Multi-faith Calendar

Rev. Nehal

Coming up:

2nd November – All Souls' Day (Christian)

All Souls' Day is marked on 2nd November (or the 3rd if the 2nd is a Sunday), directly following All Saints' Day, and is an opportunity for Roman Catholics and Anglo-Catholic churches to commemorate the faithful departed. They remember and pray for the souls of people who are in Purgatory - the place (or state) in which those who have died atone for their less grave sins before being granted the vision of God in Heaven (called Beatific vision).

Reasoning behind this stems from the notion that when a soul leaves the body, it is not entirely cleansed from venial (minor) sins. However, through the power of prayer and self-denial, the faithful left on earth may be able to help these souls gain the Beatific Vision they seek, bringing the soul eternal sublime happiness.

A 7/8th century AD prayer The Office of the Dead is read out in churches on All Souls' Day. Other rituals include the offering of Requiem Mass for the dead, visiting family graves and reflecting on lost loved ones. In Mexico, on el dia de los muertos (Day of the Dead), people take picnics to their family graves and leave food out for their dead relatives.

Whilst praying for the dead is an ancient Christian tradition, it was Odilo, Abbot of Cluny (France) who, in 998AD, designated a specific day for remembering and praying for those in the process of purification. This started as a local feast in his monasteries and gradually spread throughout the Catholic Church towards the end of the 10th century AD.

For the souls in purgatory, waiting for eternal happiness and for meeting the Beloved is a source of suffering, because of the punishment due to sin, which separates them from God. But there is also the certitude that once the time of purification is over; the souls will go to meet the One it desires. Letter of Pope John Paul II for Millennium of All Souls' Day.

Coronation of Emporor Haile Selassie I (Rastafari)

From the 1930s until the mid 1970s most Rastafarians accepted the traditional Rastafari beliefs.

But in 1973 Joseph Owens published a more modern approach to Rastafari beliefs. In 1991 Michael N. Jagessar revised Owens's ideas, devising his own systematic approach to Rastafari theology and providing an insight into the changes in the group's beliefs.

The key ideas in contemporary Rastafari are:

- The humanity of God and the divinity of man
 - This refers to the importance of Haile Selassie who is perceived by Rastafarians as a living God. Likewise it emphasises the concept of God revealing himself to his followers through his humanity.
- God is found within every man

- Rastafarians believe that God makes himself known through humanity. According to Jagessar "there must be one man in whom he exists most eminently and completely, and that is the supreme man, Rastafari, Selassie I."
- God in history
 - It is very important to see all historical facts in the context of God's judgement and workings.
- Salvation on earth
 - Salvation for Rastafarians is an earthly idea, rather than heavenly.
- The supremacy of life
 - Human nature is very important to Rastafarians and they should preserve and protect it.
- Respect for nature
 - This idea refers to the importance and respect Rastafarians have for animals and the environment, as mirrored in their food laws.
- The power of speech
 - Speech is very important to Rastafarians, as it enables the presence and power of God to be felt.
- Evil is corporate
 - Sin is both personal and corporate. This means organisations such as the International Monetary Fund are responsible for Jamaica's fiscal situation, and that oppression is in part influenced by them.
- Judgement is near
 - This corresponds to the nearness of judgement for Rastafarians when they will be given greater recognition.
- The priesthood of Rastafarians
 - Rastafarians are the chosen people of God and are on earth to promote his power and peacefulness.

(Joseph Owens The Rastafarians of Jamaica, 1973 pp. 167-70 and Jagessar, JPIC and Rastafarians, 1991 pp. 15-17.)

To modern Rastafari the most important doctrine is belief in the divinity of Haile Selassie I. Although some Rastafarians still regard Haile Selassie as the black messiah, many modern adherents do not see this as central to their faith.

Haile Selassie's death in 1975 was described by his followers as his 'disappearance', since they refused to believe he has passed away. Following his death and the increased acceptance of Jamaican culture in society many Rastafarian beliefs have been modified.

According to Nathaniel Samuel Murrell:

...brethren have reinterpreted the doctrine of repatriation as voluntary migration to Africa, returning to Africa culturally and symbolically, or rejecting Western values and preserving African roots and black pride. Nathaniel Samuel Murrell in 'Chanting Down Babylon', 1998, page 6.

The previous belief that white people are evil has diminished and is no longer central to Rastafarian belief systems.

The idea of Babylon has also developed to represent all oppressive organisations and countries in the world.

Birthday of Guru Nanak (Lunar calendar) (Sikh)

Guru Nanak (1469-1539) was one of the greatest religious innovators of all time and the founder of the Sikh religion.

Guru Nanak's birthday is celebrated by Sikhs on April 14th by the Nanakshahi calendar. (The date according to the lunar calendar changes annually but is usually in November.)

Nanak's religious ideas draw on both Hindu and Islamic thought, but are far more than just a synthesis. Nanak was an original spiritual thinker and expressed his thoughts in extraordinary poetry that forms the basis of Sikh scripture.

Little is known about the life of Nanak, but Sikh tradition has a much-loved set of stories or janam sakhis which relate various incidents from his life, and include many of his important teachings.

Nanak was born about 40 miles from Lahore (now in Pakistan) in 1469. Sikh traditions teach that his birth and early years were marked with many events that demonstrated that God had marked him out for something special and was keeping an eye on him.

His family were Hindus, but Nanak soon showed an advanced interest in religion and studied Islam and Hinduism extensively. As a child he demonstrated great ability as a poet and philosopher.

One famous story about Guru Nanak tells of his rebellion at the age of eleven. At this age Hindu boys of his caste would start to wear the sacred thread to distinguish them. Nanak refused, saying that people should be distinguished by the things that they did, and their individual qualities, rather than by a thread.

Nanak continued to demonstrate a radical spiritual streak - arguing with local holy men and sages, both Hindu and Muslim, that external things like pilgrimages, penances, and poverty were of far less spiritual importance than internal changes to the individual's soul.

He worked for a while as an accountant but while still quite young decided to devote himself to spiritual matters. He was inspired by a powerful spiritual experience that gave him a vision of the true nature of God, and confirmed his idea that the way to spiritual growth was through meditation and through living in a way that reflected the presence of the divine within each human being.

In 1496, although married and having a family, Nanak set out on a set of spiritual journeys through India, Tibet and Arabia that lasted nearly 30 years. He studied and debated with the learned men he met along the way and as his ideas took shape he began to teach a new route to spiritual fulfilment and the good life.

The last part of his life was spent at Kartarpur in the Punjab, where he was joined by many disciples attracted by his teachings.

The most famous teachings attributed to Guru Nanak are that there is only one God, and that all human beings can have direct access to God with no need of rituals or priests. His most radical social teachings denounced the caste system and taught that everyone is equal, regardless of caste or gender.

Wiccans celebrate autumn holiday in their own fashion

alutey@capitalnewspapers.com

Various items adorn an altar in preparation for a Samhain ritual. Samhain, one of eight major pagan festivals during the year, is celebrated on Oct. 31. It marks the passing of the seasons, honors the dead and is considered the beginning of the new year. The ancient Celtic observation of Samhain evolved into Halloween, All Saint's Day and All Souls Day. CAMBRIA — An ancient celebration that evolved into Halloween and All Saints Day celebrations was observed this weekend.

A couple who live south of Cambria hosted more than 15 guests at their home on Saturday night for a Samhain ritual, led by the Rev. Peter Hertzberg.

Hertzberg is the chief priest at Northern Lakes Temple in Watertown, a Correllian Nativist Wiccan Church. He said that the Correllian Nativist tradition is a blend of Native American shamanism and Celtic and Scottish mysticism.

Samhain, one of eight major pagan festivals held during the year, marks the passing of the seasons and honors the dead. Hertzberg said it is also considered the beginning of the pagan new year.

"The veil is thinnest between the worlds," Hertzberg said of why the dead are honored on Oct 31.

"A lot of things are coming back," said Hertzberg of pagan beliefs, "Including a reverence for nature. To a Wiccan, all life is sacred."

Hertzberg, who was raised Lutheran, said he began studying world religions while doing research for a novel he hoped to write. He started asking questions about his faith and found that Wicca was a better fit for his spirituality. He said there are many correlations between Judeo-Christian beliefs and Wicca.

He is a third degree legally ordained Wiccan priest, and said that his studies have taken him nine years. He said he has students in Wisconsin and all over the world.

"It's not hocus pocus. It is a real religion with real beliefs," Hertzberg said. "We're normal people ... we're just like everyone else out there. We have families, we have jobs, we contribute to society."

Hertzberg said that there are two basic tenets in Wicca, "Do as you will and harm ye none."

"We take responsibility for our own actions" said Hertzberg of the Wiccan Law of Threes.

"Whatever you put out there, in energy, thought or deed, comes back to you threefold."

He said that Northern Lakes Temple will host an international lustration, a purification ceremony, in April. The event will draw guests from across the United States, Canada, Mexico, Australia and the United Kingdom. It will have workshops, and the Rev. Selena Fox of Circle Sanctuary as the keynote speaker.

"It's not about the destination, it's about the journey," Hertzberg said of life.

More about Samhain and Wiccan festivals

Samhain, Gaelic for “summer’s end” and pronounced “sau-when,” is celebrated on Oct. 31. It marks the passing of the seasons, honors the dead and is considered the beginning of the new year.

It is one of eight major Wiccan days of power, known as sabbats, observed during the year. Wiccans also celebrate 12 to 13 esbats during the year, rituals honoring the phases of the moon, held when the moon is full.

Samhain celebrations evolved into Halloween, All Saints’ Day and the Day of the Dead. The roots of Halloween traditions like costumes and jack-o-lanterns can be traced to Samhain customs.

Other sabbats include Imbolc on Feb. 2, Beltane on April 30, Lughnasach on Aug. 1 and the spring and autumn equinoxes and summer and winter solstices.

The Rev. Peter Hertzberg said that when putting together a ritual and decorating a ritual space, the only people who need to be pleased are the ones who are there.

The Samhain ritual held on Saturday opened with the cleansing of the space by smudging with a bundle of dried sage. The altar include a chalice, candles, salt and water that Hertzberg said came from Salem, Mass.

Hertzberg said that while the ritual is traditionally held outdoors, Saturday’s ritual was held indoors to meet the health needs of guests.

The ritual included the calling of the quarters — facing each direction on the compass and invoking the spirit and element associated with it: east is air, south is fire, west is water and north is earth.

Candles were lit to honor the dead, an offering was shared and Hertzberg told a Wiccan creation story.

Wiccans say narrow minds led to them to relocate to Salem, Mass.

By MIKE HELENTHAL
of The Associated Press

ROSSVILLE —

Owners of a Rossville-based witch school say narrow minds and narrower bandwidth led to their recent decision to move the operation to Salem, Mass.

The school faced a cauldron of controversy in September 2003 when it opened its doors in Hoopston, with many residents and religious officials expressing worry and suspicion over the new neighbor.

In 2007, the school changed locations, moving south on Illinois Route 1 to Rossville to set up a downtown storefront.

By Saturday, on the Wiccan New Year's celebration of Halloween, the operation will disappear into thin air.

"Personally, I'm kind of sad to see them go," Rossville Mayor Terry Prillaman said. "It means we have to find another business to fill that location."

Prillaman said he was aware of some of the negative perceptions surrounding the school and its practice of the nature-based Wicca religion but said the business neither caused problems there, nor received negativity from officials.

"Any problems they ran into were not because of the city," he said.

"We wanted to build the Salem of the Midwest," said Ed Hubbard, one of the owners of the school, in a telephone interview from the new Massachusetts location.

"We thought we could win people over. We shouldn't have to prove we have the right to be here," he said. "This is not a criticism of the mayor, because he's welcomed us from the start but we've got other people blocking us. Rossville has been very cold."

He said walk-in traffic for the store had been dismal and that phenomenal growth through the company's Web site had become too large to depend on the rural area's Internet service. The Web site, www.witchschool.com, claims to be one of the top 100,000 Web sites in the world and has grown from 50,000 members to almost 250,000. At one point, the school employed 11.

"Our (Internet) service has been down for a week at a time more than once this year," he said of current service. "It's become kind of impossible doing our work there. I have resources and members I have to take care of."

Prillaman said claims of poor Internet service are true, but the issue would soon be resolved with Avenue Broadband's installation of high-speed cable access during the next few weeks.

"When the service is down, you can't do a whole lot," he said. "I've turned the air blue more than once waiting for dial-up. It has been a problem."

Fred Sigle, pastor of Rossville Church of Christ, said he and his congregation were happy to see the witch school and what it represents leave the community.

"Certainly, anybody is welcome to come here," he said, "but I also believe the Bible teaches against witchcraft."

He said he was unaware of anything suspicious or dangerous happening at the school, but, "There are some people who claim they've seen things." He did not elaborate.

His church's biggest concern has been the operation's influence on local school-age children. He said the church wasn't discriminating against Wicca believers, but showing Rossville is a "Christian community."

"There were a lot of teenagers from the area going into the store out of curiosity," he said. "I don't think it was a good influence."

Sigle said he felt that prayer had much to do with the witch school leaving.

"I believe so," he said. "We had certainly actively prayed about it, but we also pray about the drug problems and other issues facing the community as well."

Don Lewis, a Danville native whose family is credited with founding the Correllian Wicca "tradition" in Vermilion County 130 years ago, and co-owner of the business, said he is sad to be leaving the area.

"What people didn't realize was, witches were already living there," he said. "When I was growing up, it was something you just didn't talk about. It's unfortunate that people have to be that afraid."

He said moving to Salem, where an estimated 10 percent of the population adheres to the Wicca religion, was "a bittersweet decision." He said the temple in Vermilion County will continue to operate despite the store moving.

"The spirit puts us where he wants us and where we need to be," he said. "It is kind of strange to be here in Salem talking to a reporter from the Danville Commercial-News. But we have to do this to continue teaching our people."

Virginia Powell, a Wicca high priestess who worked at the store, said she is saddened by the loss of the local "resource" as well as the loss of her job. Powell said she's disabled and will be hard-pressed to find alternative employment so close to home and in a field she enjoys.

"I was already studying with the school before they came here," she said. "I've done this all my life for a long time, only my closest friends knew. There's nothing Satanic about it; we don't sacrifice animals or go after the kids. There's not a whole lot I can do now."

Quote & Thought of the Day

Rev. Nehal

Quote of the Day:

*Trials are but lessons that you failed to learn,
presented once again.
So, where you made a faulty choice before,
you can now make a better one,
and thus escape all pain
that what you chose before has brought to you.*

A Course In Miracles

Thought of the day:

Start here

You cannot move forward from some idealized point in the future that has not yet arrived. If you are to move forward, you must do it from where you are now.

Start from where you are. Though it may not be perfect, it is plenty to get you going.

Make full use of what you already have. Wishing for more, or feeling resentment because you don't have more, will only waste your precious time.

There's no guarantee that your actions will be effective. Yet you are certain to not be effective if you take no action at all.

Open yourself to the fullness of your possibilities. Step positively forward using what you have, from where you are right now.

Gently and thankfully accept where you are. And tap into the unique richness that has always been yours.

Worst Enemy

He is our love.
At times we truly hate him.
He brings us great pleasure.
Know one else has ever hurt us as deeply.
We cannot live without him.
Death would sometimes be more welcome.
He sets our spirits free.
He locks the chains in place around our hearts.
He gives us life as he steals our breath.
He shines with bright white light.
He shrouds us in the darkness.
He is our friend and still our worst enemy.
We run from him, yet he is the one that we all seek.
He is love.

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: www@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,
The Order of Web Weavers

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at krystelneuman@yahoo.com

May You Blessed Be
Krystel
