BIRDS

Feeding birds is one of the easiest and most rewarding ways to see wildlife really close up.

In winter, birds may have difficulty finding natural foods such as berries, insects, seeds, worms and fruit. Any food you put out during these cold months will help birds survive until the spring.

What food?

Most kitchen leftovers can be used to feed birds. Bread can be crumbled up and scattered - moisten very dry bread first as it could cause dehydration.

Biscuits provide a rich source of fat, and cooked rice, pasta and pastry are packed with starch. Potatoes can be boiled, baked, roasted or mashed, and cheese - crumbled or grated - will be very popular with robins and wrens.

Fat is a wonderful source of energy - cut bacon rinds, fat from chops or blocks of suet into cubes.

Fruit, such as windfalls or bruised apples and pears, goes down a treat with blackbirds and thrushes. It may also attract winter visitors from Scandinavia such as fieldfares and redwings. Go nuts!

Fresh coconut in the shell is a great favourite with tits. Drill two holes in one end and drain off the milk. Saw the coconut in half and hang outside. Never put out desiccated coconut as it swells up inside a bird's stomach.

Peanuts are rich in fat and attract nuthatches, siskins, great spotted woodpeckers, tits, greenfinches and house sparrows. Peanuts may be naturally contaminated with an invisible toxin so make sure you buy peanuts of guaranteed quality. Use a darning needle to thread nuts in their shells onto string or put shelled peanuts in wire mesh containers or spiral feeders. Robins and dunnocks will eat crushed or chopped nuts. Never use salted nuts. Bird seed mixes with sunflower seeds attract greenfinches and chaffinches. Dunnocks and finches prefer smaller seeds such as millet or canary seed.

Reduce risks

Scatter food on the ground for thrushes, dunnocks and wrens. Cats pounce from bushes and trees so don't put food too close by. And don't put food out late in the day, it might attract rats and mice overnight.

To reduce the risk of spreading disease, bird tables and feeders should be cleaned weekly and water bowls cleaned daily.

Bird pudding

Make a mould, a half coconut shell is ideal, and thread some string or wire through a small hole in the base.

- Mix some seeds, chopped nuts, sultanas, biscuit crumbs and rolled oats in a bowl.
- Melt the same volume of lard or suet in a pan.
- Add the fat to the dry mix and stir well.
- Pour the mixture into the mould and leave to cool.
- When the pudding is set, hang the mould upside down in the garden.

Meal times

Natural food starts becoming hard to find in early winter, so October is a good time to start putting food out for birds. Feed them until the end of April, when they should be able to find plenty of food for themselves.

Seeds are still scarce in early spring. For chaffinches, greenfinches and other seed eaters keep putting food out during May.

A long dry summer hardens the ground. Blackbirds, thrushes and robins have difficulty catching worms, so put suitable food out for them until the earth is softer.

Water works

Birds need water to drink and bathe in. Try a dustbin lid or a flowerpot base made of terracotta or plastic as a birdbath. Sink it into the ground, or raise it on three bricks, to keep it stable. Keep it clean and only fill with clean, fresh water.

CJ WildBird Foods offer a wide range of high-quality products as well as tips and advice to help you attract, feed, identify and care for wild birds in your garden.

Astrology

Rev. Leona

This week we move forward into the Fourth House. The Fourth house is the house of the home and family.

The Fourth House is the foundation of your whole life. This is the house that will carry you throughout all of your trials and tribulations. When you work with the Fourth House you will be tending to your roots and to your past. You will need to make sure that the roots are healthy and that your foundations are strong. Taking the time to heal and mend these areas on a regular basis will keep you from much upset in the future.

One of the key roles of the Fourth House is to focus on the main issues that have presented or continue to present themselves in your personal life. This is the time for you to focus on your family. Your family is the most important foundation that you will ever have. If the issues challenging you are able to destroy your family foundation then you do not have a strong enough foundation. This means that you must stop and find out what is not working properly. The Fourth House asks you: Are you taking your family for granted? Do you not listen or help when you family is in need? Do you place your desires and wants above those of your family? The family unit that the Fourth House protects is your immediate family. These are the people that you live with right now. If you live with your parents then these are the relationships you need to work on. If you are married and or have children that live with you then this is your area of focus. Other relationships are important but the Fourth House focuses on home and harmony and so your main concern will be with the relationships under your roof.

The Fourth House will encourage you to examine the dynamics within the relationships of each of these relationships. Looking at these relationships you will be able to visualize the strong or weak foundations that you have as well as the foundations you are laying for those around you. For instance: if your children are a key relationship in your life then you will want to look at the type of foundation you are pouring for them. To understand this you will have to answer: Are you a person with deep roots and deep traditions? What are the traditions that you have been handed down? What are the traditions that you continue to hand down? Do you show your children that they are safe and loved? Do you allow them to grow as individuals or do you monitor their growth?

The Fourth House takes you back in time to a place where you can examine your own roots. Do you know who you are? This is a key question that will be answered when you take up the challenges of this house. Because the Fourth House deals with foundation it is important to move back and find out how the foundation was created. With the guidance of the Fourth House you will be able to delve into your past as well as the past of your family. This house is moved as much by your past lives as it is by your genealogy. You will need to be able to know and understand where you come from. When looking to your past you will be able to understand yourself and your present actions. Did you come from a close family with lots of traditions? Is your family separated and unconnected to anything? Do you feel a pull to traditions outside of your family of origin? How deep and strong your own history is will explain why you are connected or not connected to your life.

One of the key concepts within the Fourth House is that of "Home". Most of this house revolves around the notion of "Home". The Fourth House wants you to understand what "Home" means to you. What role does this concept play in your life? Do you own a home? Do you rent? Do you dream of the perfect place where family and friends can visit and you are able to play host/hostess? Do you crave a place where your children can play freely? Do you home live in a city or the country? Do you require extra land, trees, gardens and brooks to accompany your home? Where do you call home? Why is this? When you think about home what comes to mind? What is important in a home? What are the elements that make you feel “at home”? A home is a place where you should feel free to express yourself. For most people this is true. For these people a home is a safe and loving place, to others a home is a place that needs to be cleaned, while to others a home is a place to be feared.

The Fourth House teaches that no matter what the environment of the physical home, you are able to create a spiritual area where your soul will be free to explore and grow. Working through all the issues of the Fourth House you will be encouraged to create your souls home. For the soul the home need not be made of sticks and stone. You must create a sacred space where you will be able to go. This sacred space will be a place with strong foundations, a place where you will feel safe and a place where you will find peace.

Along with the concept and issues of “Home” the Fourth House will bring your personal ethics into questions. When you are small your morals and ethics are instilled by the actions and teachings of the home. Should your nurturing years instill weak morals and poor ethics you will develop with a slightly negative world view. Should you have had very strict morals taught you may be strict or you may rebel against them. Your early years were the key to cementing your morals and values. All though these issues have been with you all your life the Fourth House will show you that it is never too late for you to change or improve your own personal views and ideas.

This house shows you that to be able to put down strong roots and create your sense of purpose and belonging you need to understand where you have been. For this reason the Fourth House will show you how to access your past lives. Now is the time for you to begin to look at and understand your soul’s history. When you are able to face your past you will be able to understand the Karmic buildups that you are working against. With this foundation you will be able to clear up a great deal of the blockages and move forward to create your own home that will be filled with your peace and security.

Within the Fourth House you will face your own sense of purpose. The Fourth House will ask you: Where do you belong? Do you feel that you have a purpose here in this life? This house will help you find your place. When working with the Fourth House you must learn to let go of fear. You need to have faith that through the challenges of the Fourth House you will find your path and you will understand your purpose.

One of the hardest challenges to face when working with the Fourth House is your own private self. The home is the place of safety and security. This is the place where you are supposed to be yourself, no masks, no pretending. When you work with the Fourth House you will have to face who you really are. Do you ever sit at home and wonder what others would think if they saw what you did or what you were really like? Do you fear that others may catch you in a bad moment so you shy away from spontaneous visits? The Fourth House will show you that you may not be as perfect as you imagined yourself to be.

When you are working with the Fourth House you will be able to develop a better understanding of yourself. You will be able to understand why you feel unfulfilled in certain areas and you will be able to develop ideas for dealing with this. You will understand your traditions, your reactions and your values. The Fourth House will bring closure to past actions that you have been carrying around and will allow you to find your life purpose and move forward along your path to fulfillment. Working harmoniously with the Fourth House will allow you to strengthen your foundations as well as your personal relationships. You will be able to bring balance back into your life and once the balance is restored you will find new areas opening up for you.

Deity/Divinity

In an MSN group I am a member of someone posed a question in the subject line asking the other members to explain 'deity'. Then, in the body of the post he asks to explain 'divinity'. I answered the post below and have copied it for all here to read also.

Well, to explain this is a two-parter. For the one part you ask in the subject line to explain Deity, then the second part in the actual post you ask what divinity is... In my opinion, these are 2 separate subjects...

Deity... Mono or Poly; to be or not to be... 'God' or 'Gods' is a question everyone that begins a spiritual path answers sooner or later. When do you feel you have the answer? Do you feel a divine presence? Or the moon is full and you hear the name of a Nordic deity (Lloookkki) whisper over the plains; or do you just decide that after months/years/decades of studies you 'know' your path? For me and everyone here, all of these and many others apply. They are all right answers for the right individual. Do you all agree? You may or may not; these are my thoughts, yes? To explain deity is to know what characteristics that individual seeks within a God/dess. I chose (or was chosen by) Loki at the age of 15, over 16 years ago. Why? For those that have knowledge within the Norse you would know that Odin the 'Allfather' did all in his power to delay Ragnarök, or the final battle. He knew he could not stop that which he had foreseen. Alas, Loki is the cause of Ragnarök for he is involved with the death of Balder, the God of Light. This begins the events that cause Ragnarök, where both the Gods of good and evil will be destroyed; for the Norse deities are not immortal. Now, this is the history most people would know about Loki. I know so much more because of my connection to Deity. Loki is very cunning; one who could get out of jams in the blink of an eye. I admire cunning. Loki is sly, and intelligent. Again other traits I admire. If it wasn't for Loki, Thor would have never gained his hammer Mjollnir he was famous for. Odin would never have gained his famous steed Sleipnir. Sif, Thor's' wife would have never gained her pure golden hair. Loki did a great deal to the benefit of others, again something I admire. This here is a smidgen of an explanation of Deity to me...

To explain Divinity is to delve deep within the individual and see their true spirituality. Most of the time though we have a hard enough time seeing deep within ourselves to be able to see within someone else. How can one person say that their path is the 'ONE' path for everyone? I would agree that if it makes such an impact on that person, then it is the path for them. But, I don't see why it also HAS to be the path for me? Divinity is our essence, our spirit/soul on the higher level. We are blessed with glances of this every so often when we dream and visit people on the Astral plane. When we meditate we attain a full awareness of all around us, but also all within. Divinity does not have to deal with a particular path, but some people add to theirs with a path of their choosing. Simply put...

Divinity is living in this life, growing in this life, and then taking the next step in existence.

I hope this gives a glimpse into a portion of me. If anyone has any questions, please don't hesitate to ask.

Multi-faith Calendar

Rev. Nehal

Multifaith Calendar - Coming up:

5th August - Raksha Bandhan (Hindu)

Raksha Bandhan is the Hindu festival that celebrates brotherhood and love. It is celebrated on the full moon in the month of Sravana in the lunar calendar.

The word Raksha means protection, whilst Bandhan is the verb to tie. Traditionally, during the festival sisters tie a rakhi, a bracelet made of interwoven red and gold threads, around their brothers' wrists to celebrate their relationship.

Today the festival has developed with others joining in the festivities:

- Priests tie rakhis around the wrists of congregation members.
- Rakhis are often shared between close friends.
- Women tie rakhis around the wrists of the prime minister.
- Rakhis are tied around the wrists of soldiers.

It is believed that when a woman ties a rakhi around the hand of a man it becomes obligatory for him to honour his religious duty and protect her.

Traditional stories state that rakhis are blessed with sacred verses and are encompassed by them.

Sometimes rakhis are consecrated in rice and grass before they are given, and are traditionally tied by people familiar with the Vedas.

Following these customs the rakhi is believed to remove sin from one hand and provide safety to the other. The protection offered by a rakhi is believed to remain for a year.

As the rakhi is tied, a prayer is offered asking for happiness and prosperity.

Today rakhis are often decorated with multi-coloured silk thread, and often adorned with stones and beads.

Once the rakhi has been tied a mantra is chanted either in Sanskrit or Punjabi.

At the end of the ceremony the sister places a sweet in her mouth. Following this her brother gives her a small monetary gift of appreciation.

This festival has evolved over the years to encompass the importance of many people in Hindu society, yet foremost it continues to honour and uphold the relationship between a sister and brother.

It is a significant festival in the Hindu calendar, followed eight days later by Janamashtami.

Quote & Thought of the Day

Rev. Nehal

Quote of the Day:

We have to try to get rid of the notion of time. And when you have an intense contact of love with nature or another human being, like a spark, then you understand that there is no time and that everything is eternal.

Paul Coelho

Source: www.ascensiongateway.com

Thought of the day:

Others can point the way, but you must make the journey. Others can give you their assistance and advice, but you must choose the direction of your life.

If you set out to live someone else's dream, you'll end up frustrated and disappointed. For you have your own special purpose, a purpose that would be deeply painful to deny.

That purpose is eager to face the greatest challenges and to grow intensely more meaningful in the process. Your purpose has a whole wonderful set of achievements that will bring great fulfillment to your life.

No one, no matter how generous or well-intentioned, can give you everything you seek. For much of what you seek is to make your own way in life.

No pleasure can compare to the pleasures you earn through your own efforts. No reward can equal the reward of creating your own achievements.

Make the commitment, make the effort, and make your own beautiful way in life.

Feline Fun

Rev. Nehal

This week in Feline Fun – A cat who rides a bus...

A cat has become a well-known commuter on a bus service and regularly amuses passengers during their journey, a travel company said.

For several months Casper has queued with other passengers to get the number 3 service from his home in Plymouth, Devon.

Bus company First said the adventurous animal sits in the queue and then quietly trots on board and curls up on a seat for the ride.

He is now so well known the bus drivers are aware which stop it is to let him off when Casper wants to go home.

Owner Susan Finden has only just found out about his antics - but a spokesman for First said they have been bussing Casper around for months.

Mrs Finden, who picked the cat out of a rescue home in 2002, said he had always been a free spirit and she named him after the cartoon ghost as he had a habit of walking off.

The 55-year-old care worker said: "He'd always go off and have a wander. Once I had to walk a mile-and-a-half with a cat basket to bring him back from a car park.

"He does love people, and I don't know what the attraction is but he loves big vehicles like lorries and buses."

A notice has been put up in the bus drivers' rest room in Plymouth asking them to look after the rogue passenger if they spot him sneaking on.

Driver Rob Stonehouse told the Plymouth Herald: "He usually just curls up at the back of the bus. Sometimes he nips between people's legs but he never causes any trouble."

A User's Guide To Witches

From www.boston.com

The Malleus Maleficarum is available online at www.malleusmaleficarum.org

Harry Potter should be glad he practices his wizarding in the modern world. European sorcerers had a much less pleasant time of things in 1486, when the Malleus Maleficarum - "The Hammer of Witches" - was first published.

The lengthy tome was medieval Europe's definitive guide to recognizing and prosecuting witchcraft, the justification for a wave of burnings-at-the-stake - largely of peasant women - that took place from the late 1400s to about 1520. And it helped spread the paranoid notion of a vast satanic conspiracy: a world where demons roamed freely, enticing women to cast spells, kill babies, interfere with procreation, and try to delay the fast-approaching End Times. (At the time, many thought the Earth's sell-by date was 1535.)

Written largely by a Dominican friar from Germany named Henricus Institoris, republished broadly in its day, the Malleus was last translated from Latin to English in the 1920s. This month Cambridge University Press published a modern translation in a one-volume paperback, "The Hammer of Witches." We spoke to the translator, Christopher Mackay, a professor of history and classics at the University of Alberta.

Father Guilty In Prayer Death Case

From cbsnews.com

Madeline Kara Neumann, of Weston, Wis., is shown working on chalk art during downtown Wausau's Chalk Fest. Neumann died Sunday, March 23, 2008.

A Wisconsin man accused of killing his 11-year-old daughter by praying instead of seeking medical care was found guilty Saturday of second-degree reckless homicide.

Dale Neumann, 47, was convicted in the March 23, 2003, death of his daughter, Madeline, from undiagnosed diabetes. Prosecutors contended he should have rushed the girl to a hospital because she couldn't walk, talk, eat or speak. Instead, Madeline died on the floor of the family's rural Weston home as people surrounded her and prayed. Someone called 911 when she stopped breathing.

Neumann's 41-year-old wife, Leilani, was convicted on the same charge in the spring and is scheduled for sentencing Oct. 6. Both face up to 25 years in prison.

Their case is believed to be the first in Wisconsin involving faith healing in which someone died and another person was charged with a homicide.

The six-man, six-woman jury deliberated about 15 hours over two days before convicting Neumann. Jurors submitted four questions to Marathon County Circuit Judge Vincent Howard before reaching a verdict. In one, the panel asked whether Neumann's beliefs in faith healing made him "not liable" for not taking his daughter to the hospital even if he knew she wasn't feeling well.

Neumann, who once studied to be a Pentecostal minister, testified Thursday that he believed God would heal his daughter and he never expected her to die. God promises in the Bible to heal, he said.

Scenes Cut From Athens Museum Film After Protests

From google.com/hostednews

Couldn't get a scene from the film, so here's a map of where Athens is instead!

ATHENS, Greece — A scene from an animated film shown to visitors at the new Acropolis Museum that depicts Christian priests destroying parts of the Parthenon has been deleted following protests by the Greek Orthodox Church.

The creator of the segment, Greek-born French filmmaker Constantin Costa-Gavras, has demanded that his name be taken off the film credits in protest.

"The priests used to destroy ancient temples. Now they want to remove scenes from a film," Costa-Gavras told Greece's Mega TV channel. "This is the kind (of censorship) that used to happen in the former Soviet Union."

Costa-Gavras, known mainly for French-language films with political themes, such as "Z" and "State of Siege", shared an Academy Award in 1983 for best screenplay adaptation for the English-language film "Missing," starring Jack Lemmon, a film Costa-Gavras also directed.

Costa-Gavras' 1-minute, 40-second segment depicting the damage done to Parthenon over the centuries — from marauding Germanic warriors in 267 A.D. to the removal of a large part of the frieze by British diplomat Lord Elgin in early 19th century — was part of a larger piece produced for the 2004 Athens Olympics and had been incorporated into a 13-minute film shown to museum visitors, narrating the history of the Parthenon from its inception to the present day.

The animated segment showed figures clad in black climbing up ladders and destroying part of the Parthenon frieze; the scene referred to well-documented episodes of destruction that took place in the early Byzantine period (5th-8th centuries A.D.), when Christians often demolished monuments and temples belonging to the old pagan era. Many parts from those temples were used to build churches. The Parthenon itself suffered some damage but was spared a worse fate by being converted into a church.

Church officials contended the film misrepresented the attitude of the Greek Orthodox Church toward Greece's ancient heritage.

Should Schools Ban Teachers In Religious Garb?

From firstamendmentcenter.org

Oregon Gov. Ted Kulongoski breathed new life into an old debate when he signed a law on July 16 protecting religious freedom for all workers — except for teachers in public schools.

Sikhs, Muslims, Jews, Seventh-day Adventists and adherents of other faiths are celebrating the Oregon Workplace Religious Freedom Act because it requires employers to make reasonable accommodations for workers who wear religious clothing or need to take holy days off.

But many of the same groups are bemoaning the failure of the law to include public school teachers, reaffirming a nearly century-old Oregon statute prohibiting teachers from wearing “sectarian clothing” in the classroom. Muslims, Sikhs and others who wear religious attire as an obligation of faith are effectively banned from teaching in Oregon’s public schools.

The Oregon law barring religious garb in schools dates to the anti-Catholic hysteria prevalent in 19th and early 20th century America. In 1922, the Ku Klux Klan and other nativist groups persuaded the Legislature to pass two laws aimed at Catholic schools and teachers — one requiring all Oregon students to attend public schools and the other banning sectarian garb (i.e., clothing worn by priests and nuns) in the classroom. The first was struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1925, but the second has survived court challenges to this day.

Despite this unsavoury history, defenders of the ban argue that the state’s compelling interest in maintaining religious neutrality in public schools trumps the religious-freedom claims of teachers. So far lower courts have agreed, ruling that prohibiting teachers from wearing religious dress is permissible under the First Amendment, but not required – thus leaving it up to the states to decide.

As a result, we have a crazy quilt of laws and policies across the country, with some states joining Oregon to prohibit religious attire by statute (Pennsylvania and Nebraska) and others with laws expressly allowing teachers to wear religious clothing (Tennessee and Arkansas). Elsewhere the policy depends on state constitutions, court decisions or local policies, with many school districts having no policy at all.

Friendship Day - 2nd Aug 2009

Friends Are

Friends are
Caring, generous and kind
Friends are
Loving, true and loyal
Friends are
Sharers of joy and grief
Friends are
People who share times of both laughter and tears
Friends are
People who love to tease and torment
Friends are
Devils who give you a kick up the bum when you need it
Friends are
Angels who give you a helping hand up when you need it
Friends are
People whom you can tell all your secrets to and knowing they won't tell any others
Friends are
Those will tell you when you look ugly when you do and beautiful when you do
Friends are
Those who tell you when you are in the wrong even if they hurt you
Friends are
Angels without wings sent to the Earth for us.

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: www@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,
The Order of Web Weavers

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystal High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at krystelneuman@yahoo.com

May You Blessed Be
Krystal
