Animal Totems

Rev Mehitabel

The articles on individual totems will continue next week.

Any animal may come to us as a totem. This series of articles touches on the most usual but there are many more. So what do you do if an aardvark, an ecidna or a blue footed booby wanders into your dreams or otherwise conspires to catch your attention. Maybe you find the animal appearing in television programmes, books, magazines, advertisements, popping up in conversation and seemingly invading your life. Take note if this happens, your totem has important messages and lessons for you.

If your totem does not appear in books on the subject, or indeed even if it does, make a determined effort to meet your totem in meditation or in lucid dreaming. You may need to try these approaches several times before you have any real success in contacting your totem for some are very shy and wary of humans even when they have initiated the contact. You may need to prove your sincerity to the totem and always remember to make some symbolic offering of thanks.

Make a point of researching the animal, checking its behaviour, habitat and other features of its life in the wild. These characteristics are often carried over into its role as a totem and may give you insights into its message for you. If possible, actually go and watch the animals, in the wild or in a zoo. Failing this try to find wildlife films that feature it. All these approaches will help strengthen your bond with the totem.

Most importantly, simply listen to the messages and guidance and remember that the totem has come to you as a gift and you should respond accordingly.

Tao Oracle: An Illuminated New Approach to the I Ching

The Tao Oracle for today is the Abysmal

Key terms for today are: Danger, Insecurity, Overwhelm, Unpredictability, Hazardous Conditions, Dark Emotions, Facing Fear and Courage.

Message of the Abysmal

When the Abysmal enters into your life you will be met with many trials, obstacles and difficulties. Abysmal is a time of growing and changing. You may feel an overwhelming sense of danger around you. You feel as though there are many issues that are arising at the same time. You are not sure what to do or which way to turn as every choice seems to carry with it some negative consequences. The Abysmal is easily identified by the feeling that you are always suffering from one setback or another. When you feel that life is constantly offering you trials and obstacles while others seem to sail through life with no cares and no worries. Abysmal is the card that indicates a time of darkness when you feel that your very last ounce of strength has been spent. Learning to live face Abysmal with courage and determination will allow you to see what you own strengths truly are.

With Abysmal your life is filled with a great fear and dread. There are many different elements that have come together to create for you a path that is very dangerous to tread. There is nothing in life that you cannot face or overcome. The human spirit is one of determination and fortitude. The times when we face Abysmal we may not be able to see the light or to enjoy a moments peace but when the time has come and we look reflectively back we are able to see how strong we truly are and how far we really have come. There are many who will face Abysmal and lack the faith in their own strength and talent. These people give up and allow their emotions to dictate the outcome. By following the path and being careful and watchful you will be able to pick and choose the correct path. Do not allow the voice of fear to cloud your own judgment. You have all of the talent and knowledge to be able to see this situation through to the end. What you need to do is to stay where you are and face what has been sent your way. There are always trials. There are always times that will try the soul. How we show our worth and how we show our metal is by seeing things through and solving the puzzle instead of looking for the easy answers.

Abysmal is a time of watchfulness. Now is the time to hone all of your senses to the present moment. Be aware of all that is happening and taking place. Listen to your intuition and allow your skills and past experience to guide you. When you are able to sit and see the situation clearly you will see the seeds of wisdom that have been planted. This is the best way to see what the situation truly entails. When you are able to see everything clearly you will know when your time to act has come. One who acts before their time risks losing all. There is danger in the situation and by taking the time and developing your patience you will be able to wait out the storm and come sailing through to the other side of the dilemma and still be on the correct path.

Meditation for the Abysmal

Find a quiet place where you will be able to sit or lie down comfortably without being disturbed. You may wish to play some soft instrumental music or have water flowing softly in the background. When you are ready close your eyes and breathe in deeply. Feel your whole body filling with the breath of life. See your body as a large balloon and as you fill your lungs full of air see your body expand and fill also. When you exhale feel your body shrink back to normal. Continue to breathe and with every breath feel the balloon stretch your skin and your muscles. When you exhale feel all the stress and tension flow out of your body as you decompress. Feel your body grow loose and relaxed with every breath. Continue to breathe until all the stress and anxiety of your day has been stretched away. After 10 breath cycles open your eyes and look at the card in front of you.

Look at Abysmal. See the waves, see the torrents of water pouring down, see the mists formed from the torrents of water crashing into the sea. Feel the power of the card. Try to memorize as much of the image as possible. When you have the image clearly in your mind, close your eyes. Allow yourself to drift up out of your body. Feel yourself floating through time to a place of no time. There at the gate, see the Abysmal standing larger than life. Feel yourself pulled into the card. Once inside, see all the detail that you remember, only now see the waves moving, hear the torrents flowing, hear the crashing of the water as it hits the sea. You are being pulled into the water and you find yourself small and helpless right in the middle of the crashing waters. Feel the water pulling you and pushing you, feel it try to drive you down. See the swirls surround you, feel the current pulling you. Do not be afraid. As the water rushes around you, you may see images from your life, you may feel powerful emotions. All of these will point to the area in your life where Abysmal needs you to focus. Remain in the torrent until you feel certain you have heard Abysmal's message. At this point, gather your courage and your strength and dive down deep. Feel the waters and the currents try to capture and pull you down. Remain focused and continue to swim. You may feel your breath ready to give out, your lungs crying for air. Continue swimming and you will break through the surface. Once in the fresh air, take a deep breath, know that you have faced and passed the challenge of Abysmal and that you have found your strength to meet Abysmal in your daily life.

When you are ready feel yourself being pulled back out of the card. Feel your body drifting again through space and back through time to yourself. With every breath you take feel yourself settle back into your body. Hear the music around you and feel the energy of your skin tingling with your return. Smell the room around you and when you are ready take a deep breath and open your eyes.

Loki's Musings

Control

When I earned my third bar on my brown belt, others in my dojo would regard me with respectful distance. Not only for the fact of my rank, but also because of a little joke that was made for all who held that particular rank. They would call a skill we earned at that rank as 'Brown Belt Control'. Control is an important skill to have in life, but in the martial arts it kept you from bruising people by accident. For some odd reason, those who had a decent amount of control during the lower ranks would lose it during their time as a 3rd bar brown belt, otherwise known as 1st Kyu. There were many a time I watched as friends of mine would accidentally strike someone with strong force. Of course they all held the rank of 1st Kyu at the time; thusly this is where the joke stemmed from. So, the lesson to be learned was not an easy one. Think of the fact that in the dojo while in practice, you are stressed to use the perfect technique needed with the most power but not to actually hit your partner. Sounds easy to most. The situation changes in a real fight though. Now you are to fall back on what you were taught but not to mirror what you practiced. You are told that when you strike in defense, you are to focus through the attacker inflicting the most pain, hopeful that they will leave you alone. There were many who could not follow through with this lesson that was rarely practiced.

Why would control be important in the life of a Pagan? We are taught to be very conscious of our thoughts and actions in this world. As the saying goes, a butterfly's wings can cause a hurricane. Our thoughts demand control for we harness rather potent energy; our own personal untapped power. We all strive to live life by the Rede; to 'Harm None'. Alas I know people that are mean to me every so often, so where should my control stand here? Others here will agree that even with the best intentions, angry thoughts peek out once in a while. So, where can control come into play? Do evil thoughts mean that person has evil intent? Ah, a question for the Sages. In my life, I walk the path of neutrality, trying to blend both the dark and light within. This is not to say I bring my wife flowers one day and kick the cat the next, but I keep my thoughts and intentions under control. I keep my energies centered, and rarely allow them to flare out, which could cause harm to others. Of course, even my best attempts fail every so often and sometimes dark energy is released. Here, even with a known failure I try to reduce the damage those energies inflict. I try to aim those energies at myself more often with this type of failure and I do at least succeed on that. I would rather suffer from a miscalculation than have another person harmed.

So, how does one ready themselves for these two possibilities listed here?

A) Keeping any flux of energy under control.

B) Keeping the backlash of a failed attempt aimed at yourself moreso than another.

I would love to see others thoughts here, not only for my education but for others as well.

You can practice all your life, and sometimes you suffer from a slip. This is where we need to learn these important lessons, and grow from them.

Lee

Maya Mayan Ancient Culture Background Beliefs Overview Traditions Part 3

Hunab Ku (Sanat Hunabku Kumara) plans to spend a significant amount of time in Mesoamerica and the Yucatan, acting as benefactor and mentor to the Maya. Sanat Hunabku Kumara will make sure that the Maya have the necessary sacred tools and knowledge necessary for them to safely make the phase transition into the Fourth World, as the planet makes a quantum leap into higher states of Consciousness more readily available in the Age of Aquarius.

Today, numbering between four to six million, the Mayan are divided into diverse ethnic groups with about thirty different languages (most do not speak Spanish), that live primarily in the Chiapas state and highlands of Mexico, and the Yucatan Peninsula. The Mayan, who have lived in the Chiapas Highlands for at least a thousand years, still use age old methods of agriculture to grow crops.

Maize remains the primary staple just as it was centuries ago. Most of the Mayan still wear traditional clothing. Women weave textiles using the ancient art of natural dyes and there has been a revival of brocade. The ceremonial huipil remains unchanged but there are new design patterns such as dog paws and crosses on shawls. Also the hems and necks of blouses are now more decorative.

In Belize, traditional rituals take place in caves and temples, and, the planting and harvesting of the crops of corn, beans, chilies, tomatoes, and squash are times for prayer and thanksgiving. Homemade meals are cooked over an open hearth. Medicinal plants, secret stones, and prayers are used to heal. Elders, priests, and some traditional Deities are still honoured.

Keeping pace with accelerated world changes, like the recent axis shift into the Age of Aquarius, the Maya Kumara Deities like Hunab Ku who left from Kumar Kaj have recently returned from the Pleiades. They will be finding new sacred sites for the Maya to perform ceremonies where they can wear traditional dress, burn copal, blow the conch shell and sing songs to Father Sun Ahau, and to the Great Creator, Hunab Ku.

Public Mayan architecture was characterized by limestone structures that were faced with stucco. Tombs were often either inside or beneath the buildings. Preexisting older temples during the Dark Times of the Third Maya World were often overlaid with new stone structures. Large palaces housed royalty and hosted governmental dealings, but the majority of Mayan lived in ecologically aware residences.

Efficient utilization of natural resources for building materials by the ancient Mayan engendered a practical and enduring structural style that continued over the centuries. Typical Mayan dwellings had a thatch roof made of palm and two opposing doorways for the circulation of air.

The basic framework had rounded edges and was made from tree poles set into a stone foundation. Sometimes stucco was used as a filler. Stone adaptations of these buildings were similar but rectangular in form. Modern structures retained the same framework with the addition of new building materials such as corrugated metal and cinderblocks.

The Maya were accomplished astronomers, they kept astronomic almanacs and eclipse tables which the priests and nobles used to determine dates important to the Mayan Zodiac (depicted as a double headed serpent in their artwork), as well as, the solstices and the equinoxes.

They timed their wars to the stationary points of Jupiter and Venus and some of their sacrificial ceremonies to the magnitude of Venus. Venus was more important to them than the Sun and they made daytime observations of its movements.

Mayan Numerals

During the Dark Times of the Third Maya World, they also timed the ascension rituals of the kings with the Milky Way and the stars and went to war to get hold of captives - if there were certain planetary configurations at the end of a k'atun (twenty year period).

The four remaining Mayan Codices made from folded flattened tree bark, (Dresden, Paris, Madrid, and Grolier), generally had writing on both sides and were covered with lime paste. Three of the codices had complex glyphic texts usually read in paired columns.

Although the flavor, spirit, and essence was quintessential Mayan, the sheer beauty and artistry of the graphics and writing of the codices were hauntingly reminiscent of the ornately illustrated, Celtic, Book of Kells.

Mayan Mathematics used a base number of 20 and bar (1) and dot (5) system of counting. Numbers were written from bottom to top and large numbers were written in powers of 20. For instance 32 is 1*20+12. There were no fractions; they just added the bars and dots. Astronomers used the base 20 calculations for their calendars and time tracking.

The Popul Vuh, the Maya Creation Book. The Book of Written Leaves was originally written in Mayan Hieroglyphs. Transcriptions of its contents in the Roman Alphabet in the sixteenth century included Maya cosmology and myths about Primal Seas, Dark Times, radiantly splendid Mayan Creation Deities, the founding of the Guatemalan highland culture. It was written on flattened tree bark with artistic drawings similar to the beautiful illustrations in Celtic works like the Book of Kells. To learn more about the Creation Legends see Cosmic Legends (Maya Four Worlds) above.

For the Chiapas Mayan, their traditional brocade designs were more than an art form, they were a sacred duty ordained by the gods. The Mayan identity was woven into these sacred textiles and their designs were drawn both from mythology and local history. Patterns connoted different things: diamonds - the shape of earth and sky; flowers - the abundance of holy plants; toads - the rain god; snake - the fertility of animals; three vertical lines - the ancestors.

Sacred Mounds enveloped with the soothing energies of green grass, the color of the Heart Chakra (the As Above in Heaven So Below on Earth rainbow bridge which connects the upper chakras with the lower chakras), the gentle sloping of the Sacred Mound was reminiscent of the fullness of a woman's breast.

The remnants of many Sacred Mounds remain scattered across the Mesoamerican landscape. Built of high quality stone work and covered with hallowed grass covered earth, most Sacred Mounds were a Divine Feminine Grail Cup Chamber that was part of the Sacred Shamanic Mysteries of the ancient Pleiadian Shamans who were Benefactor Mentors of the Maya and other Mesoamericans.

A Modern Craft Fairy-Tale

T W O W I T C H E S

by Mike Nichols

Once upon a time, there were two Witches. One was a Feminist Witch and the other was a Traditionalist Witch. And, although both of them were deeply religious, they had rather different ideas about what their religion meant. The Feminist Witch tended to believe that Witchcraft was a religion especially suited to women because the image of the Goddess was empowering and a strong weapon against patriarchal tyranny. And there was distrust in the heart of the Feminist Witch for the Traditionalist Witch because, from the Feminist perspective, the Traditionalist Witch seemed subversive and a threat to "the Cause".

The Traditionalist Witch tended to believe that Witchcraft was a religion for both men and women because anything less would be divisive. And although the Goddess was worshipped, care was taken to give equal stress to the God-force in nature, the Horned One. And there was distrust in the heart of the Traditionalist Witch for the Feminist Witch because, from the Traditionalist viewpoint, the Feminist Witch seemed like a late-comer and a threat to "Tradition". These two Witches lived in the same community but each belonged to a different Coven, so they did not often run into one another. Strange to say, the few times they did meet, they felt an odd sort of mutual attraction, at least on the physical level. But both recognized the folly of this attraction, for their ideologies were worlds apart, and nothing, it seemed, could ever bridge them.

Then one year the community decided to hold a Grand Coven, and all the Covens in the area were invited to attend. After the rituals, the singing, the magicks, the feasting, the poetry, and dancing were concluded, all retired to their tents and sleeping bags. All but these two. For they were troubled by their differences and couldn't sleep. They alone remained sitting by the campfire while all others around them dreamed. And before long, they began to talk about their differing views of the Goddess. And, since they were both relatively inexperienced Witches, they soon began to argue about what was the "true" image of the Goddess.

"Describe your image of the Goddess to me," challenged the Feminist Witch. The Traditionalist Witch smiled, sighed, and said in a rapt voice, "She is the embodiment of all loveliness. The quintessence of feminine beauty. I picture her with silver-blond hair like moonlight, rich and thick, falling down around her soft shoulders. She has the voluptuous young body of a maiden in her prime, and her clothes are the most seductive, gossamer thin and clinging to her willowy frame. I see her dancing like a young elfin nymph in a moonlit glade, the dance of a temple priestess. And she calls to her lover, the Horned One, in a voice that is gentle and soft and sweet, and as musical as a silver bell frosted with ice. She is Aphrodite, goddess of sensual love. And her lover comes in answer to her call, for she is destined to become the Great Mother. That is how I see the Goddess."

The Feminist Witch hooted with laughter and said, "Your Goddess is a Cosmic Barbie Doll! The Jungian archetype of a cheer-leader! She is all glitter and no substance. Where is her strength? Her power? I see the Goddess very differently. To me, she is the embodiment of strength and courage and wisdom. A living symbol of the collective power of women everywhere. I picture her with hair as black as a moonless night, cropped short for ease of care on the field of battle. She has the muscular body of a woman at the peak of health and fitness. And her clothes are the most practical and sensible, not slinky cocktail dresses. She does not paint her face or perfume her hair or shave her legs to please men's vanities. Nor does she do pornographic dances to attract a man to her. For when she calls to a male, in a voice that is strong and defiant, it will be to do battle with the repressive masculine ego. She is Artemis the huntress, and it is fatal for any man to cast a leering glance in her direction. For, although she may be the many-breasted Mother, she is also the dark Crone of wisdom, who destroys the old order. That is how I see the Goddess."

Now the Traditionalist Witch hooted with laughter and said, "Your Goddess is the antithesis of all that is feminine! She is Yahweh hiding behind a feminine mask! Don't forget that it was his followers who burned Witches at the stake for the "sin" of having "painted faces". After all, Witches with their knowledge of herbs were the ones who developed the art of cosmetics. So what of beauty? What of love and desire?"

And so the argument raged, until the sound of their voices awakened a Coven Elder who was sleeping nearby. The Elder looked from the Feminist Witch to the Traditionalist Witch and back again, saying nothing for a long moment. Then the Elder suggested that both Witches go into the woods apart from one another and there, by magick and meditation, that each seek a "true" vision of the Goddess. This they both agreed to do.

After a time of invocations, there was a moment of perfect stillness. Then a glimmer of light could be seen in the forest, a light shaded deepest green by the dense foliage. Both Witches ran toward the source of the radiance. To their wonder and amazement, they discovered the Goddess had appeared in a clearing directly between them, so that neither Witch could see the other. And the Traditionalist Witch yelled "What did I tell you!" at the same instant the Feminist Witch yelled "You see, I was right!" and so neither Witch heard the other.

To the Feminist Witch, the Goddess seemed to be a shining matrix of power and strength, with courage and energy flowing outward. The Goddess seemed to be holding out her arms to embrace the Feminist Witch, as a comrade in arms. To the Traditionalist Witch, the Goddess seemed to be the zenith of feminine beauty, lightly playing a harp and singing a siren song of seduction. Energy seemed to flow towards her. And she seemed to hold out her arms to the Traditionalist Witch, invitingly.

From opposite sides of the clearing, the Witches ran toward the figure of the Goddess they both loved so well, desiring to be held in the ecstasy of that divine embrace. But just before they reached her, the apparition vanished. And the two Witches were startled to find themselves embracing each other.

And then they both heard the voice of the Goddess. And, oddly enough, it sounded exactly the same to both of them. It sounded like laughter.

THE ORDER OF WEB WEAVERS CRYSTAL WEB MAPPING PROJECT

The Order of the Web Weavers has been working diligently on mapping the Crystal Web. If any of you have a crystal that you have added or removed from the Crystal Web contact us to ensure are records up to date and accurate.

The information we need in order to best catalogue your crystal/s is the following. Your Craft Name and E-mail Address along with your City, State, Country, Latitude, and Longitude. Sent to the following e-mail address: wwcw@correllianorders.info

Please include the above information, if you have removed your crystal from the Crystal Web along with 'Remove' in the subject line. If you have added several crystals then we would need a separate entry for each crystal, unless they are located together. If they are located together then please include how many crystals are at that location.

We are excited about this project and hope that you will be too. Once the crystals have been properly catalogued we can then begin placing them on the map program. This will give us a good visualization on the Crystal Web. Thank you in advance for your participation in this wonderful project.

Bright Blessings,
The Order of Web Weavers

THE ORDER OF WORLD WALKERS

This Correllian order is headed by the Rev. Krystel High Correll and she is offering training for those who wish to join the order. The training consists of twelve lessons, one a month, for a year, offered through e-mail.

The purpose of this order is to fulfill the deeper purposes of the Correllian Tradition--advanced psychic and spiritual work, primarily conducted on multi-dimensional levels. This work includes:

Learning to connect and work with your spirit guides. Conscious dying and conscious incarnation. Advanced dream work. Exploring the known boundaries of the multi-dimensional universe, then conducting independent work to go beyond those boundaries. The study of time and advanced work within it. Soul rescue (helping those who are not aware they have died, or are not willing to cross over). Mediumship (being a voice for the so-called dead, visiting the land of the dead and communicating with them, and building a pathway between the living and the dead). Healing, both personal and of our Earth.

These purposes are divided among five houses that consist of the members who are dedicated to the work of the House.

The Order of World Walkers is a working order. The training is only the beginning. Each of the houses offer work that can be done for the rest of your life, if you choose to do it.

I believe that everyone who chooses to become a member of the order chose this before coming into this life time to continue work begun in other lives.

For more in-depth information, including the cost of the lessons, contact me at krystelneuman@yahoo.com

May You Blessed Be
Krystel
