Each totem carries messages and information for us. This is known as their medicine.

Squirrel

The squirrel brings us the joys of energy, play, agility, balance, sociability and skill. She reminds us of the joy of life and shows us how to reconnect with the natural world around. Perhaps squirrel has come to you because you have forgotten this wonder; or because you need to re-establish this connection for healing.

Squirrel also teaches us to plan against the unexpected, to achieve balance, to make preparations, to store good things against bad times, just as the squirrel prepares for the cold winter months by gathering a store of nuts. If you are being swept along by events with no clear direction, squirrel may come to you with advice and guidance.

Squirrel carries the passion and energy of a solar animal, and shows us the importance of communication, of connecting with our fellows, of helping others

Take time to meet squirrel both in meditation and in the wild. Just stand and watch the squirrels at play, see their enormous inventiveness and their total joy in life.

TAROT

Rev. Leona

The Tarot card for today is the Tower

Key terms for this card are Sudden Change, New Direction Path, Unexpected Events

Message of the Tower

The Tower holds the key to the next phase of your life. When the Tower comes into your life you will see sudden change. There have been some parts of your life that need to have new life infused into them. This is the time for you to realize what needs to change. The Tower appears in your life when you refuse to listen to the warnings. Now is the time to focus on your life. What do you need to do to make your life better? The Tower will appear in your life without warning so expect the unexpected today. You will find that there is a lot that will happen today that will be unexpected. Be ready to be at the mercy of synchronicity today. The Tower will give you opportunities and options that were not available before. You have to be willing to accept anything that comes your way today. Know that for today destiny has taken over and you have to sit back and wait to see where you are taken.

The Tower will bring new energy and possibility into your life. You have to be ready for when the Tower appears anything is possible. The Tower will bring situations to you that will cause you to question your life path and will have you searching for the value in what is happening in your life. The Tower cannot be stopped and the Tower cannot be avoided. The Tower comes with an important message that you need to listen. The Tower is the Universe's intervention. When the Tower appears you are on the verge of making a big mistake. You need to listen to the signs and you need to allow the Tower to do the work it was sent to complete. The Tower will seem chaotic when it first appears but once the dust settles you will be able to see the changes and the new opportunities left in its wake.

The Tower will come with such force and power today that you will not know which way to turn. There is much that will be destroyed with the appearance of the Tower but know that all that the Tower destroys is old and no longer serves a purpose in your life. This is the destruction of the old to make way for the new. You have been clinging to these old paths too long and you have not listened to anyone. This is the only way to get your attention. No one knows which form the Tower will take but one can be certain that the appearance of the Tower will have life altering consequences. The Tower will have the ability to shake you to your very foundation. Be ready for the challenge and be ready to act quickly to pick up the pieces and begin again with new insight and new purpose.

The Tower may seem very intimidating at first glance but know that when the dust has settled there will be time to celebrate. There must be good that comes from the events which are about to take place. Know that there is much that the Tower will bring. The Tower is not meant to cause you delay and it is not meant to cause you despair. The Tower is meant to rouse you from your slumber. When you sleep you miss the life that is in front of you. This is the time to break out of the cocoon which you have created around yourself and see that you are no longer the caterpillar but the mature and passionate butterfly ready to face the world.

Meditation for the Tower

Meditations for this month will require one candle and a journal.

Find a nice quiet place where you will be able to sit quietly without being disturbed.
Take a deep breath and feel your body let go and begin to relax.
With each deep breath you take allow the stress and anxiety to leave your body.
Find your center and allow yourself to let go and relax.

When you are ready light your candle and close your eyes.

Focus on the following questions.

What part of the path have you been neglecting?
What are the signs that you have been ignoring?
What part of your life does not feel right?

Write your answers in your journal and focus on the following questions.

What can you do to bring peace and harmony into your life?
What do you feel when you think about changing your life?
What holds you back?
What do you fear?

Write your answers in your journal and when you are ready open your eyes and extinguish the candle. Now is the time to face the new changes in your life.

"Not so immoral after all: Vatican gives the latest Harry Potter absolution."

By Richard Owen
("The Times", July 15, 2009)

Rome, Italy - Once condemned by the Pope for undermining the soul of Christianity, Harry Potter has been forgiven.

In 2003, two years before he was elected Pope Benedict XVI, Joseph Ratzinger, then a Cardinal and head of Vatican doctrine, said that J. K. Rowling's stories of the boy wizard threatened to corrupt an understanding of Christian faith among the impressionable young. "It is good that you explain the facts of Harry Potter," he wrote six years ago to a critic of the books, who argued that they were anti-religious and encouraged the occult, "because this is a subtle seduction, which has deeply unnoticed and direct effects in undermining the soul of Christianity before it can really grow properly."

Now, however, the Pope appears to have fallen under the Potter spell. The latest in the film series, Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince, is on general release in Britain today, and has won surprising praise from the Vatican newspaper. L'Osservatore Romano said yesterday that even though the Potter saga lacked what it called "a reference to the transcendent", the latest film drew "a clear line of demarcation between good and evil, making clear that good is right, and that in some cases this involves hard work and sacrifices".

It also sided with Harry in his battle with You Know Who, arguing that the film promoted the values of friendship, altruism, and loyalty but made clear that "the search for immortality epitomised by Lord Voldemort" was wrong. It said it had struck the right balance in its treatment of teenage romance, with the child characters credibly "growing from adolescents into adults".

This represents a remarkable U-turn by a paper that has previously attacked the series, saying that, although the books had narrative value, they held up witchcraft and the occult as positive ideals, unlike the Chronicles of Narnia by C. S. Lewis and J. R. R. Tolkien's The Lord of the Rings.

Last year the paper argued that Harry was the wrong kind of hero and the stories, although compelling, were full of half truths, offering a view "full of deep mistakes and dangerous suggestions". This time its reviewer praised the special effects in Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince, the sixth Potter film, which again stars Daniel Radcliffe as the young wizard.

The about-turn raises the question of whether the Vatican is reassessing its responses to modern popular culture — and might even forgive that other purveyor of dark, Satanic plotlines, Dan Brown.

When The Da Vinci Code — based on the premise that Jesus Christ married Mary Magdalene and had children — came out as a film, it was attacked by Monsignor Tarcisio Bertone, then the Archbishop of Genoa and now the Cardinal Secretary of State and the Pope's right-hand man, as "an offence against God", a "phantasmagorical cocktail of inventions", a "masonic plot" and a "potpourri of lies".

The film version of Angels & Demons, the prequel to The Da Vinci Code, drew a similar response, with Gianni Gennari, a columnist for Avvenire, the newspaper of the Italian bishops, calling on Catholics to boycott it. Angels & Demons, he said, exploited the Church to swell takings at the box office and was part of a plot to undermine the Church. However, when it came to reviewing the film — which, in fact, offers a benign view of the Church as a force for good in the world — L'Osservatore Romano described it as “harmless entertainment which hardly affects the genius and mystery of Christianity”.

It said that the film was simplistic and full of inaccuracies and stereotyped characters, but conceded that it was dynamic and that the digital reconstruction of St Peter's and the Sistine Chapel was magnificent. The film's success should stimulate the Church to rethink the way it communicates its message, it concluded.

Religious conversions

Mass Until the 1960s, Catholic Mass was celebrated only in Latin, with priests facing away from congregants. The Second Vatican Council in 1962-65 brought approval of the sacrament in local languages. Campaigners are still trying to reverse the move

Abortion In 2003 the Church withdrew a threat to excommunicate the parents of a Nicaraguan girl aged 9 who had an abortion after being raped. 26,000 had signed a petition against the move

Limbo In traditional Catholic theology, limbo was a halfway point between Heaven and Hell, where those who had not been baptised — including babies — go after death. Limbo was finally abolished in 2007 by Pope John Paul II. Babies now enjoy eternal happiness after death, but not communion with God

Holocaust denier In January the Pope welcomed back into the church four excommunicated bishops, one of whom, Richard Williamson, had denied the historical truth of the Holocaust. After a public outcry the Pope ordered him to recant these beliefs before resuming his Church role

Galileo In 1992, Pope John Paul II acknowledged that the Church had been wrong to condemn Galileo Galilei 359 years earlier for saying the Earth revolved around the Sun. But he added that 17th-century theologians had worked with available knowledge Knights Templar In 2007 the Vatican admitted that the Knights Templar were not heretics. The warrior order had been disbanded in 1307 and their leader, Jacques de Molay, burnt at the stake

Musings of Loki

Rev. Lee

Spirit, Life, & Death

Spirituality is everywhere we look and feel. How do we know this? We just 'do'. Is that a good reason? It might not be specific, but I would be content to know others feel the way I feel. Alas, how do others feel? I like the line that others feel like I feel, but is that a true statement? Can it be? With all that read this on their own path, following either a Pagan, Wiccan, or other such path, can we actually feel the same?

What do I feel? How do I feel? Might as well throw in all of the questions. This body of mine is a shell, which inside lives a spirit that has been subject to tempering since the age of 11. For a sword to become a masterwork it needs to be subject to fire; it needs to be tempered by flames and worked to become a piece of art. Within each piece of metal is potentially a piece of art. Am

I done yet? Am I a piece of art? No, not yet. I am still being tempered by my trials of fire. I will succeed though, for I persist in my trials and will never quit. When will my trials end? Beyond this life, as I take steps towards my next...

A friend of mine just lost her father. He had been sick for the past two months and this outcome was inevitable. As she wrote to me, she mentioned that she felt really sentimental when she heard of family members passing. I replied to her with an answer I assume she did not expect. I answered, telling her that I look forward to my next step in my life, even though I know I have much to learn and experience here on this plane of existence. I see life and death differently than her and many others more than likely. Will I be sad for family passings, yes. I will miss their presence and companionship. I will also be happy for they will find peace from their troubles here be it pain, worries, etc... I see potential going into our next step and cannot grieve for a passed family member. I know I will see them again, be it here or even helping them on the astral plane. Is this callous of me? Perhaps... Again, I see life and death in a different light. This is 'me'... I was instructed a while back to define 'myself' and I have. Can I choose to define anyone here? Would I even be able to? For even if I knew you and we become friends, I don't know your spirit. I don't know your spirituality. I know some people that wear their emotions on their sleeves, but I seem like a cold individual sometimes in comparison. Is that a bad trait to have? Or is it a good trait? Could this be another trial I am to learn from? Perhaps compassion? In my second degree studies, it tells us about our friend 'death'. We should never fear him, even if he does bring grief to our life with a loved ones passing.

My spirit is strong in this world. In this life, I have had a chance to work in-depth within myself and wrestle with my own mortality. I have fought more battles on my inner-battleground than I had thought possible. I am also constantly reminded that I am young, so I can only imagine what my spirit will end up as after it has been completely tempered and comes out a piece of art. What will I become? What other trials must I, we, face to complete the process? Is there an end? I feel there is never an end to our spirit learning...growing to its full potential.

Do you feel what I feel?

Quote & Thought of the Date

Rev. Nehal

Quote of the Day:

Words have the power to both destroy and heal. When words are both true and kind, they can change our world.

Buddha

Source: www.ascensiongateway.com

Thought of the day:

Raise yourself up just a little bit. Then see how very good it feels.

Make a small positive change for the better. And you'll know without a doubt that you can successfully make even greater, more profound changes.

Lift the spirits of someone close to you. Experience how it feels to truly change the world.

Make a modest amount of progress. You'll be learning how to make much, much more.

Take one step toward your goal. And suddenly you're positioned to take the next step.

The smallest positive action can overcome the biggest negative doubt. Even if it's just a little bit, there's always a way to keep moving forward.

Ancient Cultures - The Mayan

Rev. Nehal

Background Beliefs Overview Traditions

Part 1

Although some of the ancient traditions reflected in the architecture and art of the Mayan ruins (Yucatan, Chiapas, Tabasco, Belize, Honduras, Guatemala), live on in the present Mayan culture, most of the viable aspects that once constituted the sacredness of their spiritual pathway as originally taught to them by the Pleiadian Shaman Star Teachers from Lemuria, have long been lost to the ravages of history, despite recent attempts to reconstruct ancient Mayan practices.

This makes the modern day Mayans, who live far from abandoned and overgrown temple ruins, more the surviving remnants of a once thriving Ancient Culture like the Egyptians, Romans, or Grecians, than the caretakers of a feasible enduring legacy of knowledgeable spiritual practices for others to follow as an ascension roadmap.

Still overall the Mayan people have shown a remarkable ability to endure. Even after more than five hundred years of oppression from Europeans, succeeding generations of Mayan continue to occupy their ancestral lands and to follow some of their time honored cultural practices.

Most fortuitously for the Maya some of their Pleiadian benefactors and mentors of Celtic Mound Builder lineage and background have recently returned from the Pleiades to assist the Mayans once again in their evolutionary life spirals. To learn more about this read the Creation Legends (Four Maya Worlds) and Maya goddesses and gods sections below.

Chichén Itzá was located in the Yucatán in southeastern Mesoamerica. The name of the city means, In the Mouth at the Itzáe's Well; and, ample water resources from various caves and Cenotes enabled it to become a political and religious power center that reached its pinnacle between 800-1200 ACE.

Chichén Itzá Ruins Groups of Thousand Columns

After waves of invasions and different tribes of inhabitants, Chichén Itzá was inexplicably, (to archaeologists and historians), permanently abandoned in 1400 ACE.

Although the Celtic Pleiadian Shaman Star Teachers also plan to return to the Guatemala area, their homecoming there is not yet imminent, so in the meantime, there is a group of 88,911 Omniangels located there.

The temple complex was built sometime in the 8th century ACE. Like most of what are called the Mayan Pyramids, they were built over Celtic style, sacred hill mounds left behind by the Lemurians who were the benefactors and teachers of the Mayan until they relocated to Orion and the Pleiades.

In the past, the Mayan had a writing system and their codices were decorated with bright drawings and glyphs. There were distinct social classes: rulers, educated nobility, scribes, artists, architects, farmers, laborers.

Myths like the Popol Vuh about Creation, cosmology, and religion suffused their lives. Maya Sacred Mounds were overlaid with pyramidal stone temples. Then palaces and government buildings were often built over existing stone structures (left behind by others, those who had originally built them when they ascended to higher spiritual dimensions).

Their cities were mainly ceremonial sites for the farming villages. Mayan weavers wove meaningful symbols into their textiles. To the Mayan the universe was multileveled, above, below, north, south, east, and west. The Mayan worshipped a large array of Deities, with each location having its own patrons and favorites.

Although the stone cities of the Mayan are now long abandoned, they proved to be a resilient people. Their sacred Tzolk'in almanac of 260 days has been used to make predictions, along with their Haab, solar calendar of 365 days.

The knowledge they obtained from other teachings, myths, and symbologies enabled them to conceptualize higher truths and served as bridging tools for them between dimensional realities. For example, the tree was represented by the sacred symbol T which depicted the interrelationship between the living beingness of a tree and of the Maya priests and priestesses who consciously communed with it.

Mayan Culture Dresden Codex Page Nine

All the Mayan tribes believed in harmonizing with Nature. They also had enduring memories of Pleiadians who came to the planet to teach, instruct, and work with the four root races. When they left from the Sacred Site Kumar Kaj to return to their star home, they left behind four gifts for humanity: a seed of time (the Mayan calendars), a metal crown of flowers, a seed of light, and a sacred pouch.

Never united under one government or organization, the Mayan shared many beliefs, a pantheon of Deities, astronomy, writing, and calendar systems. The Mayan calendrical vision of planetary evolution began around 22,000 years ago and was divided into Sun cycles of 5,200 years with the beginning of the 5th Sun cycle on December 21, 2012 when they anticipated the fulfillment of Mayan prophecy to occur - a radical change in human consciousness.

Numerous prosperous and culturally advanced Maya villages once stretched across northern Belize, Guatemala, and southern Mexico. Their overall population numbered in the millions. The archaeologists place what they call the rise of the Maya Culture at about 250 ACE, its peak at about 900 ACE, and its gradual eventual decline with the depopulation of the pyramidal cities at about 1519 ACE. The Maya were actually thriving in the area since well before the submergence of the Lost Continent of Lemuria. Reasons for their abandonment of the cities are discussed in the Creation Legends (Four Maya Worlds) section below.

Poets Retreat

Poetry supplied by members of the Order of Bards

The Goddess and Me

In the light of the brightest day
In the beams of the fullest moon
She is there with me

I hear her whispers in my ears
Her presences in my heart
And most of all I witness
All the blessings she imparts

In the darkness of despair
She embraces me and I feel her there
She awakens my spirit in the light of life
And reminds me of the inner light

She is ever present with me
I rely so deeply upon her guidance
In times of doubt
And she comforts me when I cry and shout

And I sing her praise from morn to night
And embrace her loving light
For she is the constant, that this heart does know
In the darkness where fear can grow

She beams a light so bright for me
A beacon over the sea of life's trials and errors
That I may find my way back again
To grow and strengthen the me I am

That would be the Goddess and Me
So blessed I am, to know she stands with me.

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: wwcw@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,
The Order of Web Weavers

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at krystelneuman@yahoo.com

May You Blessed Be
Krystel
