the hot new deity divas in town.

Fifteen Hebes have staked out spots along Manitou Avenue, dressed in their glitzy, garish and psychedelic best.

The Hebe parade celebrates the town's cultural and quirky heritage.

Hebe (pronounced HEE-bee) is the Greek mythology goddess of eternal youth, best known for serving up pitchers of ambrosia to Olympian gods, often while topless.

However, these Hebe statues are concrete replicas of the fully clothed goddess atop the town clock.

She was formerly known as Hygeia, after being misidentified for almost 120 years. It was an honest mistake to dub her Hygeia, goddess of health and daughter of healing god Asclepius, when mineral water bottling magnate Jerome Wheeler gave the statue to the town in 1890.

Nobody questioned it, until earlier this year after Manitou historian Deborah Harrison was museum hopping in Europe and stumbled upon a dead-ringer statue named Hebe.

Uh-oh.

But this is Manitou. Rather than hide the mistaken identity, townsfolk are flaunting it.

Actually, "It's a step up," Harrison said. Hebe is the daughter of kingpin god Zeus.

This weekend's goddess invasion kicks off "Your Personal Goddess: A Celebration of Hebe," which will lead to who-knows-how-much fanfare.

The 40-inch-tall, 150-pound Hebe statues were decorated by artists as a fundraiser and for fun in cooperation with the Manitou Springs Arts Council.

Sponsors paid $250 a Hebe. Artists received $100 for supplies to doll up Hebe in whatever way their imaginations desired.

Prayer Showdown

From <http://lodinews.com/articles>

Two groups - one for prayer and one against - to hold rallies before Wednesday's City Council meeting

In an all-black outfit, Gordon James Klingenschmitt stood with his Bible in hand and quoted from both religious texts and the U.S. Constitution to prove that Jesus should be allowed in prayer at the Lodi City Council meetings.

The founder of the Colorado Springs, Co.-based The Pray In Jesus Name Project was standing in front of Carnegie Forum at a news conference he set up Monday.

Publicity is one of his organization's best tools to get the word out about their cause, and a prayer rally is planned for 6 p.m. Wednesday, Klingenschmitt said. The group also used an Internet campaign to collect 5,185 signatures on a petition advocating that the word Jesus remain in prayers. Of the signatures, 2,826 are from California.

"Jesus is not an illegal word. ... Now, an atheist's group is using the government's sword to tell me I can't pray in Jesus' name," Klingenschmitt said.

Pagan: Lughnasadh – Lammas

*Then let us toast John Barleycorn,
Each man a glass in hand;
And may his great posterity
Ne'er fail in old Scotland!*

Traditional Scottish poem

Lughnasadh (pronounced loo'nass'ah) comes at the beginning of August. It is one of the Pagan festivals of Celtic origin which split the year into four.

Celts held the festival of the Irish god Lugh at this time and later, the Anglo-Saxons marked the festival of hlaefmass - loaf mass or Lammas - at this time.

For these agricultural communities this was the first day of the harvest, when the fields would be glowing with corn and reaping would begin. The harvest period would continue until Samhain when the last stores for the winter months would be put away.

Although farming is not an important part of modern life, Lughnasadh is still seen as a harvest festival by Pagans and symbols connected with the reaping of corn predominate in its rites.

Quote & Thought of the Date

Rev. Nehal

Quote of the Day:

For every sin but the killing of Time there is forgiveness.

Traditional (Essential Sufism)

Source: <http://www.katinkahesselink.net/squote/index.htm>

Thought of the day:

Respect and kindness

Being rude doesn't feel very good even while you're doing it. Being genuinely considerate, on the other hand, can leave you feeling more positive and empowered for a long time afterward.

Rudeness and arrogance are unmistakable signs of weakness and insecurity. Kindness and polite consideration are reliable indicators of rock-solid confidence and strength.

How do you treat those whom you have no reason to impress, from whom you have nothing to gain? It says a lot about you, and people do indeed notice.

Those who are truly in a position of responsibility have no need for arrogance. Any positive impression you seek to make through arrogance or rudeness is immediately contradicted by the arrogance itself.

Don't let your own arrogance waste your energy and set you back. Use each encounter as an opportunity to offer genuine respect and kindness.

Lift up the lives of those around you. And you lift up your whole world.

Poets Retreat

Poetry supplied by members of the Order of Bards

From Here to There

Why is it that we don't know
We waste our time on things that never mattered
It seems so long we spin in circles
Just to say we've done our patterns

I don't see how Gods and Goddesses ever cared
To see us waste our lives in was so senseless and ungiving
It seems to me we should be doing more to help all around us
But so few even share those ideas and call me crazy and unbending

But let me tell you something I know
The Gods and Goddesses have told me time and time again
I'm the one who has the way,
So I don't go and bend.

And if you want to call me crazy,
Go ahead and do your best,
Or stand behind me and follow
And then you'll find your rest.

In the end we're all the same,
It's how we get there, but what a shame
For we can't get along here
And it's a good long journey to there.

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: wwcw@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,
The Order of Web Weavers

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at krystelneuman@yahoo.com

May You Blessed Be
Krystel
