Runes

Waes Hael!

Last week I discussed how people can become dependant on divination to make their life choices for them. This week I want to move on from that and talk about how by using and understanding runes it becomes pretty clear that you are responsible for your own choices.

Even if we discount the concept of Wyrd, which I have covered in an earlier article, it becomes clear very rapidly that the runes will only let you use them as an emotional crutch for so long before they kick up the backside and get you going again. The runes themselves have a way of simply refusing to work any more if you ask too many pointless questions of them. Which begs the question: what is the right way to ask questions of the runes?

For a start if you have asked the same question three times already and got pretty much the same answer all three times then give it a rest. The runes have told you what they have to tell you. Just because it isn't what you want to hear does not mean the runes will change their answer just to suit your preferences. So that means the first thing you need to think about even before you ask a question is: am I ready to hear the answer and accept it? Really if you are not going to listen to what the runes are saying then you might as well stop before you waste your time.

The runes have a way of not actually answering your question in any case. Very often, especially if it is one of your first few casts, the runes will answer the question that they think you should have asked. This may of course be nothing to do with your question, and can lead to some people being put off or saying that runes don't work. The runes do work. In fact they work so well that they can see through the layers of the lower self and past obstructions to the truth of the matter. There is no point putting barriers up. Apart from the fact that if you are using divination you should be open to receive the messages, the runes will work through them in any case.

The runes are very straightforward. There is very little deep mystical half-hidden truth. They will tell it to you straight and wont spare the punches. So when you think of your question make it straightforward. Don't enter into a deep long dialogue which wanders down several avenues. If you want the runes to give you a direct answer to the question you want answering then ask a direct question. Things like: 'Is my partner being faithful?' 'Should I accept the job offer?'

In response to that if you are reading runes for people don't give great long answers which wander down several avenues either. Sometimes the answer is very short. You don't have to keep going for 5 minutes so that people think they have got their moneys worth. In actual fact you going on and on may be the thing which confuses the client. If people need clarification they will ask you.

The other way you can ask a question is to be a little more open. One very useful phrase I often use is: 'what do I need to know about.....' You can use this for many things and it leaves the runes open to give you an answer about an aspect you haven't thought of. Questions you could ask are: 'what do I need to know about my relationship?' 'What do I need to know about my finances.'

If you are ready to receive an open answer from the runes then you can ask a completely open question. Still keeping it very simple: 'What do I need to know right now in my life?' is an excellent way of touching base with yourself and what is going on around you.

Merry Meet fellow Wiccans to my Wiccan World.

My week has been a good one. We have had a great weather during the week, which has been going on. They have even promised that we will have summer-warmth during the rest of this week, too. I have tried to be out as much as I could, as you never know when it will be bad weather, again. I heard from my mother in law, that this summer will Sweden have the warmest weather ever. Warmer than we have had during the last 150 years, that has past. The future will tell if it's true, or not. I do hope that it will be warm, as last summer wasn't the best at all. It rained most of the summer, and had only about 3 weeks with sunny and nice weather.

Today, Wednesday, I have been meeting my friend who I have known for 34 years. She lives 300 km away from me, so we can't see each other as often as we want to. Now she should up to Stockholm and, take a tour at the Royal Castle with another friend of hers. She took the time to visit me, at the same time. I had a joyous time, and had so much fun this afternoon. We have always felt as we were sisters, so it was a surprise to hear that she was going up here without telling me before hand. I guess she didn't thought of it, until she got nearer Stockholm that she could visit me at the same time.

I and my man have his sister's son over for a visit, today. He is 20 years old, and wanted me to help him to dye his hear black (he has rat-brown originally), and also to cut his hair a bit. I'm an uneducated barber, but have been doing it for family and friends for about 20 years. I have never had anyone complaining about my cutting, so far. Even though, it can take up to 2 hours before I am finished. When I should do the hair for my step-daughter, she was so picky about her hair that I wasn't finished until 5 hours after we started. She was satisfied and that was all that counted.

I have been working with my final exam, but I guess I was a little bit over-estimated with the time to get it finished. I thought that I should be finish and ready to send it in on Sunday, but it takes a lot more time to get the answers finished and in the manner I want it to be. It isn't just to write them in, and think that it is done with that. One has to think as it is a true school paper, and to have it as that. Then it should be with right margins and all that comes with a good report. Nothing should be rushed in finish it, as neither I nor anything else is winning on it. All in good time, and I will always let the Goddess and the God lead me on the right path.

Take care until next time. Blessed be all of you.

Love and Light
Hugz and Blessings

A–Z of Religions: Gnosticism: Ancient and modern

Gnosticism is a philosophical and religious movement which started in pre-Christian times. The name is derived from the Greek word "gnosis" which literally means "knowledge." However, the English words "Insight" and "enlightenment" capture more of the meaning of "gnosis." It is pronounced with a silent "G" (NO-sis). Gnosticism is not factual, intellectual, rational knowledge, such as is involved in mathematics and physics; that would have been more accurately represented by the Greek word "episteme." Rather, Gnosticism involves the relational or experiential knowledge of God and of the divine or spiritual nature within us.

Gnostics believe that they have secret knowledge about God, humanity and the rest of the universe of which the general population was unaware. It became one of the three main belief systems within 1st century Christianity, and was noted for four factors by which differed from the two other branches of Christianity: Novel beliefs about Gods, the Bible and the world which differed from those of other Christian groups.

Tolerance of different religious beliefs within and outside of Gnosticism.

Lack of discrimination against women. Although Jesus treated women as equals, and Paul mostly did the same, the other Christian belief systems started to oppress women in later generations.

A belief that salvation is achieved through relational and experiential knowledge. In the words of The contemporary Gnostic Apostolic Church, humanity needs to be awakened and brought "to a realisation of his true nature. Mankind is moving towards the Omega Point, the Great day when all must graduate or fall. This day is also the Day of Judgment in that only those who have entered the Path of Transfiguration and are being reborn can return to the Treasury of Light."

The movement and its literature were essentially wiped out before the end of the 5th century CE by Catholic heresy hunters and the Roman Army. Its beliefs are currently experiencing a rebirth throughout the world, triggered in part by the discovery of an ancient Gnostic library at Nag Hammadi, Egypt in the 1940s, and the finding of the Gospel of Judas at El Minya, Egypt, in the 1970s.

The Nag Hummadi find revealed that there was a broad range of beliefs among the various independent Gnostic systems or schools. However, the following points are believed to be generally accurate throughout the movement: Their Role: They believed that they alone truly understood Christ's message, and that other streams of thought within Christianity had misinterpreted Jesus' mission and sayings.

Gnosis: Knowledge to them was not an intellectual exercise; it was not a passive understanding of some aspect of spirituality. Rather, knowledge had a redeeming and liberating function that helped the individual break free of bondage to the world.

Deity: The Supreme Father God or Supreme God of Truth is remote from human affairs; he is unknowable and undetectable by human senses. She/he created a series of supernatural but finite beings called Aeons. One of these was Sophia, a virgin, who in turn gave birth to an defective, inferior Creator-God, also known as the Demiurge. (Demiurge means "public craftsman" in Greek.) This lower God is sometimes called Yaldabaoth or Ialdabaoth Jaldabaoth -- from Aramaic words meaning "begetter of the Heavens." This is Jehovah, the God of the Hebrew Scriptures (Old Testament). He is portrayed as the creator of the earth and its life forms. He is viewed by Gnostics as fundamentally evil, jealous, rigid, lacking in compassion, and prone to genocide. The Demiurge "thinks that he is supreme. His pride and incompetence have resulted in the sorry state of the world as we know it, and in the blind and ignorant condition of most of mankind."

Duality of spirit and body: Spirit is of divine origin and good; the body is inherently earthly and evil. Gnostics were hostile to the physical world, to matter and the human body. But they believed that trapped within some people's bodies were the sparks of divinity or seeds of light that were supplied to humanity by Sophia.

Salvation: A person attains salvation by learning secret knowledge of their spiritual essence: a divine spark of light or spirit. They then have the opportunity to escape from the prison of their bodies at death.

Their soul can ascend to be reunited with the Supreme God at the time of their death. Gnostics divided humanity into three groups: The spiritual, who would be saved irrespective of their behavior while on earth. The Soulful, who could be saved if they followed the Gnostic path. The carnal who are hopelessly lost.

Evil: They did not look upon the world as having been created perfectly and then having degenerated as a result of the sin of Adam and Eve. Rather the world was seen as being evil at the time of its origin, because it had been created by an inferior God.

Snake: Some Gnostic sects honored the snake. They did not view the snake as a seducer who led the first couple into sinful behavior. Rather, they saw him/it as a liberator who brought knowledge to Adam and Eve by convincing them to eat of the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil and thus to become fully human.

Christ: The role of the redeemer in Gnostic belief is heavily debated at this time. Gnostics seem to have looked upon Christ as a revealer or liberator, rather than a savior or judge. His purpose was to spread knowledge which would free individuals from the Demiurge's control and allow them to return to their spiritual home with the Supreme God at death. Some Gnostic groups promoted Docetism, the belief that Christ was pure spirit and only had a phantom body; Jesus just appeared to be human to his followers. They reasoned that a true emissary from the Supreme God could not have been overcome by the evil of the world, and to have suffered and died. These beliefs were considered heresy by many non-Gnostic Christians. Some Gnostics believed that Christ's resurrection occurred at or before Jesus' death on the cross. They defined his resurrection as occurring when his spirit was liberated from his body. Many Gnostics believed that Jesus had both male and female disciples.

The Universe: This is divided into three kingdoms:

The "Earthly Cosmos": The earth is the center of the universe, and is composed of the world that we know of and an underworld. It is surrounded by air and by 7 concentric heavenly spheres: one for each of the Moon, Venus, Mercury, Sun, Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn. (Although the planet Uranus is visible to the naked eye, it was not recognized as a planet in ancient times.) Within these spheres live demonic, tyrannical entities called Archons. Beyond them lies Paradise which contains the "Tree of Life", the "Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil", and the flaming, turning sword of Genesis 3:24. Beyond Paradise was the sphere of the fixed stars, divided into the 12 signs of the zodiac.

The "Intermediate Kingdom is composed of an inner blue circle of darkness and an outer yellow ring of light. Within these rings is a sphere which is the realm of Sophia.

The "Kingdom of God" consists of two spheres: an outer one of the unknowable Supreme God, and inner ring of the Son.

Gnostic practices:

Little is known about the rituals, organizational structure and practices of the ancient Gnostics. Almost all Gnostic texts were destroyed during various campaigns to suppress the movement. Although some of their religious writings survive, there is little information about how the groups actually functioned. Religious historians believe that: Many Gnostics were probably solitary practitioners. Others were members of mainline Christian congregations, probably forming a clique within each church.

There was no consensus on a "canon of Gnostic scripture." Many books were circulated in different versions; various schools within the movement had their own preferred rendition.

Many Gnostic texts were written by (or attributed to) women. Mary Magdalene played an important role in many Gnostic writings, often being second only to Jesus in status. They used both female and male images for the Supreme God. Theologians speculate that they probably treated women members as equal (or of almost equal status) to men in their communities.

Some groups poured a substance over the head of a member when they were dead or dying, and recited certain ritual phrases. This was intended to help the individual's soul ascend through the dangerous heavens of the Archons towards the Supreme God.

Some Gnostic groups had a ritual in which new members were baptized saying: "In the name of the Father unknown to all, in the Truth, Mother of All, in the One who came down upon Jesus, in the union, redemption and communion of powers."

A-Z of Dragons

Submitted by Rev. Nehal

BRINSOP

Origin: England

Brinsop is believed to be the dragon that St. George killed.

St George was originally a Roman Calvary officer who was known for his courage in war. He was a mighty sight on his white war-horse. He eventually converted to Christianity, and to show the people that Christians did not have to be meek, he sought out to fight a dragon that was destroying the area around Cappadocia. The people of the town tried to calm the beast with sacrifices of their best sheep. This worked for a while, but then the dragon attacked again. The poor people had to give up what they thought would rid the animal of their town: a virgin princess. George slayed the dragon with the lance he had in his hand while charging with his huge steed. Because of this heroic deed, other Christian Knights sought out to save damsels in distress from dragons, and how dragons eventually got slaughtered into being just a myth.

BEOWULF'S DRAGON

Origin: Anglo-Saxon

This fire-breathing dragon was greedy, fierce, and ruthless - the classic Western Dragon.

A servant who was running away from the trouble he was in accidentally discovered the dragon's hoard at a burial ground near the town. Thinking that a nice gold goblet would buy him out of trouble, the servant quietly took it, and ran back to the kingdom. The dragon woke up at night, and checked his treasure. Upon finding one of his favourite trinkets gone, the dragon was extremely angry. To vent its anger the dragon swept through Beowulf's lands and set fire to the villages.

Beowulf, even though he was up in age, decided he had to rid his land of this terrible dragon. He gathered a small band of the best warriors and went off to find this creature. He gathers up some warriors and heads off to find the dragon. A young man of the group, Wiglaf begs Beowulf to help him fight the dragon, but he refuses and goes to the dragon alone. At the cave entrance, Beowulf challenges the dragon to come out so he could destroy it. The dragon belched flames at him as Beowulf raises his shield against the burning fire. He rushes the dragon and strikes the dragon, but breaks his sword. He reaches for his dagger but is too late as the dragon bites him.

Wiglaf rushes to the King's side and jams the sword into the soft underside of the dragon's jaw. The dragon lets go and Wiglaf and the King hack the dragon until it collapsed. The poison from the dragon's mouth was killing Beowulf. Eager to please the King, Wiglaf grabs an armful of treasure to show Beowulf. The king gives Wiglaf his helmet and ring, and tells him he is King of the Geats now.

“A History of Healing Within Witchcraft and Paganism – part 3”,

Printed in The Spirit Guide to SPELLCRAFT issue 8 Autumn (Australia). By Janet and Stewart Farrar and Gavin Bone.

Concerning healing among the common people in the Dark Ages
The Nine Herbs Charm (verse 1 and 2)

Forget not Mugwort, what thou didst reveal,
What thou didst prepare at Regenmeld,
Thou hast strength against poison and infection,
Thou hast strength against the foe who fares throughout the land.

And thou Plantain, mother of herbs, Open from the East, mighty within,
Over thee chariots creaked, over thee queens rode,
Over thee brides made outcry, over thee bulls gnashed their teeth.
All these though didst withstand and resist.
So mayest thou withstand poison and infection
And the foe who fares throughout the land.

Mugwort (Artemisia vulgaris) – The Witches Herb.

Mugwort was in ancient times considered the universal herb for protection, and for prophecy. It was used to treat pain, healing wounds, and for lucid dreaming and promoting psychic powers.

It was used in ancient China and Japan as well as in ancient Europe to ward off evil spirits and the spirits of disease.

Mugwort was the basic ingredient in beer before the introduction of Hops in the 17th century, and was also smoked by sailors when they ran out of tobacco while at sea, (personally: I don't know how they stood the smell).

In Roman times it was called the travelers herb and roman soldiers placed it inside their sandals for endurance on long marches.

It was noted by one general that his men marched 10 miles further and faster when using Mugwort.

In magic and ritual, Mugwort tea was drunk before divination and was also burnt as an incense for 'transporting' experiences. It is known as a visionary herb and today it is used to increase our psychic abilities.

In Native American Practice, Mugwort was burnt as a smudge to purify the environment, both the physical and the spiritual. The herbal Tea was drunk by women when suffering delayed menstruation, or for relieving them of an unwanted pregnancy. Mugwort relaxes the Uterine wall so expectant mothers should NEVER use it!

Mugwort is a power herb and if you try it out by placing a leaf or two under your pillow and see what your dreams are like, see whether they manifest for you.

Smoking or breathing in the incense smoke will aid in this lucid dreaming and drinking the tea will act as a liver cleanser.

Just remember if you are pregnant don't touch it!

Mugwort relieves aching feet, or sore leg muscles, keeps you calm and in the now. It can be smoked for the treatment of pain, used as a compress and as a poultice for boils, carbuncles, abscesses, tropical ulcers and for sore, painful muscles. Added to a bath it helps relieve tired muscles, rheumatism and gout. In Traditional Chinese Medicine dried Mugwort is burnt and the smoke is used to treat muscular pain (Moxification). This really does work.

And lastly fresh mugwort leaves fed to farm animals is an excellent anti parasitic, it also works on humans.

Plantain (Plantago major),

Known by many names some of which include; Broad – Leaved Plantain, Ripple grass, Waybread, Snakeweed, White Man's Foot and in Anglo-Saxon Weybroed. Plantain belongs to the Plantaginaceae family

Found in such abundance this family, was considered by Culpeper too common to even bother describing. The hon. Mrs. Grieve however describes some seven species in detail. David Hoffman (The New Holistic Herbal pg. 224) calls it Greater Plantain and is the only one of the three who actually shows you what you are looking for. A low growing broad – leaved plant with long flower stalks rising from the centre of the plant, it looks similar to Symphytum (comfrey) in its manner of growth. Broad leaves close to the ground etc.

This herb has many uses as some of its common names point to. It is an astringent, expectorant, demulcent and a diuretic.

So it helps to correct conditions such as diarrhoea and haemorrhoids by its astringent action on the gut also on the bladder in Cystitis particularly when accompanied by bleeding, here its diuretic properties help also by flushing the Kidneys and Bladder. Its demulcent properties soothes inflamed and sore membranes in Bronchial conditions and sore throats etc. and its expectorant properties help to loosen and remove excess mucous.

An Ointment made from Plantain can be used to treat haemorrhoids and small cuts.

Pliny wrote of Plantain, "If it be put into a pot where many pieces of flesh are boiling, it will sodden them together". Sounds like Symphytum (Comfrey) doesn't it. In fact of old Plantain and comfrey were often used together to heal wounds of torn flesh and broken bones.

In America it is called Snake weed due to its efficacy as a healer of venomous sting and bite.

According to Mrs. Grieve the following salve for flying venom comes from the ancient “Lacnunga”.

“Take one handful of Hammer wort and a handful of Maythe (Chamomile) and a handful of Weybroed and roots of water dock, seek those which will float, and one eggshell full of clean honey, then take clean butter, let him who would help to work the salve, melt it thrice: let one sing a mass over the worts, before they are put together and the salve is made up”.

This herb is listed in the old herbals as one with many uses and it was considered that all of the plants in this family were very useful plants though cultivation was not considered an option as it grew in waste areas where nothing else would flourish and destroyed other more delicate plants and grasses by covering them with its broad prolific leaves. It provides fodder for pigs, goats and sheep but cattle and horses won't eat it.

Culpeper recommended it for Spreading scabs, tetter, ringworm, shingles etc.

Salmon's Herbal in 1710 lists its uses, for respiratory conditions – “Rheum upon the throat, glands, Lungs, etc. ulceration of the lungs and resultant cough, epilepsy, dropsy, jaundice and opens obstructions of the liver and spleen, inflammation of the eyes and ears.”

Herbalists sang its praise from Pliny to Mrs. Grieve, it is one of the nine Herbs of Anglo – Saxon tradition.

Chaucer and Shakespeare both wrote about Plantain and who am I to try and top that..

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

The Order of Web Weavers Crystal Web Mapping Project

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: wwcw@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,
The Order of Web Weavers
