Pagan Calendar February 7 – 13

February 7. On this date (approximately), the annual spring fertility festival known as Li Chum is celebrated in China. Bamboo and paper effigies of a water buffalo (an animal which symbolizes "new life") are carried through the streets by a temple-bound procession. After reaching the temple, the effigies are set on fire in the belief that prayers for prosperity will be taken up to heaven by the rising smoke.

February 8. The annual nighttime ritual known as the Star Festival is celebrated on this date (approximately) in China. The stars that influence the fate of mankind are honored by the lighting of 108 small lanterns on a special altar, and prayers are offered to the sacred stars that governed one's birth.

February 9. In northern Norway, the Narvik Sun Pageant is held annually on this date in honor of the ancient Pagan goddess who rules over the Sun. The festival, which has been celebrated since pre-Christian times, begins at sunrise and continues throughout the day until the shadows of evening darken the sky.

February 10. An ancient African festival marking the beginning of the fishing season and the New Year is celebrated annually on this day by members of the Kebbawa tribe of Nigeria. The ancient gods of their religion are honored and invoked, and traditional fish iverinations are performed. In pre-Christian times, the goddess Anaitis was honored on this day in the country of Persia (now Iran). She was a deity who was said to have possessed great powers over the Moon and the seas.

February 11. Each year on this date, millions of faithful men, women, and children make a pilgrimage to the shrine of Our Lady in Lourdes. A spring in the village of Lourdes, France, is believed by many to possess curative powers. The pilgrims bathe in the water in the hope that it will heal their illnesses and disabilities.

February 12. On this date in the year 1663, the infamous clergyman Cotton Mather was born in Boston, Massachusetts. (This is certainly one birthday no Witch would ever celebrate!) His writings and sermons condemning the practice of the Old Religion contributed greatly to the hysteria of the 1692 Salem Witch-hunt. Cotton Mather died in Boston, one day after his birthday, in the year 1728.

February 13. On this date, an annual holiday called the Parentalia was observed in ancient Rome. It lasted until the twenty-first of February and was a day for families to honor and commemorate their deceased loved ones, particularly their parents. During the week of Parentalia, all temples in Rome were closed and all wedding ceremonies forbidden. Ancestral tombs were visited and offerings of wine and flowers were made to family ghosts.

Living Wiccan

In this day in age nearly everyone who is of my generation, and my culture (that is, between the ages of 18 and 25, and “American”) and in even other age groups and culture relies heavily on technology to do or know the same things our Ancestors would do or know either instinctively or equally as effective without the use of our electrical devices of laziness.

I learned recently that technology is not infallible. Normally I would sing the praises of technological advances that helped made things happy, and I wouldn't be too upset when my “HP Pavilion” crashed on me at 2 a.m. while I was writing a paper. However this most recent act of technological screw up has got me heated, this technological screw up effected the practice my craft.

The story starts on Monday morning. I was browsing the “App store” on my new “iPhone” and I typed in Wicca, a bunch of “Apps” and “iBooks” came up and I proceeded to look at them and download only the free ones. I then searched for a compass “Application” because when I am in my room I can never tell where the actually points are. So I found a Compass and I installed it. By this time I was really excited, in my mind technology was going to help me be a more effective witch. Or so I thought.

Finally I typed in a Moon Phase in the search bar and a bunch of applications popped up. So I looked a bunch and I ended up buying one. (which almost NEVER HAPPENS.) So I installed the new app on my wonderful phone. After all that excitement, I decided I had to use my new tools as soon as possible, so right then and there I consecrated and blessed my “iPhone.”

Once finished I looked at my day planner, and then my night planner and I saw that Friday the 4th of February was going to be the day for me to get to work. Over the course of the week I assembled the things I would need for a new moon ritual because my handy dandy “Moon Phase Tracker” application told me that Friday February the 4th was going to be a new moon. The gadget even had a pretty convincing picture with the words “New Moon” written below it.

Friday Finally gets here and I am looking forward to the ritual all day. Night finally falls and I get all my things together. I trod out to the back yard which is covered in snow and ice. I get to the center of the yard, my circle and call the quarters. (I was outside so I didn't need the gadget to tell me where the directions were.) I raise my head and arms to the sky preparing to invoke the goddess and I see it, for the first time since I had come outside. It was the moon. It was beautiful, it was powerful and magnificent, it was a waning crescent. There it was a decent sized sliver of moon sitting there on what I was told was going to be a new moon

I was slightly enraged by this, I wanted to do a new moon ritual. I had done a new moon ritual in like 2 months. I decided that I wasn't going to pack up and go in. I was already out and underneath the moon so I sat on what would have been the altar and grounded and center. I began to practice my third degree exercises for the second time that day. It was a new spin to them because this time I pulled in energy from my surroundings outside.

I pulled it in from the snow, and the bare tree across the fence, I pulled it in from the evergreen that my back was touching, and I even pulled some in from the moon. I felt really good, by the time I had finished the exercises I felt a little buzzed. It wasn't a bad buzz, not like I had been out drinking and now had to stumble around. It was more like an "okay Phoenix, sit down and ground and center again before you try to walk upstairs."

Even though I got a chance to do my exercises for a second time that day I am still going to file this experience as a fail for myself. My more ancient and even my less ancient counterparts would have never been misled, not because they didn't have an iPhone app, but because their instincts were on point.

Needless to say I deleted the moon phase app, and the compass app. I decided id figure it out a different way, and I will probably be a better witch for it.

Some Thoughts on Prosperity Spells

Electra
Staff Writer

What is prosperity?

Prosperity means to thrive, to flourish especially in financial matters. In the times we are living, everyone needs a little help in their financial life and there is nothing wrong about that. Witches stand on a more solid ground than the others, since they can direct their energy consciously towards this purpose by using magic. In many books concerning Wicca I have read about the rule of never working towards personal gain. In this aspect, many on the wiccan path might wonder: 'if this is the case, then why prosperity spells are created?'

When I first started 'walking' on this path, I had had the same question in my mind, avoiding to perform prosperity spells. Later on, after some more reading and thinking on a more philosophical basis I realized that a wiccan witch can perform prosperity spells for herself, because as individuals living in a material world, we certainly are in need of some material goods in order to survive. This debate in my mind seemed a lot with the debate among witches, if it is right to charge for a magical service or not. Of course, the answer to this question was exactly the same as to the question stated in the beginning of the article.

After having thought all of these things, I ended up believing that a witch can ask enough for her needs and perhaps a little more. I found this aspect very moral and morality is one of the main guidelines in magic. As witches, we are obliged to follow the moral ethics of Witchcraft in order to achieve a personal growth with the help of the Goddess.

The Goddess will show us our needs and give us the potential to gain what we need. There is no reason into looking for more than we need, since magic will find its way and we will never get it, if we want to remain moral individuals.

The performance of a prosperity spell should be made under the thought that the Goddess knows our needs better than we do. Casting our needs into the Universe and giving emotion and thought to this works better, when we express our genuine needs and not something that has to do with ambition or overspending. Spells are more effective, when they are triggered by genuine need generated by real emotion and decision on a practical level. We cannot overspend and ask from the Goddess to give us more money, since overspending does not have to do with a genuine need but rather with our need to consume.

So yes, in my opinion, a witch can perform a prosperity spell for herself. There is nothing wrong with asking from the Goddess and the Universe what you need to survive. Our Higher Self will guide us, show us the way to the divine and let us know what we truly need. We just have to have our eyes open and our senses active, taking always into consideration our ethics as witches. Our spiritual development is the most important step into becoming one with the Universe and the Goddess Herself.

MAGICAL INGREDIENT OF THE WEEK: Acacia

Acacia:

This plant is ruled by Zeus, Ra, Bast and other solar deities and is a plant from which every part can be used, a branch ,a flower, a gum, an extract oil or even a bark.

Burning dried flowers can bring wisdom and insight ,while its oil can be anointed in order to purify .It can also be used for contacting with the dead and for this purpose should be rubbed into a white candle and not anointed to the body. If you mix it with musk or camellia oil, it is said to bring happiness and joy.

"I am the tool you are the fire fill this cup with all I desire."
Swirl the tea in the cup and drink it.

A SPELL TO GAIN ENERGY

Materials: A bright red or orange candle, a spicy incense, a glass of clear pure cold water, and a bowl of sea salt. If is sunny out you may want to start the spell by going outside for a few minutes and breathing in some fresh air.

Sit in front of the candle and say:
"Give me energy to happily complete the task I have been given to do.
I will feel better for having done it. The completion of the task will be my reward."

Sprinkle the sea salt around the candle and say,
"Give me strength, O sacred Earth."

Pass your hand near the candle and say
"Give me strength O sacred Fire."

Pass your hand through the smoke of the incense and say,
"Give me strength, O sacred Air."

Drink the water down and say
"Give me strength O sacred water."

Now immediately get up and go do your task

Stargazing Information

<http://stardate.org/nightsky>

As the nights grow shorter during February, the stars of winter reign for much of the night. Beautiful Orion is in the south at nightfall, with dazzling Sirius, the brightest star in the night sky, twinkling fiercely to its lower left. By late in the month, though, the stars of spring slide into better view. Leo clears the horizon by mid-evening, with Virgo trailing behind him. Venus reigns as the "morning star," while Jupiter dominates in the evening, although it slides lower in the sky each day.

This Week's Stargazing Tips

February 7, 2011. The crescent Moon and the planet Jupiter stage a nice encounter in the western sky this evening. Jupiter is below the Moon, and looks like a brilliant star. If you look carefully, you might notice a little color in Jupiter -- a hint of cream or ivory.

February 8, 2011. A beautiful array of stars decorates the southern sky this evening, including the dazzling constellation Orion. Its brightest stars are Betelgeuse and Rigel. Betelgeuse is at the top left of the constellation, with Rigel at the bottom right.

February 9, 2011. Andromeda descends the northeastern sky this evening, far to the right of the Moon. Among its many wonders is Upsilon Andromedae, a system of two stars and at least three planets that are similar to Jupiter, the giant of our own solar system.

February 10, 2011. Beta Pictoris, a star in the constellation Pictor, is visible low in the south from the far-southern United States. The star is surrounded by a disk of debris which appears to contain planets. Astronomers have taken a picture of one of the planets.

February 11, 2011. The Moon is at first quarter at 1:18 a.m. CST today. Despite the name, sunlight illuminates half of the lunar hemisphere that faces Earth. The "first-quarter" designation indicates that the Moon has completed one-fourth of its month-long cycle of phases.

February 12, 2011. The Crab Nebula stands high overhead in mid-evening. Small telescopes reveal a fuzzy blob of light with bright filaments that resemble the outline of a crab. The nebula is the debris from a once-mighty star that blasted itself to bits.

February 13, 2011. The gibbous Moon can guide you to one of the biggest star patterns in the sky tonight: the Winter Circle. The Moon is near the star that marks the circle's hub, bright orange Betelgeuse

Soul Communion

by Owen Waters

Today, people are far more inner-connected than they were 10 years ago. We are learning to trust that inner sense of knowing which peeks through into our busy lives more often than ever before.

How often have you said, “I knew I should have done that” or “I knew I shouldn’t have chosen that?” You have a source of knowingness within – a resource of perfect insight called your soul consciousness. More and more often, as you develop this sense of awareness, you find yourself saying, “I just know”.

The aim of developing soul communion is to be able to sense the best choice ahead of making a decision. In order to do that, we need to understand exactly what soul consciousness is and how it fits into the overall scheme of Creation.

The Creator designed the human experience to consist of twelve stages of evolving consciousness. As I detailed from the original research in my first book, The Shift: The Revolution in Human Consciousness, these range all the way from basic survival to the ultimate state of spiritual consciousness.

Much of the 20th century was devoted to the fifth stage of human consciousness, which is intellectual development. Today, people are migrating in droves to the next stage of human growth, which is heart-centered consciousness. The initial stage of heart-centered consciousness produces a constructive, responsible, socially-aware outlook. It also places a person just one short step from the later stage of heart-centered consciousness and the dawning of spiritual awareness.

The gateway to spiritual consciousness is through the heart. The stage beyond heart-centered consciousness is soul consciousness. In the soul stage, all of the attributes gained in earlier stages are present – courage, intellect and love – and then the attribute of insight is added to the list of achievements.

The soul version of the power of insight comes from an intuitive connectedness to everything – to other people, to the energy of current and future events, and to all of the higher stages of consciousness.

Soul consciousness is your inner connection to God.

By developing ever-increasing glimpses of soul consciousness during your waking state, you become more conscious of your soul’s spiritual connection to God. From this, you gain incredible insights into people, places and happenings.

Faced with a decision, if you want to know how Choice A would work out when compared to Choice B, tune into your power of insight and see what unfolds within your consciousness. If you want to know what’s preventing something from working or whether a proposed partnership will work out well, tune into your inner power of insight.

Like all abilities, the connection to your soul consciousness improves with practice. At first, because your conscious mind needs to get used to this new form of input, you might even find that your insights turn out to be generally incorrect. Do not be discouraged by early attempts going awry, because that often happens. Keep practicing and you will soon be impressed by your developing ability and its accurate insights.

The way to start the day right for inner attunement is with a short meditation session. This will create an inner connection which lasts all day and, indeed, goes a long way towards helping you through any difficulties that the day might bring. Ten minutes is all it takes and, once you make a habit of getting up just a little earlier, it becomes easy to make the space for your quality connection time at the start of each day.

Magic Circles - Pros & Cons

<http://www.paganwisdom.com>

I've often heard people saying that you should always work inside a magic circle, and other people saying they never bother with one. Here are some of the pros and cons of using a magic circle when doing ritual or magical work.

In my experiences, there are three main reasons to use a circle.

1) To take you 'between the worlds'. The casting of the circle is seen as creating a 'sacred space' that exists halfway between, or simultaneously in, both the material and the spiritual worlds (astral/ethereal). This can help your magic because it has less 'resistance' to break through by having to work across realms, your circle can serve as a conduit between the realms through which your magic can flow more smoothly.

2) To keep energy (or things) in. By casting a circle you are creating a barrier with which to contain the energy you are raising within. Sort of like a pressure cooker is used to contain the heat and pressure to more effectively concentrate it for whatever use you are working towards. The energy can then be either focused within the circle, such as when charging an amulet, or released by breaking the circle, at which time the energy explodes outward in various ways depending on the skill and intent of the person(s) focusing it. It can also be used as a 'cage' to keep anything you summon/stir/call/rouse/etc. within your area and keep it from freely roaming about the material realm.

3) To keep energy (or things) out. The other common usage of magic circles is to keep energy or things out of where you are working. If you start raising energy, things that like energy will be attracted to it. You most likely don't want these things strolling through your working area, as they can be distracting, disruptive or worse. In this case the circle serves as a shield to keep these unwanted influences away while you are doing your work.

You may find that one, two or all three of these methods may be used simultaneously depending on the kind of work you are doing.

Some considerations against using a magic circle include:

1) Shields block energy. If you are trying to raise energy from the natural world around you, having something shielding you from it can be counter-productive. It is like having a ritual to celebrate the sun and starting it by closing all the drapes. Yes, some light might still get in, but you're blocking the very thing you're trying to connect with. Some people create magic circles designed to let certain types of energy in or out, but that may also require additional concentration and energy to maintain the special shielding.

2) Shields take energy. It takes energy to construct and maintain a circle, and you might prefer to use that energy in your ritual or work itself.

3) You just don't need one. Sometimes you just intuitively know you don't need one. Sometimes you are doing pure ritual without raising energy, and there really isn't any point to erect a barrier.

4) It's 'fast magic'. Sometimes the magic working is a simple casting off of energy with intent to focus it. There isn't any formal ritual, just a simple 'casting'. In this case there is no need to create a circle because by the time you've started working, you're already done. The circle wouldn't add anything to the work.

As a final note, people confuse a magic circle with their body's natural aura. A circle and an aura are two different things. Your aura is always with you, and is the spiritual projection of your physical body (or vice-versa). A magic circle is a something that you construct, not an intrinsic part of you.

Depending on how you use your circles, a person's natural 'shielding' may or may not be a magic circle. Some people maintain a simple shield, while others may maintain a constant magic circle that they walk within. This varies according to the person.

Poetry Place

Seasons

The cold north wind begins to blow
Lady Winter pulls up her blanket of snow
She tucks the land in nice and tight
The land then sleeps through winter's plight

For several months the land will sleep
But hush my darling don't you weep
Soon...the land again will wake
Lovely flowers Mother Spring doth make

She sends her warm, nourishing showers
That are full of her growing powers
The snow crocus is the first to wake
From it's head, winter's plight it doth shake

At this time the fairies begin their work and their chores they never shirk
They wake the land and paint it bright
So open your eyes and enjoy the sight!

The days begin to grow longer
As summers sun grows stronger
Children play in the sprinklers stream
As summer birds sit and preen.

Summers end is drawing near
The fall colors will soon be here
Autumn comes with it's colourful arrays
And the night begins to overtake the days

Then the days begin to cool
For this is Mother Natures rule
The leaves turn red, yellow, brown and gold
As summers days begin to grow old

Jack Frost prepares his paints and brush
The animals begin their harvest rush
Lady Winter again will soon be here
But don't you cry my little dear.

For the circle of seasons you see
Are meant for the enjoyment of you and me
For Mother Nature is fair and wise
And she always creates a new surprise!!!

Spanish Wiccan Blog and Podcast

Wiccan blog and podcast in Spanish, 13 lunas (13 moons), created and maintained by Rev. Clara Fuentes (aka Harwe Tuileva), a Correllian priestess from Spain.

The blog seeks to keep Pagans and Wiccans from all the Spanish-speaking countries informed by means of an easy access format, and, of course, for free. Besides, the recent creation of a radio program in the form of a podcast completes this successful project that is currently receiving more than 400 visits per day at its website. The wonderful reception granted by the Spanish-speaking community reflects the need of more information of the Pagan and Wiccan community, which was looking forward to counting on this kind of initiatives in their own language.

The blog can be found at <http://www.13-lunas.com>.

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: wwwcw@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,

The Order of Web Weavers

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at krystelneuman@yahoo.com

May You Blessed Be Krystel

Order of Peace Weavers

The Order of Peace Weavers was created to provide members of the Correllian Tradition with the means of gathering together to collectively promote the weaving of peace into the fabric of society through meditation, prayer, Reiki, visualization, spell working, ritual, creative writing, intentional art and music, and other positive energy work and light work, with harm to none, and for the highest good of all concerned.

The motto of the Order of Peace Weavers is: "Be Peace, Live Peace, Send Love, Weave Peace." We hold a monthly 15 minute group peace meditation on the first Wednesday of every month and would love to have more join us to promote peace.

The Order of Peace Weavers is a chartered order of the Correllian Tradition. Membership is by invitation or application and is open to Inner and Outer Court members.

For more information, please find us at <http://groups.yahoo.com/group/orderofpeaceweavers/> or contact moonraven3x3@yahoo.com.
