Runes
By Gothi Freyatra

Waes hael!

My apologies for the lack of anything Runic last week. My wife has been in Hospital and is still convalescing at home which means I have been doing more than normal trying to keep the family running with meals getting kids to school and dogs looked after. With all that I have to say that writing the article went out of the window.

Still this is another week and I would like to talk about something more Heathen than Runic, though to my mind Heathenry and runes are intricately linked on many levels to the point of being inseparable. It is my firm opinion that those practitioners using runes outside of a Heathen framework are misguided, misinformed and in danger of missing the point completely. Hence the prevalence of 25 rune Futharks.

Some philosophies from modern Wicca just simply were not practised by the ancients. There are some people who will make things fit their personal view despite all evidence to the contrary. Who when challenged will cite their own tradition as going back thousands of years. As if that backs up them transferring things from one culture to another and using them out of context.

Heathenry does not see a separation of God/matter and Goddess/spirit. There is no universal deity in Heathenry. There is no image of the multifaceted diamond representing Deity. Or the associated theory that whatever facet you invoke doesn't matter because it is really all the same universal deity anyway. The Gods and Goddesses are distinct separate entities with their own personalities and motives. You cannot simply say that you will invoke one of them and if you get it wrong then your higher self will redirect it to the one you really mean. Heathenry requires a much higher level of care and precision when interacting with the divine. For example: trying to invoke Thor as a King archetype as given in the First degree lessons simply wont work. He isn't a King.

Thor won't be impressed by your lack of knowledge and is unlikely to want to work with you. And it isn't like you can just invoke 'The King' archetype and give it the name of Thor as a convenient label. In no place in the Eddas is Thor ever given any of the attributes of a King archetype. Hero certainly, Father yes. King No. No one who has actually had a direct contact with Thor would ever get this wrong.

If you want to work with Norse Deities then you better know whom you are invoking first. Knowledge of the Aesir and Vanir; and indeed many of the other Giants Dwarves and Elves of Norse mythology was something to be prized. Some entire Eddaic poems are comprised of exchanges between Gods or between a God and another being such as a Giant engaging in a contest of wit or knowledge.

My point in all this is that the runes are misunderstood and misused because the ancient Gods are misunderstood and misused. The modern practice of eclecticism and just cherry picking from different traditions and ignoring the parts where they conflict with each other is largely to blame. If you really want runes to work for you then use them within the context that they were originally conceived.

Jainism

Jainism is an ancient religion from India that teaches that the way to liberation and bliss is to live lives of harmlessness and renunciation.

The essence of Jainism is concern for the welfare of every being in the universe and for the health of the universe itself.

- Jains believe that animals and plants, as well as human beings, contain living souls. Each of these souls is considered of equal value and should be treated with respect and compassion.
- Jains are strict vegetarians and live in a way that minimises their use of the world's resources.
- Jains believe in reincarnation and seek to attain ultimate liberation - which means escaping the continuous cycle of birth, death and rebirth so that the immortal soul lives for ever in a state of bliss.
- Liberation is achieved by eliminating all karma from the soul.
- Jainism is a religion of self-help .
- There are no gods or spiritual beings that will help human beings.
- The three guiding principles of Jainism, the three jewels, are right belief, right knowledge and right conduct.
- The supreme principle of Jain living is non violence (ahimsa)
- This is one of the 5 mahavratas (the 5 great vows). The other mahavratas are non-attachment to possessions, not lying, not stealing, and sexual restraint (with celibacy as the ideal).
- Mahavira is regarded as the man who gave Jainism its present-day form.
- The texts containing the teachings of Mahavira are called the Agamas
- Jains are divided into two major sects; the Digambara (meaning "sky clad") sect and the Svetambara (meaning "white clad") sect
- Jainism has no priests. Its professional religious people are monks and nuns, who lead strict and ascetic lives.

Most Jains live in India, and there are reported to be around 4.2 million throughout the world.

The motive and purpose of Jain worship is very different from worship in many other religions - in fact it would seem that Jain principles make worship both unnecessary and futile.

Jains don't worship to please gods, or in the hope of getting something from gods in return. But nevertheless, Jains do worship. Jain worship provides the individual with a discipline that helps them concentrate on the Jain ideals, and cultivate detachment.

The worshipper concentrates on the virtues of the tirthankaras and other pure souls, in order to help them follow their example.

So for Jains worship is only a means to an end and not a spiritual end in itself. And worship is not a sufficient means to that end.

Worship in the temple, although mostly individual, does have the social benefit of binding the Jain community together, but this isn't a religious benefit, merely a side-effect.

Magick or Magic? Magic or Magick?

How do you spell it anyway?

Aleister Crowley is also often credited with inventing the use of magick (with a k) as opposed to magic. The addition of the k increases the magickal potency of the word as k is the eleventh letter of the alphabet and eleven is a number considered to contain a lot of inherent magickal power within the western magickal system. Crowley himself also emphasised that he used the spelling of magick in order to differentiate the term from the variety of magic practiced by stage performers. It is however also interesting to note that the use of both 'magick' and 'magic' occurs in medieval and renaissance grimoires, as well as other documents of the time.

For example, in the book on the history of Magick published in 1657 we find: "From these four different wayes, we infer four kinds of Magick: Divine, relating to the first, Theurgick, to the second, Goetick, to the third, and Naturall, to the last..."

Likewise in a completely non-esoteric context, we find it used in a scientific document published in 1811: "To describe the construction of the Magick Lantern"

Throughout the 19th century both spellings continued to be used frequently, and as Aleister Crowley was a well read man he would certainly have been familiar with the alternative spelling. So one could say that Crowley did popularise the Magick spelling, but also that he revived the use of this manner of spelling for the word (which was still after all widely in use a few decades earlier), whichever way - he certainly did not invent it.

On a personal note, we use this spelling to differentiate and emphasise, like Crowley, the difference between stage conjuring and the work done within the western mystery traditions, which includes Wicca.

A Note:

Other modern spellings for "magick" include majik, majick, mayik, magjick, majiek and a variety of other weird and wonderful permutations which are being invented everyday in an effort to be more unique and more "out there" than the one before. Although this is all fine and well in the name of creative thinking, it also usually looks a bit like someone who is incapable of spelling or writing in the English language. How would you like it if someone randomly started spelling your first name in creative ways? Think about your use of language and make sure that if you use an alternative spelling that you explain your reasons for doing so, not with fake history, but with your own personal reasons - otherwise you will simply look a little bit like someone who doesn't know what they are talking about. If you are interested in the important parts of magick, that is the practise thereof, why not just use the standardised spellings of 'magick' or 'magic' (if you prefer) which will mean that most people will understand what you are talking about!!

- Some of the above is an extract from the draft of the book "WICCA MAGICKAL BEGINNINGS" by Sorita d'Este & David Rankine, due for release in April 2007. -

We are pleased to announce that we are now accepting nominations for the Year 8 Spring Lustration. These awards were instituted to recognize the excellent work of the members of our Tradition.

The nominations will close out at Midnight on 31 March, Year 8. This allows the committee and the First Priesthood sufficient time to prepare for the awards during the Lustration ritual in April. We recognize the time is short this cycle, so don't delay in sending your nominations.

There are five awards in this program:

Order of the Copper Athame -- representing Air, the realm of ideas, recognizes achievement in the Sciences, including divination, astrology, herbology, enviro-technology, etc.

Order of the Golden Wand -- representing Fire, the realm of passion and action, recognizes acts of bravery or compassion in the service of others.

Order of the Silver Chalice -- representing Water, the realm of emotion and intuition, recognizes achievement in the Arts, including visual arts, dance, music, etc.

Order of the Iron Pentacle -- representing Earth, the realm of stability, integration, and wisdom, recognizes achievement in teaching, writing, etc.

Order of the Thurible -- representing Spirit, the smoke carrying our prayers to the Gods, recognizes achievement in ritual leadership and writing. This award can also be used to recognize those whose spirituality had inspired others to greater commitment and devotion.

The awards are open to every member of the Correllian Tradition, except for the Arch Priesthood.

The procedure for nominating is simple. Send an email to us at silthoron9@yahoo.com with the word "Nomination" in the subject. We will take it from there. Letters of nomination should be as complete as possible. If you have examples of the person's work, please include any supporting media you have.

Each cycle, the level of the nominations improves. We look forward to some excellent nominees this Spring.

May the Blessings of the Ancestors and the Holy Ones be with you,

Rev. Terry Power, HP

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.
