Beltane

by Half Wolf

Beltane was a day representing many things to the Celtic people. It was the second of the four fire festivals. To most it celebrated the sun God, Baal(British)/ Bel(Irish)/ Beli(Welsh)/ Belanos(Pan-Celtic), although the sun appears to have been originally revered as a goddess. Bel means bright or shining and there is no sexual distinction attached to it. The Gaelic nouns for the sun are still female. In Wales, Rhiannon, who is also a solar deity, would come back from the land of the dead/winter on this day. In Scotland, the Seelie Court arrives and takes control back from the Unseelie Court.

As a festival day, it was celebrated with much merriment. The Maypole was a central part of the celebration with a wreath placed at it's top. The pole represented the male forces and the wreath the female. The current practice of adorning the pole with ribbons is a more recent invention although the circle dance is ancient. Men chased women on hobby horses trying to catch them, much like Pwyll chasing Rhiannon. (She could not be caught unless she wished to be.)

The great central bonfire was an integral part of Celtic sabbats. Home fires were extinguished and relit from the sacred fire of the ritual. Fields and homes were sometimes blessed with the flaming foliage. In Ireland, no one was allowed to light a Beltane fire until the High King had lit the first fire on Tara Hill. Accounts from the Romans also mention wicker cages filled with animals that were burned as offerings, although this may have been propaganda written about the "enemy" at the time.

Beltane is still best known as a day of fertility and healing. As the bonfire burned down, cattle were driven through to bless them and heal them. Another tradition was to jump over the fire three times for luck. Couples would seal a promise of their vows by jumping over the fire together, but they were not married. It was considered unlucky to be married in May. The sacred marriage was reserved for the God and Goddess. Traditionally, it was the one day when all marital restraints were lifted and they could love who they wished for the night.

Through this ritual symbolism, the crops would be fertile for another year. Some practices have survived to this day, such as leaving out offerings of food for the "fair folk". The rebirth of the Old Religions has led to the revival of this ancient holiday and will insure it's place for years to come.

Beltane Sabbat Solitary Ritual

by Rhiana Moonstar

This Sabbat celebrates the joining of the God and the Goddess. She is now in her Mother aspect, and it is from Her womb that all life will spring.

This is yet another fertility Sabbat. The altar and circle should be decorated with flowers. Any white flowers are appropriate, especially those with five petals. The cauldron may be filled with flowers. The altar cloth and candles shall be white. Flower garlands may be worn by the participant.

Set out your altar with your usual tools. Include a white ribbon and a red ribbon. Light your incense and the altar candles, and cast the circle.

Invoke the God and the Goddess.

Kneel before the altar, facing East.

Place the ribbons on the pentacle, the end of the white ribbon covering the end of the red one. Speak these words:

"Oh Father God, oh Mother Goddess, now is the time of your joining. Through your happiness, may all be happy, and through your fruitfulness, may all in nature be fruitful."

Begin plaiting the ribbons together. This is a simplified & solitary version of the traditional maypole. While you are doing this, say:

"All life in all the world springs from the union of the God and the Goddess. Blessed are they, the creators, the Ancient ones!"

Do with the ribbons whatever you wish. Any magic or other seasonal activities may follow.

If you are outdoors in a fairly safe place, you may wish to light a small balefire. After such festivities are completed, hold the simple feast, & banish the circle.

Beltane Celebrations and Rituals

At Sheen do Boaldyne, in the Isle of Man, twigs of Rowan are hung above doorways as protection - the opening of Summer was regarded as a time when fairies and spirits were especially active, as at Samhain and the opening of Winter.

The 'Obby 'Oss, at Padstow, Cornwall - wearing of animal skins was believed to be a relic of a Pagan sacred marriage between earth and sky, and the dance enacts the fertility god sacrificed for the good of his people.

The May Queen - Maid Marion/the Maiden consorts with Robin/ the Green Man in Celtic celebrations of May day.

Going 'A-Maying' meant staying out all night to gather flowering hawthorn, watching the sunrise and making love in the woods - a 'greenwood marriage'.

The dew on the May day morning is believed to have a magical potency - wash your face and body in it and remain fair all year, and guarantee your youth and beauty continues - men who wash their hands in it will be good at tying knots and nets - useful if you're a fisherman!

Handfasting

This ancient Pagan and Celtic ceremony marked the taking of a partner - this involves a commitment to perform an annual review of relationship. The couple's hands are ritually bound together to symbolize their union. Some people choose to use a ribbon that they have both signed. Between Beltane and the Summer Solstice is the most popular time for handfastings.

Beltane is a time of partnerships and fertility. New couples proclaim their love for each other on this day. It is also the perfect time to begin new projects.

The maypole - a phallic pole planted deep in the earth representing the potency and fecundity of the God, its unwinding ribbons symbolized the unwinding of the spiral of life and the union of male and female - the Goddess and God. It is usually topped by a ring of flowers to represent the fertile Goddess.

Paganhill, near Shroud has one of the tallest maypoles. The Puritans banned maypoles during the 17th Century.

It was a Celtic tradition to fell a birch tree on May day and to bring it into the community. Crosses of birch and rowan twigs were hung over doors on the May morning, and left until next May day.

Beltane cakes or bannocks - oatcakes coated with a baked on custard made of cream, eggs and butter - were cooked over open fires and anyone who chose a misshapen piece or a piece with a black spot was likely to suffer bad luck in the coming months. They were also offered to the spirits who protect the livestock, by facing the Beltane fire and casting them over their shoulders.

Are You Psychic? How to Evaluate your Own PSI Talents

Atham Z

It is my belief that everyone has some psychic skill, which they choose to develop, ignore or eliminate to the best of their abilities.

The following is a short ESP potential test that can be quickly evaluated with only "yes" or "no" answers.

1. Do you sometimes know who is calling before you pick up the telephone?
2. Are there times during conversations when you know ahead of time what someone else is going to say?
3. Do you occasionally experience a sense of "deja vu", the feeling that you have previously experienced something, or have already seen something that is happening to you?
4. Are animals attracted to you, and do you silently communicate well with family pets?
5. Are your dreams sometimes prophetic, or a help with problem solving?
6. Do you ever know ahead of time that the phone is going to ring, or that someone is about to enter your office or knock on your door?
7. Have you ever had a presentiment of an unexpected death or other tragedy before it occurred, or simply had a sense that something was wrong and subsequently discovered that you were correct?
8. Have you ever seen or heard or touched a ghost?
9. Have you ever shared thoughts or emotions with a close relative or friend over a long distance without using traditional methods of communication, such as telephone or mail?
10. . Have you ever "heard" someone else's thoughts in your mind?
11. Do you have periods of heightened sensitivity to noise, lights or crowds?
12. Do you regularly sense the feelings of other people?
13. Do you ever manage to see "things" such as lights or illuminations out of the corner of your eye, usually around other people and animals?
14. Have you ever sensed someone or something around you when you were physically alone?

If you have answered all fourteen of the questions affirmatively, your psychic potential is nearly unlimited. A score of between eight and thirteen 'yes' answers, places you in the high range of definitely having some psychic skills. A score of five, six or seven means your ESP powers are lying just under the surface of your consciousness and can be easily called upon to help you achieve your desires and life goals. All is not lost if you scored four or lower, it just means that you will have to work a bit harder to open your psychic channels and realize your full ESP potential.

Crow Lore

Atham Z

Crow Lore

One Crow Sorrow
Two Crows Joy
Three Crows a Wedding
Four Crows a Boy
Five crows Silver
Six Crows Gold
Seven Crows a Secret
Never to be told.

(poem contributed by tarotcanadaint1@yahoo.com)

Crows have in many cultures, been a bird used in divination, ritual, art and storytelling. They are also the totem animal for people born in the sign of Libra.

The crow was regarded in many periods as a messenger of death or harbinger of misfortune; a number are said to have flown around Cicero's head on the day he was murdered and crows were said to possess magical powers.

This may have something to do with the crow's cry of 'cras' - the Latin word for 'tomorrow'. The crow, as "Brewer's Dictionary of Phrase and Fable" puts it, 'symbolizes contention, discord and strife'. The ravens, of the crow family, owe part of their sinister reputation to their odious habit of picking out the eyes of corpses - as the wicked are warned in Proverbs. It's colour, black, invested the raven with ideas of darkness, oblivion and death.

In ancient Greece the raven was an attendant of Apollo. The Norse people believed that their god Odin possessed two ravens, which flew around all day collecting information. In the evening they would perch upon his shoulders, giving him the latest news they had gathered - a highly economical form of secret service.

In both the Old and New Testaments the raven figures frequently, and in Christian history. The ravens fed Elijah, and St. Benedict is often depicted with a raven at his feet. It was a raven that brought St. Paul the Hermit a loaf of bread.

The keeping of ravens at the Tower of London is a strange tradition, for it is assumed that bad luck will result if they leave the place. Yet the building itself has so sinister a history that, far from relieving the all pervading gloom of the place, some think that the presence of the ravens heightens it.

A more genial legend persists in the Welsh superstition that if a blind person is kind to a raven his sight will be restored. In Cornwall the superstition persists that the soul of king Arthur took the form of a raven for which reason one of the species could never be shot. In Brazil a similar belief exists - it is held that the human soul can inhabit the body of a raven.

Another pleasant superstition is that crows can bring you good luck. If you see one flying, your wish will come true as long as the crow does not flap its wings before going out of sight. If it should, the wish might still be granted if you cover your eyes. If the bird is no where in sight when you uncover them, you'll get your wish.

One curious feature of the behaviour of crows is their seeming capacity to hold 'courts' at which, by numerous accounts, they pass judgement and carry out summary execution of such of their numbers as, for some mysterious reason, they consider deserving of it.

As Edward Stanley, the Victorian naturalist put it:

In the Northern part of Scotland, and in the Faroe Islands, extraordinary meetings of crows are known to occur. They collect in great numbers, as if they had all been summoned, for the occasion; a few of the flock sit with dropping heads, and the others seem as grave as judges, while others again are exceedingly active and noisy; in the course of about an hour they disperse and it is not uncommon, after they have flown away, to find one or two left dead on the spot.

Another writer (in Dr Edmonston's "Shetland Isles"), says that these meetings will sometimes continue for a day or two, before the object, whatever it may be, is complete. Crows continue to arrive from all quarters during the session. As soon as they have all arrived, a very general noise ensues, and shortly after, the whole fall upon one or two individuals, and put them to death; when this execution has been performed, they quietly disperse.

Symbolism What Does it All Mean?

by X

For someone following a spiritual path there are many times that questions regarding symbolism arise. Dreams and meditations are obvious ones, along with the discovery of symbols in obscure books and manuscripts. Then there are the less obvious symbols and symbolism, occurring in ordinary everyday events, or the people within those situations. The inevitable question is, what does it mean? What does it symbolise? And how do I find out?

Dream symbols have often been dealt with in books that collect together hundreds or even thousands of symbols and attempt to ascribe meaning to them. Likewise there are various resources for common (and less common) occult and mythological symbols. These may all be useful, but they seldom have much in the way of personal symbolism - what it means to the individual.

Before delving in to personal meanings, it is worth noting that symbols and signs can be viewed, from an occult perspective, from many different levels. This is especially true of everyday events. The dog barking next door may well be just that, a mundane experience of a bored dog barking. That is one level - a mundane explanation that the dog is bored.

The random encounter we have with someone scary along a darkly lit street may just be a random encounter with a less civilised human, but on a slightly deeper, more esoteric level, it may well be a manifestation of our shadow side - and something we can learn from.

Other events in our lives may even be viewed from a mythological perspective.

It is therefore possible to view symbols on more than one level at a time, if we choose to do so.

On a personal level, the meaning of a symbol may be very personal to us. It may be very different to the meanings ascribed in books or the interpretations of other people. It isn't so much that our meanings are right or wrong when compared to the alternative meanings. It simply means that our own personal interpretation, and whatever we can learn from it is different and personal to us.

There is plenty of merit in working with our own interpretation of symbolism. It allows us the opportunity to work intuitively, rather than analytically. It allows us to work with the personalised dimension of a symbol (or symbolic event), as well as explore other interpretations. This gives the framework for seeing similarities and differences in the interpretations and perhaps drawing even more conclusions.

If we rely primarily on our own interpretation then we are not risking putting our faith in someone else's beliefs, as we have no real way to know that they are right (especially if they try to claim that we are wrong). We can accept and work with their version of things, as well as our own, which allows two separate levels to explore. It has to be kept in mind that it isn't the symbol itself that is so important, but what is actually symbolises - and especially what it means for us. It is our personal journey that is the most important, and it is essential that we know how to read the signs and symbols for ourselves, and not rely on other people or entities. Keep in mind the old saying about not being able to see the woods for the trees.

To explore the personal interpretation of a symbol we may already have some kind of idea what it means to us. We may have some kind of vague or strong feeling surrounding it. We may feel we just 'know' what it means for us, perhaps as many experiences where the symbol or symbolism has occurred.

If we have no idea, or want clarity on the meaning, then an easy way is to use some light meditative practice. This can be as easy as closing your eyes, and imagining the symbol, and 'reading' anything we can from the symbol. So, perhaps it was the dog barking. With eyes closed you imagine the dog barking, and allow an image to form of this bored dog yapping away. Perhaps a word comes to you... lonely. That is one part of the symbol - there may be more. Depending on what we want to do, we may stick with what comes first, or we may look for more symbolism. It is often considered that whatever arises first is the most important, and should therefore be worked with. As a personal meaning, we would instant start applying the meaning in our own lives. So - "lonely" - how does that fit in my life? When do I feel lonely? When have I felt lonely? How does it feel when I'm lonely?

If you have the ability to draw the symbol, especially if it is fairly simple in design, another method can be employed. On a small square or rectangle of card (approximately the size of a playing card or tarot card) the image is drawn or painted. Sitting or lying comfortably, look intently upon the image for a few minutes, or as long as you feel is necessary to imprint the image upon your mind. While staring at the symbol you may also concentrate on your breathing, and imagine breathing in and assimilating the image as you inhale. When you feel ready, close your eyes. If you have stared for a sufficient period of time you will see a glowing version of the symbol (probably in inverse form) before your eyes. You can work with the symbol from here in various ways, talking to it, willing it to reveal its secrets to you.

Or you can imagine that the symbol is a doorway, or inscribed on a doorway, that you can pass through, and use it as a gateway through which you can journey into a magical realm to explore the symbol in depth. This technique is known by various names, including pathworking (originally this was exploring the paths between the Sephiroth on the Kabbalistic Tree of Life), astral projection, shamanic journeying, or conscious dreaming. It is a very powerful way of exploring symbols, and can be done with Tarot cards, Runes or letters of the Hebrew or Enochian alphabets, Tattva cards, or anything else you choose.

Remember, with either technique, the most important factor is your own intuitive wisdom. Feelings and sensations can be far more revealing than thoughts. To become proficient at discovering the personal meanings of symbols takes time and practice, and skill and wisdom to avoid reading too much into a symbol that is actually more straight forward, or ascribing meaning that isn't there. The symbol is there for you to learn from, and the meaning you decipher is right for you. It isn't necessarily going to make sense to other people, as it is personal, intuitive, and not necessarily a rational or intellectual process - it is ultimately creative and holistic!

It can be useful to keep a journal when doing work with symbolism, and keep notes on all your experiences relating to each symbol. This can allow you to see recurring themes in your waking life, or in dreams and meditations.

Beltaine Moon

©by Charma

Thunderstorm echoes, speaking stories across the earth..

Neath the oaks secret lovers sip golden summer wine..

Beltaine moon rises, shining silver in the evening sky..

In the circle, vibrant, firelit, the lady waits.

DreamSinger sings the songs of old, the dancers spiral turning..

Earth and water, fire and air.. on the altar candles burning.

East then South, West and North, the corner wards are called.

Raise the cup and drink...salute to she who waits..

We who stand on the edge of wonder, ask and do invoke..

Into the circle enter, enter.. love and trust your oath.

The scent of incense fills the night, carries whispers on the wind..

The horned lord bidden, here the lady waits..

Mysteries are spoken, souls and hearts, our will be done...

Passions inflamed are given reign.. freed from earthly bounds.

Renewal, fulfillment, as above.. so below.. and blessed be.

Under the beltaine moon... The lady waits no more..

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: wwcw@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,
The Order of Web Weavers

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at krystelneuman@yahoo.com

May You Blessed Be Krystel
